Historic Moon 'Hop' Taken by Surveyor

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor VI made an historic "hop" on the moon today, scientists say, becoming the first earth rocket to lift off the lunar surface.

The three-legged, picture-taking spacecraft, which soft-landed on the moon's Central Bay November 9, reached an altitude of about 10 feet on a 6½-second flight initiated by signals from the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

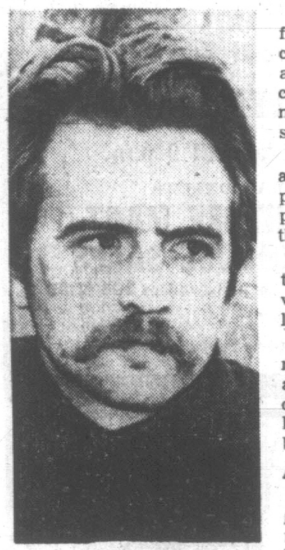
The U.S. mooncraft landed about eight feet from its original position. Scientists said the manoeuvre was designed to tell them more about the lunar surface.

"This will help the Apollo people know the strength of the surface since they'll have to fire rockets to return to earth," a laboratory spokesman explained. He referred to the Apollo program aimed at landing a man on the moon.

BOLIVIA CRACKDOWN

Writer Gets 30-Year Term

CAMIRI (AP)—A Bolivian military tribunal today convicted French Marxist author Regis Debray and Argentine Cira Roberto Bustos of leftist guerrilla crimes and sentenced each to 30 years in prison.



DEBRAY
. . . pen or gun?

The five-member tribunal freed four Bolivians also charged with guerrilla activity against the state. Specific charges against the six were murder, robbery and subversion.

Defence lawyers for Debray and Bustos said they plan to appeal the sentences to the Supreme War Council in La Paz, the Bolivian capital.

Debray and Bustos went on trial along with the four Bolivians in this small southeast Bolivian oil town Sept. 27.

Although 12 prosecution witnesses testified against Debray and Bustos, there was no evidence presented which directly linked either of them with combat activity.

ARMED WITH RIFLES

The two admitted they stood guard duty armed with M-1 rifles, which also were used on hunting expeditions.

Debray, 27, author of the guerrilla handbook Revolution Within Revolution, maintained from the start he was in Bolivia as a journalist for a Mexican magazine. He said he had asked the late Ernesto (Che) Guevara for permission to join the rebels as a combatant but was turned down.

Excerpts read earlier this week from Guevara's diary backed up this contention. Guevara had written that he felt Debray would have been more useful to the movement operat-

'No Basis' For Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said today the Soviet Union has not "the slightest basis or justification" for claiming connivance of Canadian authorities in anti-Soviet demonstrations Nov. 7 in Ottawa and Montreal. (See story, Page 21.)

Bomb Blasts Hall Before Snowdon Visit

CARDIFF, Wales (AP) — A bomb blast smashed the doorway and entrance hall of Cardiff's Temple of Peace today shortly before Lord Snowdon arrived there for a conference on Prince Charles' investiture as Prince of Wales.

Police sources blamed the explosion on extremists demanding home rule for the Welsh. As Snowdon calmly entered the meeting hall, demonstrators waved banners outside. One proclaimed: "Republic, not royalty."

The blast broke windows throughout the area, but there were no reports of injuries. Police found evidence of a crude time bomb placed on a shelf above the front doors of the temple—built as a symbol of Welsh devotion to peaceful causes.

Another member of the Royal Family, Princess Alexandra, was on the periphery of a bombing attempt Thursday when she opened a new Northern Ireland government office in London after a home-made explosive device was found on its steps and dismantled. Police refused to speculate whether the outlawed Irish Republican Army planted the bomb.

Snowdon was to discuss three months of celebrations planned by the Welsh Tourist Board to surround the investiture ceremony.

Welsh nationalists have said the pomp will cost $7,000,000 and have threatened to sabotage every step of the celebrations.

Charles, 19-year-old heir to the British throne, is to be presented formally to the people of Wales at Caernarvon Castle, ancient seat of Welsh kings July 1, 1969.

LOAN ON WAY

Pound Slides To Floor Price

LONDON (UPI)—One of the wildest days in London market history ended today with world-wide speculation on whether Britain's currency could survive its worst crisis since 1949 without devaluation.

At the end of a hectic day of trading on the foreign currency exchange, the pound closed at the psychological "floor" price of 2.7825.

Near the end of the day, Swiss bankers said Britain would obtain the $1 billion loan she sought in hard negotiating with the so-called "group of ten" richest nations meeting in Paris.

Sources said the Bank of England spent tens of millions in precious dollars and gold reserves to keep the pound from slipping beneath $2.7825.

SILENCE SCORED

Conservatives appealed to the Speaker of the House of Commons to break the continuing silence of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government on reports Britain was negotiating a one-billion-dollar loan to restore confidence in the pound. The effort failed.

A British minister pledged in Paris that the pound would not be devalued. It did not remove tremendous, day-long pressures against the pound.

VANCOUVER FOGGED IN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first heavy fog of the season blanketed out the Vancouver area early today, delaying planes and shipping and causing a general slowdown in city traffic.

Canadian Pacific Airlines said three incoming flights were diverted from Vancouver International Airport to Abbotsford, in the Fraser Valley. Air Canada reported four flights were cancelled.

The P. and O. Orient liner Orcades, scheduled to dock Thursday night, was delayed and anchored outside the harbour for the night.

STRATEGIC HILL GRABBED BY U.S.

SAIGON (AP)—United States infantrymen, driving through a murderous blaze of North Vietnamese machine-gun and small arms fire, late today seized the top of a strategic hill overlooking Dak To, in South Vietnam's central highlands.

The U.S. command in Saigon said 17 Americans were killed and 24 wounded in the fight. There was no immediate word about North Vietnamese casualties.

Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett reported from the battle scene that soldiers of the United States 4th Infantry Division "occupied the topmost point of the hill around 5 p.m. after some of the bloodiest fighting" in the two weeks of heavy combat in the area close to the Laotian and Cambodian borders.

'Bomb Pause Won't Start Peace Talks'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said today Hanoi's own response has shown that stopping United States air attacks on North Vietnam alone will not bring the Communists to the negotiating table.

He said Hanoi's rejection of his latest offer of peace talks—made last weekend aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise—had been "clear and complete." That should answer the question of every person in the U.S. who thinks a bombing halt alone will accomplish this end, he said.

"There are some hopeful people and there are some naive people and there are some political people" who advocate a one-sided bombing suspension, but such proposals just "confuse and weaken our position," he told a news conference.

Johnson said "we are pleased with the results we're getting" in the Vietnam war. He added his military commander anticipates no increase in the previously authorized U.S. troop strength.

Reporting on his current talks with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and his Vietnam commander, Gen. William C. Westmoreland—both back from South Vietnam from consultations—Johnson said:

"We are making progress. We are pleased with the results we're getting. We are inflicting greater losses than we are taking."

WANT QUICK ACTION

Johnson said the American people are impatient in war or in a football game, and want the action to build up quickly and the enemy to be defeated rapidly.

But it's not that kind of war the U.S. is fighting in Vietnam, John said.

"In 1954, we said we'd stand with those people out there to meet the common danger. The time came when we had to put up or shut up. We put up."

Johnson said U.S. aims in Vietnam have been clear from the beginning.

"I thought even all the preachers in the country had heard about it," he said, a reference to a recent sermon he sat through at Williamsburg, Va., in which the minister asked for a fuller explanation of why

B.C. Proving Lone Holdout

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Sharp says most provinces at the federal-provincial conference of finance ministers here lean towards delay in the national medicare program.

The scheme is due to come into effect July 1 next year and estimated to cost about $800 million on a 50-50 federal provincial split.

Mr. Sharp's call for belt-tightening has made medicare postponement likely although the official government stand is that medicare will go ahead as planned unless provinces ask for a delay.

Ottawa is hoping that all the provinces will request an adjournment and while almost all the provinces would like to see the plan delayed, they would prefer that Ottawa make the move.

ONLY PROVINCE

Premier Bennett was the only minister Thursday who specifically stated that he wants the federal money next July 1, and that British Columbia's current medical plan will be altered to conform with the federal criteria.

Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher, a Liberal, appeared to open the door for an agreement when he suggested a further postponement for one year.

Mr. Thatcher had the strongest hand among the premiers as his province already has medicare.

But he added that Saskatchewan could not afford to lose scheduled equalization payments and medicare at the same time and would need one or the other.

SHARP TODAY

Mr. Sharp, who will speak today on the provincial representations on medicare, told reporters Thursday night: "I know of no intention by the federal government to change its legislation, but of course when provinces make representations to us we give them careful consideration because they are very much involved in financing a medicare program."

He spoke to Prime Minister Lester Pearson following the first sessions of the two-day meeting.

ANGRY AT PM's REMARKS

Vote Set for Wednesday Retentionists Force Delay

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson's description of capital punishment as "mental barbarism" aroused retentionists and shattered an all-party agreement that was to have brought an abolitionist bill to a Commons vote Thursday night.

Mr. Pearson was to have closed the five-day debate but his remark brought a flock of retentionists to their feet either to protest his remarks or to review the aguments.

They were led by David Fulton (PC—Kamloops), the former justice minister, who said the prime minister had made "a maudlin appeal to emotion."

"Our case, and the moral justification of it, is equally good if not better than the prime minister's," Mr. Fulton said.

Nevertheless, a test vote on a surprise motion by Georges Lachance (L—Montreal Lafontaine) that would have killed the bill was easily defeated 125 to 76.

This was regarded as an indicator that the bill itself will carry when the key vote on its principle is taken.

RESUMES WEDNESDAY

The debate was adjourned at 10 p.m. and will not resume before next Wednesday, barring a change in the agenda of House business given by Government House Leader MacEachen.

Detailed study of a bill to establish a department of consumer and corporate affairs is scheduled today.

The final supply motion of the session goes before the House Monday and Tuesday, opening the way for a test of confidence in the government.

Under the capital punishment bill hanging for murder would be limited to killers of prison guards and police.

The highlights in its fifth day of debate were the 32-minute Pearson speech—a wholehearted rejection of capital punishment—and a passionate defence of the gallows by Ralph Cowan (L—York-Humber).

Mr. Pearson said retentionists had been unable to prove the deterrent value of the death penalty and had to fall back on emotional arguments.

Through execution of murderers, society fell into the trap of treating them as they had their victims. And no murder ever matched the horror of capital punishment.

BREAKTHROUGH IN OCEAN EXPLORATION

Canada Unveils 'Deep Plunge Satellite'

OTTAWA (CP) — A Defence Research Board scientist has developed a "reverse satellite" to explore inner space—the world's oceans.

Colleagues of Donald A. Grant, 40, of Pictou, N.S., today described his development as a great scientific breakthrough in oceanography.

Mr. Grant said of his three-ton oceanographic buoy: "It's the same as a satellite only the other way—into the ocean depths instead of into space."

He said the buoy, built by E. M. I. Cosser Ltd. of Dartmouth, N.S., will make possible replacement of weather ships at sea and faster and more thorough bottom-to-surface exploration of the world's oceans.

Information on the buoy, which has already plunged to a depth of 17,000 feet in trials, has just been taken off the secret list by the defence department.

The device apparently makes possible a more reliable submarine-detection system. The defence department declined comment on this aspect, however.

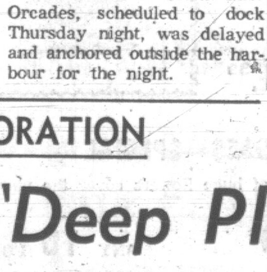
Mr. Grant heard Tuesday that it washed up a few days ago at the Portuguese fishing village of Peniche about 60 miles north of Lisbon.

The Portuguese navy put it under guard until it found out it was a buoy and not a bomb.

Cosser's address was printed on the buoy and the Portuguese got in touch with the Canadian embassy in Lisbon.

Mr. Grant left here today for Portugal to recover the instruments from the buoy.



GRANT
. . . going down

"We may be able to tell where it has been for the last year or more," he said in an interview.

The buoy comprises three main parts: A surface sphere, a power plant and instruments which can be lowered to any depth desired and a four claw, 1,000-pound anchor which grabs the ocean floor.

Mr. Grant said a camera can be attached to the anchor to photograph the ocean floor.

The great advantage of his buoy is that it can be moored permanently at sea and relay to aircraft or ships information not only on surface weather but on the speed and direction of under-surface ocean currents, temperature and pressure.

"We will be able to get under-surface weather information in the same way that our Alouette satellites collect information on the outer atmosphere and space," Mr. Grant said.

"There are clouds of water in the ocean as there are clouds in the sky. We have already discovered that fish congregate at the edges of these clouds where there are abrupt changes in temperature.

"This means the buoy can aid fishermen in locating fish."

the United States is in South Vietnam.

Johnson said the goal is to protect U.S. security and that is tied in with Southeast Asia, and "second, to resist Communist aggression."

He said if a bully assailed a child, people would do something about it.

So, Johnson said, the United States served notice with the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization that it was prepared to resist aggression and stand against someone "who seeks to gobble up little countries."

"We have tried several times to get the United Nations to play a part in bringing up peace in Vietnam," Johnson said. Many senators think that is the way to do it, he said, adding that there were "42 resolutions in one day."

"We've already tried the United Nations before but we may try it again," he said. "I don't want to hurt its chances by giving any predictions."

WELCOMES DISSENT

Of criticism of the U.S. role in Vietnam, Johnson said:

"We welcome responsible dissent and some of the things that have happened in this country.

"I can't say that this dissent has contributed much to any of the victories we have had."

Johnson said he had discussed the troop problem Thursday night with Westmoreland. He then recalled that he had previously considered and approved what he called "recommendations of the joint chiefs of staff for the force level in Vietnam."

"Gen. Westmoreland," Johnson said, "tells me that he anticipates no increase in that level."

The buildup to 525,000 men is supposed to be accomplished by mid-1968, but Westmoreland has been reported seeking a speed-up to maximum strength before that time.

As of last Saturday, the American troop strength in Vietnam reached 470,000 men, only 2,000 short of the peak U.S. strength in the Korean War 14 years ago.

Congressional sources quoted Westmoreland Thursday as being optimistic about the war's progress and as believing a troop reduction may be possible within two years. But he indicated no early end of the fighting is in sight.

Debray and Bustos were arrested April 20 in Muyupampa, a small town not far from here, as they were leaving the guerrilla zone. Arrested with them was George Andrew Roth, photographer of British and Chilean background, who was declared not guilty and released in the early days of the trial.

At the time of the arrests, it was believed about 60 guerrillas were operating in the southeastern section of the country. Bolivian military patrols had suffered major setbacks in two clashes with the guerrillas, losing a score of dead in less than two weeks.

MADE HEADWAY

Since then, the Bolivian amy has scored repeated successes in its efforts to track down the guerrillas, and military authorities now believe the movement virtually has been eliminated.

The trial has been marked by frequent delays, by the expulsion of four journalists for alleged partisan reporting and by dramatic appeals for Debray's release from numerous groups and individuals such as President de Gaulle of France.

Debray's father, a conservative aristocratic Parisian, came to Camiri shortly after his son was taken into custody and stayed until last month.

Regis asked his father to leave, saying the ordeal was not a family matter but his alone to resolve.

The court said the four Bolivians were freed because they had left active guerrilla service when captured in March.

The prosecution had asked 30 years in prison for Debray, 20 for Bustos. The Bolivians freed were Salustio Choque Choque, Ciro Algaranaz, Vicente Rocabado and Pastor Barrera Quintana.

Debray and Bustos, 35, had denied the specific charges although admitting sympathy for, and connections with, the guerrillas' leftist cause.

. . . MEDICARE

The position of most provinces is that if some avail themselves of medicare they also will have to or their people will be giving taxes for something they are not receiving.

Mr. Sharp has made it clear in his austerity statements that Ottawa will not borrow to pay for medicare but will finance it through increased taxes.

Ontario suggested that it opt out of the medicare program but use the money it was entitled to to tackle top priority programs such as housing.

The province maintained that medical insurance is already available to the people of Ontario at reasonable rates — the province has its own plan — and that it should be allowed to use its share of the money for other problems with greater priority.

A provincial spokesman said they did not expect the argument to be accepted but felt it indicated Ontario's desire for priorities.

The federal plan has not been overwhelmingly favored by the majority of provinces from the moment it was proposed — Alberta and Manitoba, and British Columbia at the outset, were particularly critical of the compulsory feature.

Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin sent a wire to Prime Minister Pearson repeating his case that the federal government drop the requirement that provincial plans cover 90 to 95 per cent of the population, and contribute to voluntary plans providing coverage for only those in need.

It was not expected that anything definite on medicare will emerge before Monday.

Unions, Paper Talking

VANCOUVER (CP) — Talks resumed today between Pacific Press Ltd. and three of its four craft unions.

Ed Benson, general manager of the company that prints the Sun and Province newspapers, said representatives of Pacific Press and the unions met on schedule at 10 a.m.

He confirmed reports of a work "slowdown" by some employees of the morning Province early today, which resulted in a two-hour delay in bringing out the paper.

Bargaining between the International Typographical Union, mailers union and stereotypers union had broken off earlier Thursday with no arrangements for further talks.

The unions rejected a company offer of a 50-cent-an-hour pay increase over two years.

STRIKE NOTICE

The unions and the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild have all served mandatory 48-hour strike notice on the company. It expired Wednesday,, but no strike date has been announced.

Negotiations with the guild broke off Wednesday and no further talks have been announced.

Mr. Benson said allegations that the company is importing strikebreakers from the U.S. to take over union jobs in case negotiations fail are "utterly false and without foundation."

In a prepared statement, he said:

"One newspaper production expert from the United States, who visits Vancouver newspapers regularly, has been instructing senior management officials and supervisory employees in the operation of certain basic machines.

"Pacific Press Limited considers it has a major responsibility to the community to try to ensure that newspaper publication continues without interruption."

Mr. Benson said the unions have brought in advisers from other parts of Canada and from the U.S. to assist them.

He added:

"Pacific Press wants no part of a strike. Our working conditions, wages and fringe benefits are among the best in Canada. In line with that background, we are prepared to negotiate until a fair and realistic settlement is reached. But a blanket demand for a 35 per cent increase is neither fair nor realistic in today's conditions."

STRACHAN URGES EXPANDED COVERAGE

Bennett 'Has Finally Seen Light'

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan claimed Thursday that Premier Bennett has finally seen the light shed on medicare by the NDP years ago.

He was commenting on a report that Mr. Bennett, in Ottawa for a finance ministers conference, had indicated he is willing to make changes in the B.C. Medical Plan if necessary to qualify it for a 50 per cent federal contribution next July.

Mr. Bennett Wednesday night told an interviewer B.C. will insist on Ottawa participation as promised and will, if necessary, amend present legislation to make the BCMP the only medicare agency in the province and perhaps to eliminate premiums.

"I'm all in favor of that," said Mr. Strachan. "This is what we have been fighting for and the premier has now come around to our estimate of what is required.

"I said this (consolidation of medicare under one government agency) is what would happen when the legislation was changed last year and it's obvious that if there's to be only one carrier then everyone in B.C. will be covered."

But Mr. Strachan added that he will insist the provincial government uses federal subsidies to increase medicare service "to include ambulance services and prescription drugs.

"The extra federal money must not go into enlarging the provincial surplus — as happened to the extra federal money intended for hospital insurance."

The current provincial budget includes $14 million for the B.C. Medical Plan's premium subsidies and stabilization fund and this is expected to grow next year.

But a 50 per cent federal grant for nine months of the next fiscal year likely would aid the B.C. budget by a minimum of about $10 million.

Police Pair Shot

ST. DONAT, Que. (CP)—Two provincial police constables were wounded, one critically, in a hail of pistol fire early today when they entered a nearby motel on a routine check.

The constables decided to check La Cuilliere—The Soup Ladle—motel on Highway 30, near this Laurentian area community 65 miles north of Montreal, when they noticed lights were still on in the early morning hours.

Four men were inside when the police entered, an eyewitness said, and the shooting broke out seconds later.

Const. Jean Pierre St. Yves, 26, was in critical condition in hospital with wounds in the abdomen and spine. Const. Jacques Marceau, 25, suffered bullet wounds in the legs.

Police quickly organized a dragnet and apprehended four men, all from Montreal. Police said "large sums" of money were found on them.

The four men were being held on suspicion of attempted murder and "further investigation."

An eyewitness said the four gunmen ran out after the shooting and sped away in a car.

The men, not identified immediately, were taken to Joliette, Que.

Quebec to Vote For Upper House

Appointments to Second Body Said Outdated British Idea

QUEBEC (CP) — Le Soleil says it has learned that the Union Nationale government plans eventually to make the legislative council, Quebec's upper house, an elected body. The 24 members of the council now are appointed by the government for life.

The newspaper says it also learned from members attending a Union Nationale party caucus at St. Johns, Que., that widespread changes will be made in the traditional ceremonies surrounding the opening of the legislature session and in rules of the elected 108-member legislative assembly.

The rule changes would be based on recommendations soon to be made by a committee of Union Nationale and Liberal members and would be enforced during the next session, expected to open about Jan. 10.

At the opening ceremony, the lieutenant-governor would simply declare the session open instead of reading in French and English the traditional speech from the throne prepared by the government. The speech would be read by the premir or, in his absence, by the speaker of the legislative assembly.

MAY LIMIT DEBATE

Debate on the speech from the throne would be limited to 25 hours.

The session would automatically adjourn at the end of June and resume, if necessary, in September to permit members to take their holidays in July and August.

Royal assent would be given to bills as soon as they have been adopted by both chambers. At present assent is given to bills in groups.

The assent would be given in the chambers of the lieutenant-governor instead of the legislative council as now is the case. The change was expected to mean that the legislative council would have to meet more frequently to handle legislation.

Le Soleil says the rule changes are aimed at making members "true legislators." They also would eliminate what are considered outmoded rules and traditions borrowed from the British monarchical system.

Representation in the council now is Union Nationale 14, Liberals 10. In the assembly Union Nationale has 56 members, Liberals 48 and there are four independent members.

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners of the game of the Monday Duplicate Bridge Club held at the Broughton Building clubrooms were: 1, Louise Duncan and Hilda Reid; 2, Sadie MacPherson and Freda Small; 3, John Bishop and Al Kallberg; 4, Joan and Duncan Smith; 5, Doris D'Amico and Howard Annis, George Morgan and John Dimitri (tie).

WORD AWAITED FROM ROMNEY

DETROIT (Reuters)—Political observers expect Michigan Governor George Romney to offer himself as a Republican presidential candidate here Saturday.

With the 1968 election still a full year ahead, the 60-year-old Mormon who once headed American Motors is expected to announce his candidacy at a breakfast here to which he invited 600 friends.

'Join Two Canadas By Chamber'

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec and the rest of Canada should be made into "two nations" joined together by a "confederal chamber" or parliament, a senate and a supreme court, the president of the St. Jean Baptiste Society of Montreal said Thursday night.

Yvon Groulx told members of the Montreal Richelieu Club that a constitution drawn along these lines would clear up present misunderstanding about the British North America Act by establishing clearly the existence of two states, one being based in Quebec and one in Ottawa.

St. Jean Baptiste societies are Quebec nationalist groups.

For Necessary Growth

VARIOUS COUNCIL MEMBERS in the city and the Greater Victoria municipalities have expressed alarm at suggested increases in the cost of library service in the district, but this is an area of community expenditure in which understanding and foresight are necessary.

The Greater Victoria library system is an essential element in our cultural and educational environment. Unless that environment is to suffer the library facilities must keep pace with the increasing needs of the people no less than with the numerical growth of the population.

The Greater Victoria library system is more than a downtown building filled with books. The library board is charged, not only with the task of operating the central library, but with extending branches to the member municipalities as soon as this expansion is feasible. Already two branches serve Central Saanich and Saanich, and two more are planned for Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

A library's book stocks cannot remain static. Large numbers must be added each year not only to replace worn-out volumes but to keep abreast of the public's demand for some of the thousands of new works which appear in an ever mounting annual stream. An important aspect of this work lies in the provision of books for children and teen-age readers, and the inculcation at an early age of appreciation for the many worthwhile returns that can be had from hours invested in reading.

It is recognized that library service is only one of a number of essential public facilities. But it is so important a part of our modern community life that hands should not be raised in horror at the news that, as with almost every other aspect of our lives, the costs of an adequate service are increasing.

The popular use of the Greater Victoria library and its branches and bookmobile is adequate evidence of the value placed on them by young and old in this community—and this high rate of use applies not merely to fiction but also to the many serious and informational volumes and to the reference department. We have here a flourishing asset, destined for still greater public service, and it should not be allowed to wither from lack of nourishment.

The Last Last Frontier

CANADA'S DELEGATE TO THE United Nations this week placed our country on record as being in favor of an "imaginative and yet cautious" approach to a proposal that the ocean floor—other than continental shelf areas—be internationalized. There is no doubt that the problem of regulating commercial exploitation and controlling military development in the ocean deeps requires imagination; but if caution is interpreted as long delay the game may be over before the UN has a chance to act.

The United States has accepted the principle that a committee should be set up to study the proposal, put before the world body by Malta — and incidentally the only new item on the General Assembly agenda this year. But an interesting article in the American magazine Business Week says that the United States will abstain from voting on any resolution that reserves the ocean floor exclusively for peaceful purposes and its potentially great riches for the advancement of under-developed countries. "The official reason," Business Week says, "is that considerable research is needed to define the bounds of the sea bed. Unofficially (Malta's) suggestion has brought howls of protest from Congress, the Defence Department and industry."

The United States' position is not difficult to understand. It is estimated that combined government and private spending on underwater research is now close to $700 millions a year. The take-off point to harvesting possibly vast deposits of valuable minerals is near. Those with a stake in the preparations don't want anything to hinder their exploitation of this wealth.

The military angle is even more critical for it is in the oceans, as Malta's Ambassador Pardo told the UN, "that the world may experience an immediate and rapid escalation of the arms race.

Ownership of the sea bottom, beyond the continental shelves, has never been fixed in international law. In July of last year, President Johnson warned that "we must be careful to avoid a run to grab and hold the lands under the high seas. We must be sure that the deep seas and ocean bottoms are, and remain, the legacy of all." The World Peace Through Law Centre, an organization of 2,500 lawyers and jurists from more than 100 countries, went further than this at a conference in Geneva last July and recommended that all non-fisheries resources beyond the continental shelves be placed under UN control.

There are at present only two world powers with the financial and technical resources to take dominant and competitive roles in exploitation of the ocean bed for military and commercial purposes — the United States and the Soviet Union. The other nations of the world—in their own interests — should give grave consideration to the consequences of failing to find some means to check what could well be explosive rivalry between the two super-powers in this almost unexplored and untouched area.

Age Makes the Crime

NO DOUBT THE PROVINCES will differ among themselves and with the federal government on some of the suggestions in a proposed new federal statute covering "young offenders." But on one point agreement will be essential: standardization of the legal age for juveniles.

This is a necessary reform because, under present conditions the statutory juvenile age varies from 16 to 18 years in different provinces, so that what is regarded as merely reprehensible youthful behavior in one province may be listed as a criminal offence if the person concerned crosses a provincial border.

The anomaly is clearly indicated in some cases of contributing to juvenile delinquency. To fit within the charge, the offence must be committed against a juvenile. But the victim can be a juvenile in one province and not in another because of the difference in legal juvenile age limits.

The proposals from Ottawa emphasize efforts to avoid creating criminals by keeping the young away from veteran law-breakers, by using probation rather than incarceration, and by trying to prevent repetitions of an offence rather than merely punishing the offender.

The intent of the prospective legislation seems generally satisfactory. Co-operation among provinces is highly desirable in this field. And in some respects, standardization of age in particular, action is sorely needed.

Sinking the Good Ship Lollipop

REALITY SEEMS TO HAVE gained ground on fantasy in the California open primary in which the former brilliant child star Shirley Temple suffered eclipse in her campaign to carry the Republican banner in a byelection.

Shirley, now 39-year-old Mrs. Black, who once held the hearts of millions in her chubby hands, has suffered a reverse counter balancing the achievement of Robert Reagan. Not even in the state of the film capital, it seems, does politics necessarily have a Hollywood ending.

TWENTY YEARS IN A HAIR SHIRT

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Fires to Clear the Ground in Britain

ON my last day in London I asked a famous professor of history from Cambridge to describe the current mood of his people.

"Sulky," he said. "Brittle. Confused. And lazy. Of course we've always been a lazy people but we can't afford it any more in this barbarous world."

Hutchison

Doubtless all this is true. Yet it is only part of the truth, as I tried to guess it on my furious and somewhat absurd travels about the country. Britain, I think, is not just sulky. It is good and angry—with foreigners, with its government, and, most of all, with itself. I take that anger as a sign of health. For when Britain becomes angry, as two world wars and other historical exhibits demonstrate, it is capable of almost anything.

'Just Wait'

Or in the words of a successful young scientist: "We'll be no use till the world has given us up as hopeless. Then we'll be okay. Just wait."

Britain's Canadian friends, I suppose, are waiting, though in the present state of their own nation they have no right to criticize the British, or any other people for that matter. As an ignorant visitor and incorrigible North American, I come home with no doubt about Britain's revival, not as a great power but as one the most agreeable and civilized societies on earth.

It often occurred to me, when I talked with nameless people in towns whose names I forget that their nostalgia for a lost Empire and the grand old days was lacking in perspective. After all, if you date the Empire from the fall of Quebec in 1759 it lasted less than two centuries—a mere blink in history's eye and doomed by the nature of things from the beginning. It differed from other empires only in its brevity, its wisdom, its constructive work all over the globe and in its voluntary liquidation.

Horse Sense Adjustment

Actually a Britain overshadowed by the two present super-powers and seeking ordinary membership in a new European union of some sort is returning, after an improbable detour, to normal. It is adjusting itself, with marvellous flexibility and practical horse sense, to the changed facts of power, which will keep on changing, contrary to the super-powers' plans and convenience.

Canada, too, must adjust itself to these facts, among them the fact that it can count no longer on British or Commonwealth power as a counterweight to the United States. Indeed, the English-speaking and only real Commonwealth means nothing, in my own view, unless it is riveted to the United States, not by treaties and commerce but by stronger bonds of understanding, common ideals and common interest. And the United States will need this friendship, before long, as much as we do.

That is another question which will answer itself in due time. Meanwhile, as the Cambridge professor says, the mood of Britain is strange, many-sided and hard to analyze. How could it be otherwise in a people who are compelled, almost overnight, to change the habits of centuries?

Deep Change

Already the change has been fast, deep and almost beyond belief.

To take the most obvious example, a Britain often considered old-fashioned, obsolete and unchangeable, has devised for its great scientific industries the finest technology in Europe, second only to that of the United States.

In politics (if we can look past the immediate partisan squabbles) Britain is conducting an experiment in democracy which other free countries will have to face in their turn, and may not manage nearly so well.

Or again, the dissolution of Britain's old caste structure, though slow and sometimes ugly, is creating a new type of egalitarian citizenship perhaps the most sophisticated and certainly the best-mannered in the world.

Not So Hopeful

That is one side of the revolution, enforced by loss of empire and carried on with a deceptive, untidy look of absent-mindedness, uniquely British. There is another side not so hopeful.

A great minster of state told me that the Labor government "must burn a big bonfire to clear the ground before the grass grows green again, and any government would have to do the same thing."

That, I dare say, is accurate enough as far as it goes. But the burning is by no means complete yet and according to the most intelligent man I met in Britain will take an entire generation or, as he said, "twenty years in a hair shirt till another generation arrives."

You can see at once what he meant when you observe the ridiculous obsolescence in some aspects of the British system.

Valuable but Obsolete

Yet they represent a valuable, though unhappily an obsolete, aspect of British life.

The Englishman, said Bagehot, is an "enjoying man." He has always known, as North Americans are only beginning to discover, that life contains more than work or wealth. In earlier times Britain could afford a genial, easy-going society (so long as it was satisfied to keep most of its population in grinding poverty as the servant of the glittering, idle upper classes).

The grim truth today, the truth underlying all the economic revolution and the political warfare, is that the luxury of a pleasant, inefficient life is beyond Britain's means. It may make good sense in philosophical terms. It makes no sense in economic terms when Britain must contend—merely to maintain its existing standard of life—with foreigners in Europe, America and Japan whose philosophy is quite different, harsher, more materialistic and brutally competitive.

To meet this competition in a new world more mechanized and richer, though evidently crazier than the old, Britain must surrender many of its familiar ways—not just in the daily physical business of earning a livelihood but in the average man's mental attitude to life.

Painful Surrender

The surrender is painful in all countries, including Canada, but especially painful in Britain where it must be executed at break-neck speed and where it runs counter to the deepest mores of venerable, settled and, on the whole, a magnificent civilization.

You can sense the pain of change more in the quiet countryside whose inhabitants have time to think, than in the noisy, boisterous capital whose thought must often stop, dead, in the traffic.

"We're falling to pieces," says an inn keeper in Shakespeare's town of Stratford. "The government's ruining us by giving all our money to the no-goods who won't work," says a hard-faced spinster who drives a government car in Kent. "They call themselves socialists but they're really Communists," says the living image of Colonel Blimp in a lovely Cotswold village, "and they'll wreck us before the Tories get in again."

Tribal Feeling

At first sight the fine art of British grumbling and self-disparagement is likely to shake the stranger. After a while, however, I began to see through it to a coherent quality which I can only call a tribal feeling, a sense of common ownership, a family instinct and an unconquerable strength in adversity not yet achieved in North America or probably anywhere else.

It is this inner thing without name or description that will bring Britain through all its troubles in the end. But I suspect that, economically at least, they will get much worse before they get better. The most hopeful portent in Britain, as I concluded, is that the people instinctively foresee their test, despite all the politicians' effort to disguise it, and by measurements far more significant than economics or politics they are prepared for it—perhaps better prepared than Canadians whose test is different, but just as difficult.

WELL, NOW I GOTTA FIND SOMEBODY TO CUT MY HAIR FOR A NICKEL AN' A DIME!

Looking Back

From the Times, Nov. 17, 1907.

Kamloops — H. Stein, alias Williams, the alleged murderer of Bob Williams, the Cariboo trader, was himself shot and instantly killed by Donald Gordon, a special constable, out with one of the chief constables of Fernie's posse last night.

He was killed in a gunbattle in the bush.

He had abandoned his horses and the police were of the opinion he had hidden in the mountains waiting for an opportunity to double back to Edmonton.

The Illusion Is Essential

By STAN McDOWELL
From Quebec City

THE Confederation of Tomorrow conference, opening November 27, in Toronto, might almost have been made to order to help Quebec negotiate a dangerous curve on the road to independent statehood. The recent policies and pronouncements of the Quebec government, and the whole political and administrative evolution of the province since 1960, make it unmistakably clear that the end of the road along which Quebec is now moving is political independence. But it is equally clear that the end of this road is not yet in easy reach — except perhaps by a very dangerous shortcut.

McDowell

A small minority consciously favors independence. Rene Levesque estimates it at 20 per cent. And some public opinion surveys have put the figure at only seven or eight per cent.

But there are many more people in the province who say they are against separatism but nevertheless want drastic constitutional changes that amount to the same thing.

Quebec's success in reaching independence more or less painlessly will continue to depend for some time on the survival of the illusion that developing Quebec into a "national state" does not necessarily mean pulling out of the Canadian federation.

That reassuring illusion cannot safely be dropped until the evolution toward independence has reached the point where it is more dangerous to turn back than to go on to the end.

Keeping that illusion alive in the meantime is obviously necessary, not only to reassure the population of the province itself, but also for the benefit of industrialists and investors whose misgivings about Quebec's political future could hamper the development needed to get the province ready to go it alone.

Ideal Means

The conference called for later this month by Ontario Premier John Robarts could be an ideal means of reinforcing this illusion that the people of Quebec do not have to choose between Canadian citizenship and national statehood.

And it is hard to doubt that it will serve this purpose, unless the other participating provinces approach it fully aware of the direction in which Quebec's "quiet revolution" is headed, of the reason why it is going that way and of the fact that accommodating the autonomist ambitions of the State of Quebec is not the only way of making up for injustices French Canadians have suffered in the past, although it may for the moment seem the easiest and cheapest way.

Historian Ramsay Cook recently put into two sentences the essence of the change that has oocurred in Quebec in the last few years:

"In the past the church had been the major institution of 'la survivance' (survival of the French-Canadian nation); today is is the state. That is the real, indeed only, revolution that has taken place in Quebec."

While Prof. Cook speaks as an outside observer, the point he makes has also been made, in only slightly different words, by a man who is performing a leading role in bringing that revolution about.

Claude Morin, Quebec's deputy minister of inter-governmental affairs and the leading mind in the shaping of the province's constitutional strategy, has said that "in the future, the people of Quebec will cling to their state as, in the past, they clung to their church."

In the past the most effective "state" at the service of the French-speaking collectivity of Quebec was the church.

Historically Separate

French Canada was, in effect, a separate nation. It was a nation based on shared religion, ethnic origin and language, not on a state and a clearly defined territory.

The separatism inherent in today's drive toward an ever-increasing political independence for Quebec is nothing new.

The "quiet revolution" is merely attempting to put the long-separate nation on a new foundation better suited to the second half of the 20th century. That foundation is to be a more or less independent state and territory of Quebec.

Having discovered the possibilities of the state of Quebec as an instrument of survival, nationalism has now become ardently statist.

And in discovering the possibilities of the state of Quebec, that nationalism also discovered the limitations of Quebec's powers within the federal system.

Having made this discovery, nationalism has now changed from a passive defence of Quebec autonomy to an active struggle to burst the limitations imposed on the state of Quebec by the federal system and to make Quebec the exclusive unfettered instrument of French-Canadian survival and progress.

In the words of members of the present provincial government, the goal is to make Quebec a "national state" with a "national territory."

The Robarts conference will help Quebec reach this goal if it contributes to the belief that a national state can be bought for a price less than a clean breakaway from Canada and if it fails to show that French-Canadian survival and progress do not need a national state in Quebec but could be assured by a genuinely Canadian quiet revolution.

War: A Savage Comedy

"How I Won the War"—which opened in Vancouver this week—is a savagely serious comedy which will offend and outrage many filmgoers.

It is intended to do this. It states the 1939-45 war wasn't worth fighting.

And it has already stirred up trouble: the two main British theatre chains have refused to show it—even though its cast features such stars as John Lennon, Michael Crawford and Roy Kinnear.

It is, critic Kenneth Tynan believes, the first film to reflect what many younger people really feel about the last war—and its continual celebration in print and on cinema and TV screens.

Here Tynan talks to director Dick Lester and producer Charles Wood.

Gut-shot Beatle John Lennon, one of the stars of "How I Won the War", in a scene from the controversial movie which takes absolutely all the glory out of combat.

Tynan: The two major British circuits have refused to give the film a general showing. Why?

Lester: We have no way of knowing. Perhaps there were ideological reasons as well as commercial ones. Possibly the complex form of the film seemed alarming or threatening to a certain age group. The average age of the moviegoer is about 25, but the average age of the people who decide what the moviegoer should see is probably around 60. Distributors and exhibitors like pictures that appeal to the lowest threshold of understanding. Our film has comedy and tragedy and satire and documentary reality, all mixed up together. It doesn't fit into any of their categories.

Wood: You know the old definition of comedy — that is a man slips on a banana skin, it's funny, but if he breaks his leg, it's not funny? What we've done is to carry it through to the breaking of the leg.

Tynan: What do you think of war films in general?

Lester: I think of movies like "Sergeant York," where someone takes a machine-gun and mows down 250 extras who clutch themselves and roll over in double somersaults in clean uniforms.

Wood: The joy of watching war films is their efficiency. You are seeing men efficiently killing other men, and you are putting yourself behind the gun and using it. In this way, you are seeing a lie. People, in fact, are not efficient machines, and they are not made to kill. Yet in every war film we see, they become machines, and they do it.

Tynan: How do you feel about anti-war films?

Wood: Stanley Kubick's "Paths of Glory" was very nearly an anti-war film . . .

Lester: Except that it was an argument between an incompetent French general and the hero, Kirk Douglas, who was an efficient, humane killer. If his advice had been followed, a lot of allied lives would have been saved at the expense of a vast number of other human beings. That isn't an anti-war film — it's simply an anti-inefficiency film. What it says is that wars are all right so long as Kirk Douglas leads us.

Wood: Comradeliness is always singled out in films as the saving virture of war. In fact, it is the saving virtue of life — it just happens in war. But people make such a fetish of it that they almost seem to be saying: "Without war, there would be no comradeship."

Lester: The tank-opera quality of war is appallingly exciting. Guns and planes and bullets are marvelous objects to identify with. Especially in a cinema — in the safe sancity of a place 20 years later with both your legs still on you.

Wood: Our film is not so much an anti-war film as an anti-war-film film. I hope it will make people have the wrong reaction to movies like "The Battle of the Bulge" and thereby reduce their effectiveness as propaganda.

Tynan: Could you name a really convincing anti-war novel?

Lester and Wood (in unison): "Catch 22."

Tynan: Were either of you ever in the army yourselves?

Wood: Dick wasn't, but I was. I volunteered to be a regular soldier in 1950, when I was 17. I was at art school on a grant, and the grant ran out. I knew I'd have to start my National Service in a few months' time, so in a moment of aberration I signed up for five years. Now and then I tried to get shot. I kept volunteering for places like Malaya and Korea, but they wouldn't take me. It showed I was a willing soldier, so they said: "We must hang on to him."

Tynan: What do you think was the most wicked thing the Allies did in the war?

Wood: Probably destroying Dresden.

Lester: I'd say dropping the second atomic bomb.

Wood: Yes, that was equal to Dresden. Another wicked thing was the way that the war altered the people who served in it. It gave them the most exciting time of their lives, and they're always harking back to it, using it as a yardstick for everything that's happened since. They can't look at anything objectively.

Lester: Once you've ceased to be an individual—because you've had to dress and behave in the same way as thousands of other people — you never totally become an individual again. That's why I think that films about wars have to be made by people who haven't fought in them.

Tynan: A lot of your film is semi-surrealist fantasy. How can that be as effective as the documentary approach to war?

Wood: The trouble with documentary is that it confines you. Whatever comment you make on events, you make as one person, as a reporter. Our method lets us make comments from all sorts of angles and from every character. We don't have to stay with the Second World War. We can see it in relation to the First War, and to Vietnam.

Tynan: The Russians were fighting a defensive war against the Germans. Are you arguing that it's immoral to defend yourself when you're invaded?

Wood: I can only answer that by saying what I feel about war, which is that there is such a thing as a just war until the first shot is fired, until the first person is killed, until the first filth starts. It's filthy from that moment on.

Tynan: Suppose you're a schoolteacher, and a Nazi soldier comes into your classroom to shoot all your pupils as hostages. You have a gun in your desk. What do you do?

Wood: I'd shoot the bastard, and then he'd shoot me, or his mate would, and then my mate would shoot him, and the filth would have started again. Of course one would defend one's children from being killed or one's wife from being raped. I'd be the last person to say otherwise, because when I was in uniform I would have shot anyone at the drop of my sergeant's hat. That is simply a terrible fact about the human condition.

Lester; There isn't an answer, and the film doesn't produce one. All it says is: "Share the responsibility."

Tynan: If it's always evil to kill people, should a North Vietnamese shoot down an American bomber?

Wood: I would/ if it came over our street. And I'd hate myself when I went and saw the mess. However, I'd still shoot down the next one. But I think nothing but good could come of a country laying down its arms. It's the greatest thing that could happen. If the Jews had just smacked Eichmann's bottom and told him to go home, it would have been a magnificent thing to do.

Tynan: One of the survivors at the end of your film is a coward who admits that the war had to be fought, but says that he had to leave the fighting to "Chaps who hadn't really got a reason." What sort of chaps do you mean?

Wood: About 95 per cent of people who fought the war.

Wood: The people who joined the army because their mates went, or because they felt they would become some strange kind of ostracised animal if they didn't. Those aren't sufficient reasons. It would have been different if somone had said at the start of the war: "Six million Jews are going to be killed, and you can save them." But nobody said that; Churchill always talked about The Empire. We didn't take up arms because of six million Jews. If we had, we would have dropped troops on Buchenwald instead of Arnhem.

Lester: The whole theme of our film is that if you go into Germany and don't find six million rotting Jews, you'd better take your pips off, because otherwise your own men will shoot you. That's the problem that faces the Americans in Vietnam. They know that if they go into North Vietnam, they aren't going to find six million rotting anything. There won't be any atrocities or justifications. There will just be mum and dad and the kids on the rice paddy.

Tynan: If you had been of military age in 1939, would you have fought?

Wood: Yes, because I wouldn't have been able to stand up to the pressures that would have come of not fighting. But I would have done the same if I'd been a German.

Lester: I made sure of staying out of the army in peacetime. Whether I'd have stayed out of it in wartime I just don't know.

Tynan: One basic complaint against your film is that, if it hadn't been for Churchill, you wouldn't have been able to make it. How do you answer that?

Wood: We aren't attacking Churchill as a person. We're attacking the idea that is called Churchill — the deification, the myth that surrounds him.

Tynan: What do you resent about "the idea that is called Churchill"?

Wood: The fact that he was a first-rate journalist, a third-rate actor, and nothing much else. Also the fact that every time we make a hero in this country, it's a war leader or a general. The only thing that seems to matter is whether we can breed people who win wars. Whereas the truth is that it's the easiest thing on earth to be a war leader — it's the least of the talents.

Tynan: Would you call courage a virtue?

Wood: Yes, but not necessarily in war.

Tynan: Is there a difference between courage and heroism?

Lester: Heroism, in time of war, is doing an act of valor which does not preclude the killing of other people. It would be courageous, in time of war, to avoid performing such acts.

Tynan: Your film mixes the wildest farce with the most extreme brutality. Is there any subject about which it's impossible to be funny?

Lester: For me, the only successful way to make a serious point is through comedy. You can't persuade people to stop speeding by showing them nothing but pictures of crashed cars. America is full of TV sets with the sound turned off and pictures of Vietnam flickering silently away at empty rooms. I've never set out to make a funny film or a tragic film: I just make films, and you can't separate what's serious in life from what's comic. The difficulty for a critic arises when he's about to say: "This is a funny film," and suddenly, in the middle of a laugh, he's told by the film-maker: "For Christ's sake stop laughing — this is horrible." There are moments in "How I Won the War" that make me physically sick to watch, and I want the audience to feel the same.

Tynan: As far as the public is concerned, the biggest name in the film is neither yours nor Dick's, but John Lennon's. How did he get involved in it?

Lester: At quite an early stage in the writing, both Charles and I began to see John in the role of Gripweed. So I went and told him what the film was going to be about, and he said: "I totally agree with what you're doing, and I will be in it." He accepted the part without seeing the script. He said afterwards on American television that he'd appeared in the movie because it was an honest attempt to say things he believed to be true. You can hear something of his attitude in the final track of The Beatles' "Sergeant Pepper" album:

I saw a film today, oh boy,
The English army had just won the war.
A crowd of people turned away,
But I just had to look
Having read the book.

Tynan: You would obviously like to change people's minds about war. Do you think you'll succeed?

Lester: I don't know. What our film is saying is: "All right, we accept the fact that sometimes you kill people, but for God's sake don't make it your finest hour. Don't turn the people who told you to do it into living gods. Don't revel in it, don't make money out of it, and above all don't feel so bloody proud of it."

Wood: Just shut up about it afterwards. All soldiers should wear black and slink about at night, especially those who have killed. They shouldn't be allowed to march in parades. Nobody who has killed has anything to boast about.

A Not-So-Happy Anniversary For the Liberal Government

By ANTHONY WESTELL
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA—Two years ago this month the federal Liberals were returned to office in the 1965 general election.

Although the Pearson government won only 131 seats — three short of a majority in the Commons —and failed to gain national support or even regional enthusiasm, the Opposition was in even worse shape.

The Conservatives obtained 97 seats and were surprised they had done even that well with discredited leadership; the New Democrats had failed to make the hoped-for breakthrough and the Social Crediters were divided into two parties and several factions.

The Liberal government, despite its weakness, seemed secure for four or five years. But seldom has an administration decayed so fast. With three years of its mandate still to run, the Pearson cabinet today is showing symptoms of disintegration that may be the prelude to collapse.

Although governments may be destroyed formally on the floor of the Commons or by the voters at an election, the real defeat is usually internal.

Cabinet ministers become weary with the burdens of office, overwhelmed by an unending succession of problems that sap their confidence, and they begin to think — at the very back of their minds — that a few years of comparative irresponsibility on the opposition benches might be refreshing.

Less Caring

They become irritable, fractious and, not careless but less caring about their jobs.

Government backbenchers, after a few years, become frustrated. Contrary to popular impression, they work very hard, but mostly as welfare officers for their constituents, and they have little time or influence to devote to the great issues that brought them to politics in the first place.

They know that something is wrong in the cabinet but they don't quite know what. They see their political stock falling in the country as problems multiply, and their morale sags.

What is uncertain is whether the Liberals are suffering merely mid-term blues or a deeper malaise already beyond cure. There are some special factors in the current situation which may pass away or even give birth to renewed Liberal spirit.

It was clear even in 1965 that the Pearson government won largely because there was no credible alternative. John Diefenbaker was not acceptable in Quebec or in Ontario; the public was not ready for the New Democrats and there was not much choice for many voters but to support, grudgingly, the Pearson government.

Munsinger

It was not an encouraging mandate, nor one to inspire strong leadership, and soon the cabinet was caught in the debilitating struggle over the Munsinger Affair which did nothing to improve its public stock.

For a period earlier this year, the Pearson administration showed signs of rejuvenation. Aided no doubt by the euphoria of the centennial celebrations, it appeared to have found its sense of direction and to be the confident spokesman for a country finding its own national confidence.

But the storm clouds soon closed in again and the winds of change blew harder than ever, buffeting the administration in bewildering ways.

The visit of President Charles de Gaulle stirred the national unity issue to a new violence which upset Mr. Pearson's timetable at a crucial moment. The crisis in NATO and the terrible bitterness of the Vietnam war had disturbing implications for foreign policy.

Economic problems, unprecedented not only in Canada but in many other countries, and little understood but deeply resented by the public, rose to confound Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp.

From all sides, ministers were advised to get-with-it, adjust to change, look lively, abandon the old ways, be modern — advised mostly by critics who found it easier to talk about change than to define its nature, who dismissed old methods without the responsibility of substituting new ones.

All this has raised, quite suddenly, new doubts about Mr. Pearson's position at the head of the party and the government. He still enjoys the affection and respect of virtually the whole parliamentary caucus and there is little prospect of a palace revolt to unseat him. But uncertainty weakens resolve.

Mr. Pearson had intended, early this year, to announce his retirement plans about now. The party would then have held a leadership convention as early next year as possible.

But Mr. Pearson became locked in — or allowed himself to be locked in — by events. The De Gaulle explosion forced him to speed up the timetable for constitutional reform, and he has set a major federal-provincial conference for next January or February.

He responded also, perhaps unwisely, to the deeply emotional plea of his party to continue in office at least until a solution to the unity crisis is in sight. The plea was particularly strong and convincing when it came from Quebec members who did not see among the candidates for succession a man as worthy of their confidence as Mr. Pearson.

Stuck for Now

The upshot, however, is that Mr. Pearson now appears to be fixed as leader at least until after the federal-provincial conference next year. He can hardly retire, or announce his intention to retire, when he is only weeks away from a crucially important meeting to which he has been moving since he became Prime Minister in 1963.

There is a school of thought that Mr. Pearson would be wise to appear at the conference as an outgoing prime minister, an elder statesman above the party battle and offering disinterested leadership.

It may have some appeal to Mr. Pearson, but it is hardly persuasive to outside observers. However distinguished and disinterested he might appear as an elder statesman, the fact is that elder statesmen do not possess political power. The leadership race would be on, and a new prime minister, perhaps with different ideas, would be discernible, if not indentifiable, behind Mr. Pearson's chair at the head of the conference table.

If Mr. Pearson cannot announce his retirement until after the conference next year, the leadership convention probably cannot be held until next fall. There would be time to organize it for late spring, but it would be hard to hold a campaign while Parliament was sitting, and the party would have to wait until the summer recess.

Uncertainty

The Liberals are looking forward with dismay, therefore, to a further long period of uncertainty. Some have even conveyed to Mr. Pearson their feeling that he must remove the doubt by making known his intentions one way or the other, although they don't seem to know just what they themselves want him to do.

Some Liberals also have the uneasy feeling that each passing month makes the candidates for succession less attractive.

As ministers, the candidates are of course associated with a failing government and this does not help their images. But television seems to have given new life to an old truth: familiarity breeds contempt. Ministers constantly exposed to the public begin to look, regardless of their merits, like tired old faces. They do not meet the demand for bright new packaging.

This may have been a factor in elevating Mr. Stanfield and Duff Roblin over the heads of Davie Fulton, George Hees and other old federal hands in the Conservative race.

Only two years after winning an election, the Liberals are in a difficult and perhaps critical condition.

If they can hold on, head the country past the unity crisis and toward constitutional reform early next year, iron out the kinks in the economic graphs and get themselves an attractive new leader, they could well take a long new lease on power.

But can they do all that before decay overtakes them?

OPTIMISTS SALUTE 'BOY OF THE DAY'

What's the matter with kids today?

Optimist clubs of North America say there's little wrong that a pat on the back won't fix. The Optimist motto is "Friend of the Boy".

Accordingly, clubs in Oak Bay, Victoria and the Evening Club have chosen six boys who are representative of their age groups. Each will be "Boy of the Day" during this week.

Friday's boy-of-the-day is Rodney Oliva Major, nine, shown here with his Optimist sponsor Ian Wallace.

Because of a hearing handicap, Rod attends special classes at Marigold School. He lives at 2938 Shakespeare and travels back and forth on an Optimist Club school bus.

His teacher says of him, "In the controversial field of special education, one of the few things of which we may be certain is the need for co-operation." She says Rod is a glowing example. He provides intelligence, a determination and enquiring spirit and a sense of humor.

"They help him overcome difficulties which would daunt most of us." He has many admiring friends.

Peninsula to Merge Civil Defence Units

A plan is afoot to amalgamate the civil defence organizations of Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney.

At present the municipalities each have separate civil defence units comprising of a co-ordinator, members of council and technical staffs.

Under the proposed scheme, there would only be one part-time paid co-ordinator.

Representatives from all three municipalities would make up the new civil defence organizations.

North Saanich has approved the merger while Central Saanich and Sidney are expected to deal with the matter at their next meetings.

New Fire Truck Not Cheapest Aldermen Told

The Victoria City finance committee Thursday morning approved the purchase of a new fire truck for $39,971.

The truck, a La France Metropolitan, will be delivered in approximately seven months.

City manager Dennis Young said although the La France was only the second lowest of three bids received it would be better in the interests of standardization to accept the number two offer.

Most of the city's existing fire equipment is from La France.

"It gives us an interchange of parts," Mr. Young said. "Also La France have mainland representation which means that for three days before we finally accept delivery one of their experts comes over here to check the equipment out completely with the fire department."

The low bid was $38,658 for a Thibault Custom B 356.

BUSINESSMAN SEEKS SEAT IN ESQUIMALT

Mr. Young, 45, of 868 Admirals, is the proprietor of the Esquimalt Meat Market.

He said Thursday he is "running for council, not against it."

"I'm generally satisfied and I wish to maintain the progress Esquimalt has made in recent years."

Mr. Young is one of five candidates who have declared themselves for three seats.

Two candidates, Art Mebs and George Agyle, are challenging Reeve Ray Bryant.

Saanich Holds Closed Meeting On Colquitz

A closed meeting was held Wednesday afternoon in the Saanich municipal hall on the recently announced Colquitz watershed pollution study.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said it was an informal meeting including specialists from the University of Victoria who will give their advice to the Saanich study.

Future meetings would remain closed since they are of a technical staff nature, Reeve Curtis said.

Whatever recommendations are made as a result of the study will be reported in full to Saanich council where they would be open for public debate.

The reeve did not know when such a report might be made, but suggested the committee may be meeting from time to time over a period of two years.

NON-ESSENTIALS

Slash Spending, Say Grits

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's six Liberal MLAs called on the provincial government Wednesday to eliminate non-essential government spending.

They made the call in a statement issued by Liberal Leader Ray Perrault following a meeting of the Liberal caucus in Vancouver.

The statement said Premier W. A. C. Bennett's recent request that labor and management restrain prices and wages could not be taken seriously unless the provincial government is prepared to slash non-essential spending.

At the same time, they said, assurances were needed that essential hospital and school construction would proceed and that the government would attempt to meet B.C. housing and unemployment crises.

"The time for governmenlal responsibility is here. That means trimming the fat from government luxuries and using the funds saved for essential purposes," said the statement.

This would be "more convincing than tirades against other jurisdictions," said the statement.

. . . TENTIONISTS

"The mental babarism, and I don't believe that's putting it too strongly, that characterizes executions and the awaiting of executions should have no place in our society."

If man took upon himself God's right to punish, he must also take upon himself God's promise to restore, he said.

Seventeen men now are under sentence of death in Canada.

Richard Bell (PC—Carleton) asked whether the government will carry out the law if the bill is defeated.

"Mr. Speaker, if this bill is defeated, then the law of Canada will be carried out," Mr. Pearson replied.

Asked by George Muir (PC—Lisga) how he could support a limited move to abolition if he felt the gallows was purely retaliatory, the prime minister replied that "three-quarters of a loaf is better than none."

"I hope that we will have total abolition before long."

LAST IN 1962

The Liberal government has commuted all 27 death sentences brought before it since taking office in 1963. The last execution in Canada was a double one Dec. 11, 1962, in Toronto's Don Jail.

A free vote April 5, 1966, on a bill to abolish capital punishment altogether was defeated 143 to 112 in one of the heaviest votes in recent years in the 265-seat House.

Mr. Cowan, a Liberal renegade and perhaps the staunchest retentionist in the Commons, lashed out at the cabinet for its policy of commutation and for bringing capital punishment to a vote for the second time in the same Parliament.

"I say that every one of these commutations has been illegal," Mr. Cowan contended in perhaps the most savage attack of the debate.

The death sentences of Georges Marcotte, who machine-gunned two policemen during a Montreal bank robbery, and Reginald Colpitts, who stabbed to death a Dorchester penitentiary guard, had been commuted.

MENTIONS CASES

The alternative in the bill of life in prison had meant an average term of eight years, 10 months and one day, he said, referring to 13 cases dealt with since the Liberals took office.

The bill would give a life sentence to a killer of women and children but if the same man killed a policeman or prison guard, "he will swing for it.

"The man or woman does not live who can tell me any policeman or prison guard is more important to this nation than my wife or daughters or my six grandchildren," he added, in an emotional pitch that drew applause from the mainly retentionist Conservative benches.

The proposed law said that a man could go to Rideau Hall and shoot the Governor-General or his wife and get "eight years, 10 months and one day."

"If any man shoots the policeman at the gate, he will swing for it.

"I ask you, why keep the Governor-General inside when he is not as important as the policeman at the gate.

"Let us put the valuable man, the policeman, in Rideau Hall and put the Governor-General at the gate."

The biting sally drew laughter.

HOME GARDEN

Prepare 'Mums' For Yule Blooms

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

To have fine chrysanthemums in bloom for Christmas a home gardener need only buy a few rooted cuttings in spring of late flowering varieties.

From then on, they would be treated much the same as outdoor earlies, even growing them in garden beds.

Some gardeners prefer to grow these late chrysanthemums in large pots right from the time the cuttings are available in May. This saves digging the plants from the beds in September and avoids any check in growth resulting from the move.

Feeding and watering was a constant need during the summer, and now that their plants are full of buds and some beginning to bloom, feeding can be discontinued but the need for water is just as great.

With the pots standing either on a porch, in an unheated greenhouse or shed, or perhaps in a conservatory-type room attached to the home, fresh air must be admitted throughout the day. Without it, flowers and foliage will be poor.

The plants grown in a temperature ranging between 45 degs. F. at night to 65 degs. in the daytime will come along more rapidly than those without any artificial heat, but the normal blooming dates for the varieties govern the sequence of bloom.

At this date, any new growths showing buds may as well be pinched off for they are unlikely to flower and only weaken those already producing buds.

Apart from the large flowered disbuds, an excellent strain of chrysanthemums for winter blooms under shelter are the Godfreys, with quantities of large single flowers in pink, biscuit gold, and dark red.

PROBE ORDERED IN QUEBEC

Trading Wave Drops Value Of Two Stocks $19 Million

MONTREAL (CP) — Trading in shares of Carbec Mines Ltd. and Matachewan Canadian Gold Ltd. was suspended from the Canadian Stock Exchange "pending a full investigation into the affairs of both companies by the Quebec Securities Commission" and the exchange.

The suspension became effective at the opening of trading today and follows a day of hectic trading Thursday that dropped the combined market value of the two mining stocks by more than $19,000,000.

Lowney G. Nicol, president of the two companies, said Thursday he had received threatening letters and telephone calls warning him to get out of the companies.

Matachewan Canadian Gold closed Wednesday at $2.70 and reached a low of 50 cents Thursday, closing at 64 cents. Carbec Mines closed Wednesday at $3.95 and toppled to 76 cents at one point in Thursday's trading before closing at 95 cents.

Mr. Nicol said he had received numerous letters of intimidation and threats to force him out of the companies. Mr. Nicol's spokesman said the threats have continued "both by letter and phone" since last July.

Mr. Nicol is former president of Midepsa Industries Ltd., a mining company with extensive fertilizer mineral deposits in Peru. The company now is owned by a major U.S. engineering corporation.

CLAIMS CONSPIRACY

A statement issued on behalf of both Carbec Mines and Matachewan Canadian Gold said "a conspiracy to undermine" the companies is said to have been uncovered and confessions obtained.

"These intimidations appeared to coincide with waves of selling in the two stocks," it added.

"The heaviest pressure started during the month of September and in one period of four days approximately 1,000,000 shares of Matachewan were literally dumped on the market.

"Since then the selling has been very constant in both Matachewan and Carbec. Every effort has been exercised to maintain the stock and protect the interests of the shareholders.

"In the last few days the conspiracy to undermine the stock prices had been uncovered and confession has been obtained from the parties concerned."

Commenting on the projects of the respective companies, Mr. Nicol said a feasibility study regarding a Carbec copper mining project in Zambia is nearing completion. He said details on the project in the African country would be made public in three or four days.

Meanwhile, Matachewan was continuing with its initial program on offshore claims in Nova Scotia. It would take some time for evaluation of several hundred samples taken from beaches and under the ocean.

Marcel Gagnon, a spokesman for the two firms, said Thursday:

"There is no question of the underworld having been involved in this situation. It was just speculators who wanted to get their hands on two very healthy companies.

"Legal action will be taken against those responsible and the evidence we have now is in the hands of our lawyers."

Bail Refused City Man Accused of Theft

Bail was refused one man and set at $10,000 for a second charged Thursday with breaking into the Union Centre on Quadra St. Tuesday night.

Bruce Newton, 22, of 2676 Foul Bay Road, and Rodney Leason, 25, Suite 3, 501 Niagara, elected trial by a judge without a jury.

They were remanded to Nov. 24 to fix a date for the preliminary hearing.

Bail was set at $10,000 for Leason. Newton was refused bail because he is awaiting trial on a similar offence in a higher court and was on bail when arrested.

New Election Ordered By Court

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court judge has ordered new election of directors for British International Finance (Canada) Ltd. of Toronto.

Mr. Justice Neil C. Fraser issued the order on a motion by BIF directors J. R. Findley and Maurice Jennings. The election was ordered to be held Nov. 24.

Last July 28, three company directors, Peter Charlebois, William Mollard and Andrew Wofford, were not re-elected to the board.

After they challenged the election, Mr. Justice Fraser ruled for the reconstitution of the BIF board as it was before the July meeting.

Mr. Findley and Mr. Jennings asked last month for a new election but the application was dismissed Oct. 10. A second motion by the two directors was heard Nov. 10 and Mr. Justice Fraser reserved judgment following a day-long hearing at Osgoode Hall.

Mineral Production Gain in B.C. Seen

TORONTO (CP) — Mineral production in B.C. is expected to increase by eight per cent this year over last says Donald L. Brothers, B.C. Mines and Petroleum Resources minister.

Mr. Brothers Thursday told the Toronto branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy that total production for 1967 should reach $370,000,000, $31,800,000 more than the 1966 record production.

Last year's increase represented a 20 per cent gain from 1965. "Copper is showing the greatest increase, crude oil now has reached second position and zinc will probably rank third," he said.

B. C. is fifth among Canadian provinces in the value of its mineral production.

"The only threat to continued expansion of resource development in the west is the Carter royal commission report on taxation," Mr. Brothers said. "If implemented by Ottawa it would drive away the millions of dollars of risk capital which is currently being poured into B.C. by foreign developers . . .

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — The flax market lost ground in trading today on the Winnipeg grain exchange, but still drew most of the moderate activity which was centered around oilseeds.

Rapeseed prices were somewhat irregular with the November contracts, which go off the board soon, showing weakness.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto, N.Y. Post Rises

Advances were posted again today on both the Toronto and New York stock exchanges.

AT TORONTO Inco jumped 1¾ to 119 and Pembina Pipe Line 1⅝ to 22⅛.

Aesbestos Corp. moved up 1¾ to 24, Thomson Newspapers 1 to 38 and Trans-Prairie Pipelines ¾ to 8¼.

General Products Manufacturing A fell 1½ to 98½ and Dosco and International Utilities ¾ each to 9 ad 38½.

In base metals, Denison advanced 1¼ to 78½ and Roman Corp. 1 to 27½. Rio Algom declined 3 to 33½.

Among western oils, Hudson's Bay Oil jumped 2⅜ to 41½, Central-Del Rio 1 to 20⅝ and Canadian Superior Oil ⅜ to 43½.

AT NEW YORK the market made good its third straight daily advance and its second straight week of recovery.

Granby was up 3, Dome 2⅛, Inco 1¼ and CP 1⅛ among Canadians. Hudson Bay was down 1½, Distillers ½ and Alcan and Massey ⅛. Prices were mostly higher on the American exchange. Scurry lost ⅞ and Javelin ⅛. Fargo and Brazilian were up ⅛.

AT MONTREAL gainst and losses were about evenly matched in trading today.

International Nickel and Denison were the trading highlights. Inco jumped 2⅝ points to 119¼ on volume of 2,302 shares. Denison climbed 1½ points to 78½, rallying from sharp losses made earlier this week.

Imperial Oil dropped ½ to 66½, and Bank of Nova Scotia and Imperial Commerce ⅜ each to 13⅝ and 12.

AT LONDON heavy pressure on sterling and general confusion that followed the chancellor of the exchequer's refusal to comment on Thursday's reports of further loan negotiations, brought substantial selling of industrial shares on the stock market today.

There was little trading in gilt-edged stocks and prices were easier. Overseas banks raced ahead on currency fears. Royal Bank and Toronto-Dominion added 5s. or 6s.

Dollar stocks were firm. Inco was strong. Others to lead the way ahead were Hudson Bay and Noranda.

AT VANCOUVER gains and losses were about even on the mining section at noon today.

Brenda was up .10 from Thursday's close to $7 and Giant Mascot put on the same amount to $1.30. New Imperial gained .10 to $3.25.

Dynasty dropped .10 to $6.90 and Western Explorations was off .02 to .78.

In the industrials B.C. Sugar was up .50 to $43.50.

U.S. Balance Of Payments Deficit Slips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. balance of payments deficit slipped a bit further into the red during the third quarter of 1967. On the most-widely used accounting system — the liquitity basis — the deficit rose to $670 million from $550 million in the second quarter, both figures seasonally adjusted, according to the commerce department's preliminary figures.

Although the department said that this represented "a minor deterioration," the announcement was followed by these actions:

● The U.S. government said that its "voluntary" program for 1968 to reduce the flow of investment money abroad would be tightened.

● President Johnson named an industry-government task force, headed by Robert M. McKinney, publisher of the Santa Fe New Mexican, to come up with suggestions for increasing foreign travel here. The travel "gap" cost the U.S. 1.6 billion dollars last year. Suggestions that would curb U.S. travel abroad, or limit dollar expenditures abroad, have been rejected by the administration.

● Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler told a news conference that the widening payments deficit made the president's tax increase "indispensible" to protection of the dollar. Fowler's reasoning is that without a tax increase, inflation will take hold, thus making U.S. exports less competitive abroad.

The adverse balance for the first three-quarters of 1967 now stands at $1,750,000,000 — or well over the total of $1,357,000,000 for the entire year 1966.

Bank Executive Hunt Continues

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The search for a chief executive officer for the Bank of British Columbia continues, effectively delaying the hiring of permanent staff.

Bank secretary D. M. Clark said Thursday the executive officer is being sought from among possible candidates in many parts of the continent, but it was hoped the man chosen would be Canadian.

The bank's directors think the chief executive should have a say in the engagement of staff, hence the delay in hiring.

Mr. Clark said it is hoped the bank will be in operation "as soon as possible," which previously has been taken to mean early in 1968.

A total 510,555 shares were subscribed for, realizing $12.763 million capitalization.

A Vancouver-based company launched into the international sphere in an attempt to take advantage of the travel boom has formed a new alliance in Europe.

Captain International Industries Ltd. has rights to an electronic room service machine, the Bell Captain, that dispenses up to 15 personal need items and automatically bills the room guest through a front desk connection.

The guest pays for such items as toothpaste, small bottles of liquor, shaving needs and shoe laces from a machine in his room as he settles his account on check-out.

Hawker Siddeley Canada has an agreement with Captain International to make 500 of the machines for use in hotels and motels across the continent and abroad.

Captain International was formed in 1961, changing its name twice before settling on the present title. Its president is Keith Baldwin, who points to hotel-motel industry expansion projections for the next four years supplied for several European countries by the Canadian government.

The new link is between the parent firm and a British-Swiss company, Bell Captain S. A. of Geneva and Whitehall Court, London, which has marketing and servicing rights for Europe.

It is owned 50 per cent by Captain International and general manager is W. R. Anderson. Exclusive rights have been granted in Britain and Ireland to Phonographic Equipment Co. Ltd., of London, and its QuickMaid Services Ltd., which is active in the food and beverage business.

An initial order of 78 machines has been given on behalf of Bell Captain S. A.

Surveys indicate a western world uranium shortage by 1973 due to limits of production as seen today.

Canada is already under pressure to agree to export contracts that will commit even more uranium supplies than are now tied up in Japanese and British markets.

Production capacity, according to a study of the uranium committee, Canadian Nuclear Association, is less than 40,000 tons while power plant demand will be more than double that by 1980.

City Businessman Will Retire Soon

Retirement of Courtney Haddock as manager of its Victoria department store was announced today by Woodward Stores Ltd., ending 44 years of service with the company.

The move is effective Jan. 31, coinciding with Woodward's fiscal year-end, and means Mr. Haddock will relinquish the post of company vice-president.

His replacement as store manager will be Horace Drew, now serving as manager of Woodward's Guildford store in Surrey, which opened a few months ago.

Prior to that Mr. Drew was New Westminster store manager, and before that he coordinated food services for the department store chain and handled buying at Woodward's Toronto office.

IN HOSPITAL

The move was announced as Mr. Haddock recuperates in Royal Jubilee Hospital from a minor operation.

He came to Victoria in 1951 to open and manage Woodward's specialty store in the downtown business district. When the company decided to expand the operation he was instrumental in obtaining the site for Mayfair shopping centre on north Douglas Street, where his office is today.

Before coming here Mr. Haddock was widely known as an authority on English chinaware, for which he was buyer and department manager in the Vancouver store for 22 years.

Prior to that he was a men's wear clerk and before joining Woodward's was a vacuum cleaner salesman who took courses at a business school.

An unorthodox business figure, Mr. Haddock is a staunch free enterpriser who believes in qualified shock treatment for governments and the business community to keep them alert and working in the public interest.

As he turned over the job of president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce to his successor two months ago, he lashed government spending and chided tourist operations for not supporting their industry financially.

The retiring manager has been anything but retiring in public affairs and community effort. He is now chairman for the second time of Royal Jubilee board of directors, chairman of Salvation Army advisory board and Vancouver Island heart foundation; he has been cited for his work for the tri-university capital fund drive and Jubilee building campaign; he is a past commodore of Victoria Power Squadron, is an organized hockey booster and ardent fisherman.

Carter Defends His Tax Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Kenneth Carter Thursday defended the tax system he has advocated for Canada and rejected claims that it would be impractical, socialistic and damaging to the country.

But the chairman of the royal commission on taxation made one candid admission in a speech to the Ottawa Canadian Club. Some recommendations, as critics suggest, lack political acumen, he said.

"I felt it was most important that recommendations be made wholly in the interests of the country and without regard to the election of our politicians.

There is a possibility Kansas City may field a team in the eastern division of the Pacific Coast League next year, Dewey Soriano, PCL president, said Thursday.

Kansas City lost its American League entry when owner Charlie Finley took his franchise to Oakland last month.

Soriano said there have been preliminary discussions about the Washington Senators setting up a working agreement with a new triple-A team.

Kansas City would replace Indianapolis, which is moving to the International League, Soriano said.

HORNETS BUZZ AGAIN— CLEARED FOR CUP FINAL

Cleared for action by the lifting of a temporary suspension, Mount View Hornets were ready to charge onto the turf at Macdonald Park this afternoon to battle Port Alberni for the Vancouver Island high school soccer championship and the Times Trophy.

Hornets had been suspended pending discipline of a few of their students who were included in a group of fans who verbally abused and jostled game officials following a controversial decision Tuesday as Mount View nipped Victoria High 3-2 in the city final.

The school agreed to procedure suggested by the Greater Victoria Senior Secondary Schools Athletic Association and Hornets were immediately re-instated.

Alberni coach Denny Grisdale rates his present side as "much superior" to the team which lost to Vic High two years ago.

Casper's Surprise Becomes Helpful

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP)—The team of Billy Casper and Don Collett and Ken Still playing with Ray Floyd grabbed the first round lead of the $115,000 Scotch Golf Championship with six-under-par 66s Thursday.

Tied for third with 67 were Howie Johnson-Lee Trevino, Pete Brown-Lee Elder, and Dick Martinez-Bob Lunn.

Bunched at 68 were Al Balding and George Knudson of Toronto, Marty Fleckman-Babe Hiskey, Jerry Steelsmith-Dick Lytle, Jerry Edwards-Jack Montgomery and Wes Ellis-Bert Weaver.

The team shot six birdies and four of the birdie putts were made by the Texan. In addition, Collett almost sank a No. 7 iron shot on the 10th hole, where the ball stopped just six inches past the cup.

Their 34-32 round came on the par 36-36—72, 6,881-yard La Costa Country Club Course.

The tourney is unique in that the partners each hit drives, then select the better one for further play. Then they alternate shots until the ball is holed out.

IN GRID PLAYOFFS

Fan Nonsense Not Tolerated

(Times News Services)

Allan McEachern, acting commissioner of the Canadian Football League, has adopted a "get tough" attitude for controlling actions of fans during playoff games.

McEachern has informed the four clubs still in the running for berths in the Grey Cup final at Ottawa Dec. 2 that the home club is responsible for crowd control.

"I recommend a substantial fine be assessed against the home team if lack of crowd control interferes with, or prevents, completion of any playoff game," McEachern said in a message to participating clubs.

Calgary Stampeders, who open the best-of-three Western Conference final Saturday at Calgary, have already issued a warning to their fans.

Stamps have announced that any spectators who set foot on the playing field "will be escorted from the park — not back to their seats."

Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders open their western final Saturday, with the game scheduled for television over CTV, starting at 1 p.m.

Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger Cats launch their two-game, total-point Eastern Conference final Sunday at Ottawa with CBC television cameras due to go to work at 11 a.m.

GREY'S GRANDSON

When the big day comes in Ottawa, the Grey Cup will be presented by the grandson of Earl Grey, governor-general of Canada when he presented the trophy for football competition in 1910.

Harry Middleton, son of Lord Grey's second daughter, is due to arrive in Canada from Britain four days before the national final and will present the cup to the champions.

A series of storms from the west could spell trouble for the Ticats and Rough Riders.

The Ottawa weather office today said present indications are that Sunday will have temperatures in the high 30s with no rain or snow "but this could change suddenly."

"It depends on the timing of the storms."

Ottawa had a second sunny day today after a Tuesday storm dumped 6.8 inches of snow on the area. Friday's forecast calls for occasional snow or rain, with temperatures about the freezing point.

Soccer Must Explain

NEW YORK (AP) — A hearing into organized soccer's ban of the National Professional Soccer League has been scheduled for Nov. 27.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan ordered professional organized soccer Thursday to show cause at the hearing why it should not be ordered to end its boycott of the NPSL.

The injunction had been requested by the NPSL as part of its $18,000,000 suit against organized soccer.

Defendants in the suit are the Federation International de Football Association, the world governing body of the sport; the U.S. Soccer Football Association, the American ruling body; the United Soccer Association, the NPSL's rival league which has national and world sanction plus the Canadian Soccer Football Association.

A half dozen NPSL players have been threatened with suspension in England because of their association with what was called an "outlaw" league. Although it did not receive the sanction of the USSFA, the National League last season fielded teams in competition with the United Association.

Packer Halfback On Injured List

NEW YORK (AP) — Green Bay halfback Elijah Pitts has been put on the reserve list and is lost to the Packers for the season, the National Football League office announced.

Pitts suffered a torn achilles tendon against Baltimore Colts Nov. 5.

NFL publicity director Don Weiss said that placing Pitts on the reserve list, instead of the more familiar 30-day injured waiver list, required no waivers from the other clubs, but would make him subject to non-recallable waivers.

"That means that if someone claimed him, he's gone," Weiss said. "It's so risky that I can't ever remember a team trying it."

Senators Sign Bobby Hofman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bobby Hofman, 41, former New York Giants' infielder, has signed on as a coach with the Washington Senators.

Hofman, a coach with Kansas City Athletics the last two years, is expected to take over the third base coaching assignment.

Milwaukee Games Approved for Cubs

CHICAGO (AP)—The American League has approved a Chicago White Sox schedule of nine games to be played in Milwaukee next season.

The Sox will meet every other league team once.

Plans for the games were disclosed earlier this week by Arthur Allyn, White Sox owner, who said league approval would be needed.

Rangers Clipped By Philadelphia; Seals Gain Tie

By The Canadian Press

Expansion teams in the National Hockey League raised their percentage against the veteran clubs a fraction Thursday by refusing to bow in the two games played.

Oakland Seals maintained their two-game undefeated string by tying Detroit Red Wings 1-1 and Philadelphia Flyers clipped New York Rangers 3-2.

The tie didn't do Oakland a great deal of good at the bottom of the Western Division, although they now are tied with St. Louis Blues, but it did move Detroit into second place in the east, a point behind Toronto Maple Leafs and a point ahead of New York.

The Flyers used their victory to vault Pittsburgh Penguins and Minnesota North Stars into second place in the west, two points behind leading Los Angeles Kings.

HOWE SLIPPING?

While 22-year veteran Gordie Howe was held without a goal for the fourth straight game, Gary Jarrett scored his third of the season for Detroit and Alain Caron his second for Oakland.

In Philadelphia, the Flyers got goals from Leon Rochefort, Ed Van Impe and Ed Hoekstra while Reg Fleming and Rod Seiling scored for New York.

The Flyers also got an outstanding game in goal from Doug Favell, out for five games while Bernie Parent tended net. He handled 32 New York drives while the Flyers were pumping 18 shots at Ed Giacomin.

But in the last period, with the Rangers trying desperately to catch up, he turned aside 12 of 13 drives to keep the Flyers ahead.

GARY SPARKLES

Another rookie, Gary Smith, was the difference between a loss and a tie for Oakland as he held Detroit at bay in the final period.

In goal for the Wings, Roy Edwards allowed just his third goal since replacing Roger Crozier three games earlier.

So far this season, the six expansion teams have played 34 games against the six veteran teams of the league.

In pre-season consideration, it was thought the veteran clubs would wreak havoc among the newcomers. But such has not been the case.

NOT BAD . . .

With 10 victories and three ties to their credit, against 21 wins by the veteran clubs, the expansion teams have a solid .382 percentage going for them.

NHL rookies for the most part, the new six can probably look forward to increasing this percentage as their players gather the experience and confidence necessay to compete on even trms with the veteran clubs.

Looking into the future, Toronto president Stafford Smythe Thursday said there even now was consideration of expanding the league again by a further six teams.

The Leafs announced Thursday that Jean-Paul Parise, called up for their Wednesday game against Boston Bruins, has been returned to Rochester Americans of the American League and that centre Dave Keon probably will miss Saturday's game against Chicago Black Hawks. He's still limping with a charley horse.

In the only game scheduled tonight, Detroit is at Los Angeles to make another stab at first place in the east while the Leafs are idle.

COUGARS ON WAY . . .

Vernon Player To Sit Out Six

Tom Williamson won't be able to say hello to Victoria Cougars tonight.

Cougars are on their way to Vernon for a B.C. Junior Hockey League date with Essos.

Williamson may be around, but only in an unofficial capacity. The Vernon player has been handed a six-game suspension for striking a fan with his stick during a game in Kamloops on Nov. 1.

The sit-out took effect Wednesday.

The game in Kamloops erupted in the final few minutes, with players and fans alike becoming involved in a brawl. The incident apparently was triggered by eggs thrown during the game. Police finally were called to break up the melee.

Tonight's game is the first of a three-game Okanagan tour for Victoria. They play in Kelowna on Saturday and wind up the road jaunt with a game Sunday in Kamloops.

Orange State Feels Poll a 'Sour Lemon'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) Florida State University football coach Bill Peterson, stung because his squad is not ranked nationally, said Thursday he may go before the Football Coaches Association with a complaint about news agency polls.

Peterson, at a press conference, said he feels a select committee could be named by the organization to look into the polls, determine what criteria are used and whether certain guidelines should be established.

"I understand the system. But the system is not right."

The FSU Seminoles are 6-2-1, having won six straight after losses to Houston and North Carolina State and a tie with Alabama. North Carolina State was ranked No. 10 in The Associated Press poll this week. Houston and Alabama were not ranked.

Peterson said he believes his squad has the best passing game among U.S. colleges. The latest polls, leaving his team out after a 38-15 conquest of Virginia Tech, made his players angry, he said.

Britain Can't Retreat From Open Tennis Plan

LONDON (AP) — British tennis officials said Thursday night there can be no going back on their decision to defy the international rules and stage an open Wimbledon tournament in June.

Six weeks ago, the British Lawn Tennis Association council decided to go it alone, abolish the distinction between professionals and amateurs and throw tournaments open to all. That is a direct breach of the rules of the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

So far only two countries—Sweden and France—have officially reacted to the British plan. Both supported open tennis only in part.

The Swedes proposed calling a special meeting of the international federation to consider Britain's rebellion.

Derek Penman, chairman of the British association's rules committee, said "it could be we will try and get together with Sweden and France to thrash something out."

The council's proposals for open tennis still have to be ratified at the annual meeting of the British Association Dec. 14.

Council Handles Bid for Olympics

The Metropolitan Toronto council, with the concurrence of Toronto and its five boroughs, took over handling of the application this week.

Skiers Believe Snow In Wrong Province

MONTREAL (CP) — John Platt, coach of Canada's national ski team, says that his athletes may have to move to Eastern Canada to prepare for February's Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France.

The team had to cut short a scheduled week of skiing in Western Canada last weekend because of the lack of snow. Quebec received more than three inches of snow in a Wednesday storm.

"We were skiing on rocks for the last day or so," Platt said at the opening of a ski show here. "We can't take a chance on that happening again next month."

What it means is that Nancy Greene and her mates may have to come here early next month to try and get in a couple of weeks training in the Laurentian Mountains before heading for Europe in mid-December.

All matches start at 2 p.m.

Victoria O'Keefes, leaving the soccer scene to the District League because of Saturday's date in Vancouver's Callister Park, came in for some bright news Thursday.

GIVING IT A TRY

Veteran Barry Sadler, who suffered a possible bone chip in an ankle last weekend, may be available for netminding duty. It was first feared he may be sidelined for some time, but Friday Sadler was given medical approval to play.

He has been undergoing treatment and will start in goal Saturday against UBC Thunderbirds providing there is no pain in his ankle.

O'Keefes, for their first visit to Callister, will be without fullback Dave Stothard because of illness in his family. Russ Ball will replace Stothard on the last line of defence.

Saanichton Clubs Play Three Games

Saanichton teams will be in action during all three Peninsula Basketball League games scheduled Saturday night at Saanichton Agricultural Hall.

Saanichton pre-midget girls will face Brentwood at 7, the midget boys tackle Cordova Bay at 7:45 and the bantam boys meet Brentwood at 8:30.

Shawnigan Clubs Thump Oak Bay

Oak Bay High School was soundly beaten in two exhibition rugby matches Thursday against Shawnigan Lake School, losing by scores of 16-6 and 14-0.

Oak Bay's points in the game between first teams came on a try by Brian Thomas and penalty goal by Glen Myles. Shawnigan came out on top through two tries by Brian Paul, single tries by Rick Bourne and Bruce Trethway, and two conversions by Ivor Fairweather.

John Randall paced the Shawnigan seconds to the 14-0 win by scoring two tries.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Resident of Victoria for only one year, Ruth Crow has made impressions in city bowling circles. Ruth has earned women's five pin award in Times Bowler of the Week competition by rolling 220-355-234-809 series at Gibson's Recreations.

Steele Defence Wrecks 'Indies'

Colony Inn worked behind Steele armor Thursday night at Lansdowne Junior High School and broke into a first-place tie in the Victoria Senior's Men's Basketball League.

Trailing by one point at halftime in a battle with the front-running Independents, the Innkeepers forged in front as the Independent attack was all but wrecked by the great defensive play of big Ed Steele.

With three minutes remaining, Colony was out in front by 11 points and from there it was a desperate struggle to protect the margin against the charging Independents.

Colony barely made it, pulling out a 58-57 victory and moving into a deadlock for the top berth.

Steele also contributed 14 points to the Colony attack, which was paced by Jim Cunninghame (18 points).

Darrell Lorimer hit 21 for Independents and Rick Williamson, who collected eight in the final few minutes, fired 12.

In the other league game played Thursday, Jack Lusk drilled 30 points for Red Lion Inn, but the effort wasn't enough to keep the winless Lions from dropping a 73-60 decision to Farmer Construction.

Fred Rubbles sparked Farmers with 23 points. Ken Baker and Denis Horn each added 13 and Bob Tomlinson contributed 15 for the Lions.

Grocers Repulse Killarney Threat

VANCOUVER — IGA Grocers moved into sole possession of first place, two points ahead of the idle Victoria Chinooks and CYO Saints Thursday with an 88-79 victory over Killarney.

Grocers were paced by Gary Kalmas with 17 points, Steve Woods with 16 and Don Redmond with 14. Gary Elliott with 20 points and Eric Guthrie with 16 led for the losers.

Killarney, which plays the winless University of Victoria Jayvees on Victoria courts Saturday and Sunday, missed a chance to move into a four-way tie for first place.

Kelly Sparkles For Hot Gulls

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — San Diego Gulls extended its winning streak through a sixth game Thursday night by whipping Phoenix Roadrunners 6-2 before 4,491 Western Hockey League fans.

The Gulls, which broke the game open in the last period with four goals, were paced by veteran Al Nicholson who scored twice.

Other San Diego marksmen were Alex Faulkner, Len Ronson, Ed Ehrenverth and Fred Hilts, the league's leading point-getter.

Brian Smith scored for the Roadrunners in the second period to slice the Gulls' 2-0 first period edge in half. But the visitors scored three more in the third period before Del Toppoll got Phoenix's second marker.

Roadrunners pelted San Diego netminder Dave Kelly with 41 shots but he refused to yield under pressure that included 16 shots in the final period.

Basketball Seeks Solution . . . . . . To Pay Gym Rentals

BOOM CREATES PROBLEM

By ALAN WHITE

Success breeds problems.

Basketball is flourishing in the Greater Victoria region. There are more than 600 players registered this year with the Victoria and District Basketball Association.

But the bigger the game gets, the harder it gets hit.

A recent meeting of the association, which deals with all leagues from senior to minor ranks, disclosed that heavy gymnasium rentals are "hampering the sport."

Negotiations are in progress between the Victoria School Board and area municipalities for "some sort of relief," the association said.

Meanwhile, all agree that basketball is reaching a new popularity peak in the region.

Victoria Chinooks report increased attendance in their home Inter-City Junior Men's League games, and greater crowds have been turning out to watch Rawlings' senior women's games.

Two community basketball leagues will be launched in the New Year to accommodate "the tremendous number of youngsters" wanting to play the game. These leagues will involve boys and girls under the age of 12, in co-operation with schools in the Richmond and Rock Heights areas.

To help alleviate a mounting and worrisome rental problem created by expansion, fund-raising efforts will be held throughout the season, association vice-president Bob Bird said.

Racing Mourns Dancer's Death

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Native Dancer, thoroughbred horse racing's Big Gray who counted the Preakness and Belmont Stakes among his 21 victories in 22 starts during a spectacular three-year career, died Thursday following an operation for a blocked intestine.

Owned by Alfred G. Vanderbilt of New York the horse died at the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary Hospital after veterinary surgeons operated for a tumor that had choked off about 10 feet of small intestine.

Native Dancer won $785,240 during his career. He was retired to stud at Sagamore Farms, near Baltimore in 1954. His $20,000 stud fee was the highest in the world for a privately owned stallion.

His offspring, which include Kauai King, 1966 Kentucky Derby and Preakness winners, have won over $4,000,000 to this year.

Only once in his life—he was 7-5 in his first start as a 2-year-old—did the son of Polynesian-Geisha go off at more than even money. Three times he was a 1-20 favorite.

In his loss to Dark Star in the 1953 Kentucky Derby, the Big Gray got bunched in the pack early in the race and was unable to work his way out until late in the race.

Denied the first jewel of racing's Triple Crown, Native Dancer came back to win the final two events, the Belmont Stakes and the Preakness.

Native Dancer was 17 at his death.

Belkin Bows To Newcombe

BRISBANE (Reuters) — Wimbledon champion John Newcombe of Australia scored a 7-5, 6-4, 8-6 victory over Canadian Davis Cupper Mike Belkin to reach the semi-finals of the men's singles in the Queensland lawn tennis championships here today.

Another Canadian eliminated was Mike Bolton of Vancouver, beaten 6-3, 6-1 by Australian Phillip Dent in the quarter-finals of the boy's singles.

Belkin, a native of Montreal, gave Newcombe a tough 110-minute battle. With his double-handed backhand working smoothly, he frequently passed the Wimbledon champion across court and down the lines.

Athletics' Owner Faces New Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles O. Finley, owner of the new Oakland Athletics in the American Baseball League, was sued for $10,000,000 Thursday by a concessionaire, the Twin City Sports Service, Inc.

Judge Roger Peckham of the U.S. District Court granted a temporary order forbidding Finley to enter any agreement for concessions with the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Complex, Inc. which leases the 50,000-seat Coliseum to Finley. Judge Peckham will hear arguments Nov. 27.

Finley, recently granted permission by the league to move his franchise from Kansas City to Oakland, referred the matter to Robert T. Nahas, president of the Coliseum complex.

The suit said Twin City Sports Service, Inc. has a contract with the Athletics, dated in 1950 when the team was in Philadelphia, but binding on the team anywhere until 1976.

Former Marine Retains Crown

The 27-year-old champion, now living in Tokyo, suddenly ended a close fight with a flashing right uppercut and a left hook to the jaw that dropped the 30-year-old challenger for the count.

It was the 23rd knockout in 30 pro bouts for the mustachioed champion. Fuji has a 28-2 won-lost record.

The air-conditioned Ambassador is a great success...and that's our problem. We had to build some without it.

You've caught us by surprise. We never figured that so many people would respond so quickly to the idea of air conditioning at no extra cost. Sure, it makes life just wonderful in the summer and sure it makes the heating system that much more efficient . . . but to get swamped with orders?

As a result, we couldn't get air conditioners fast enough. And we couldn't shut down the assembly line. So, as much as we didn't like the idea, we had to build about 1200 Ambassadors without air conditioning.

Our dealers have orders to sell these cars as quickly as possible and at sizeable discounts! We have solved the shortage so the Ambassadors we build from now on, and the Ambassadors you'll see in showrooms from now on, will have air conditioning at no extra cost.

If you feel you can put up with the heat for a little longer for the sake of an exceptional deal, see your nearby American Motors/Rambler dealer. But don't put it off. The discounts are substantial, so these cars will be sold quickly.

Commons Told U.S. Destroying Vietnamese

OTTAWA (CP) — A brown-robed buddhist monk told the Commons external affairs committee Thursday that the U.S. may be trying to save the Vietnamese "but they are not saving us, they are destroying us."

Thich (Venerable) Nhat Hanh, a native of Dalat in central Vietnam, said the U.S. must give a clear commitment to withdraw from Vietnam before any peace talks can begin.

The U.S. was in Vietnam because of fear of China. This fear was based on imagination. Vietnam did not fear an invasion from China.

He has been a professor of religion, editor of a Buddhist newspaper and a director a publishing house. He is the author of 14 books, including collections of poetry.

Mr. Nhat Hanh said friends have warned him not to return to Vietnam because his outspokenness in opposing the war might endanger his life.

He said the Sept. 3 election in South Vietnam was "political chicanery."

Testifying in French and English for 2½ hours, he said the election was marked by censorship, suppression of free speech and manipulation to exclude the most likely peace candidates.

The description of the election by 22 official observers appointed by President Johnson as "reasonably fair" was "a travesty of the word fair."

"The present government of South Vietnam remains in power only because it has the direct military and economic support of the U.S.," he said.

"If that support were withdrawn, the present government of South Vietnam would not last a week."

CLAIMS CORRUPTION

The U.S. was dropping heavier loads of bombs on Vietnam than it did in the Second World War. The livelihood of millions had been destroyed. There was "terrible corruption" in South Vietnamese society.

The Vietnamese were weary of the war and more and more people were turning in despair to the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

An observer from the U.S. embassy took notes during the committee hearing.

Most committee members said the monk was being tough on Saigon and the U.S. without being equally harsh on Hanoi.

Mr. Nhat Hanh said he would not like to see Vietnam become Communist and that he realizes atrocities have been committed by both sides.

But Washington, not Hanoi, was causing most of the suffering. "The unpopularity of Washington in Vietnam is something you can touch," he said.

Youth Drinking Ends Dances At Courtenay

Drinking among children aged 12 to 16 has reached "serious proportions" at Courtenay.

Courtenay Recreation Association director Herb Bradley said the association has been forced to ban all dances previously attended by this age group.

Mr. Bradley criticized parents for lack of control of their youngsters. He said attempts to gain parental co-operation in curbing drinking by youngsters have been fruitless.

He said chaperones at CRA dances have been subjected to abuse by youngsters who have been drinking. Attempts by CRA officials to control the situation have been useless, he added.

NEWSPAPER VENDOR'S ESTATE $1,250,000

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—A man who with his twin brother spend most of his life selling newspapers on Peoria streets, has willed an estate exceeding $1,250,000 to four charitable organizations. Frank Hartman, 79, died Sept. 29. His twin, George, died in 1964. For most of their adult lives they bicycled throughout Peoria selling newspapers. Frank Hartman's will was filed for probate Wednesday.

New Class of Sailboat Easy to Build

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

There will soon be twenty hulls abuilding, the vanguard of a new one-designed class in Victoria.

The 18 foot sailboat is designed to be campaigned as a racing single-hander, but is also large enough to take a family day-sailing.

Hewett

Featuring low cost and simple construction, the boat can be assembled in 80 working hours for approximately $400.

It owes its most unique and practical attributions to its catamaran design. The assembled unit is completely demountable, with each hull weighing only 30 pounds.

This enables the boat, or even two or three boats, to be car-topped, rather than trailered. With obvious advantages, including the facility or re-assembling and sailing from an unprepared beach. Or any place where there is water.

The design will be based on English Cat designer John Mazzotti's new "A" Class Unicorn. The boat will be modified to suit our local conditions and construction materials.

Hull construction is of plywood in two panels "stitched" together with copper wire. The keel joint is then fibreglassed. Mast and main beam utilize aluminum tubing. A trampoline serves as a deck.

If built in a basement, it can be removed through a window, as the largest section measures only 12" x 18" x 18'.

This una rigged-cat sails on a Portsmouth yardstick of 72. The English racing boats have either a trapeze or sliding seat.

Organizer Doug Beer is currently building the prototype boat. Tentative arrangements have been made to rent a large shed so that the other boats can be put together on an assembly line basis.

SHORT TACKS: Listening in at the catamaran meeting chaired by Doug were Harry Lovett, Rick Todd, Robin Spear, Bill Whitby, Brian Woodward, and Marilyn de-Frane. John Ganton, who is currently building a cruising catamaran, was appointed treasurer of the group. Seventeen attended . . . Catamarans are being considered for inclusion in the sailing events of the 1972 Olympic Games. Also under consideration is an offshore racing class . . . A new season brings a new executive slate for many groups. Recently elected were Dave anstey as president of Thunderbird Fleet no. 4, and Rear Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes, Ret'd. as president of California 20 Fleet No. 13 . . . Now we have anotheh helming member of the formidable family Halls to contend with. Sid's new bride Ann placed a very creditable 6th in Davidson Fleet last Saturday. For her racing debut, she borrowed Hump Goldby's Blue Chip . . . A fellow is hard pressed to make the rounds of all the racing stations in a single weekend. Last Sunday, Mike Weir crewed for Charlie Pash in the morning Turkey Head race, and then whipped over to RCNSA for his regular stint in Uniqua 420's. He's also spring and summer crew aboard Peter Moore's Hilunga.

QUAIFE SPEAKS OUT

'Why Should Mayoralty Go Unchallenged?'

DUNCAN—Jim Quaife has his detractors as a candidate for the mayor's chair.

They say he's a young man who wants to spend ratepayers' money like it was going out of fashion.

Maybe $30,000 for a Teen Town Hall? He is adult adviser to the youth organization.

Jim Quaife is 33, married and with the responsibility of parenthood—he and Carol have two young children.

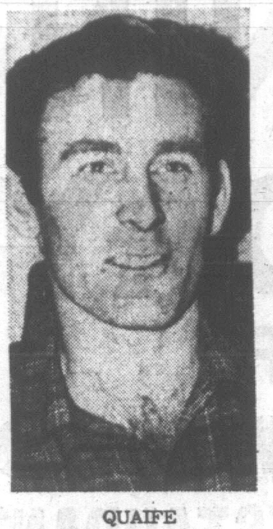
He knows the burden and responsibility of paying city taxes.

Why, without previous council experience, is he running for mayor rather than alderman?

"I think people are willing to elect someone willing to offer a progressive outlook to the community," he says.

"And I feel the office of mayor should not go unchallenged as it has the past 12 years. It's a good opportunity to bring my views and those of my opponent (Ald. Hamish Mutter) into the open and rouse political interest in the city."



QUAIFE
...'rouse some interest

Mr. Quaife said he believed people in public office a long time have a tendency to forget where their obligations lie.

"After a while they take it for granted they're on council but members must maintain a line of communication between city hall and the ratepayers."

About the spendthrift accusation, Mr. Quaife said there is no reason why recreation facilities cannot be developed on a regional basis.

"There's no reason why the city should have to bear a substantial increase in rates to supply these facilities.

"Our wonderful new hospital was built by the financial co-operation of four areas, Duncan, North Cowichan, Lake Cowichan and Koksilah."

He said the provincial government will have to pay a larger proportion of steadily increasing education costs.

"We can have a progressive approach in the city without great expenditures. A lot can be done with proper leadership," Mr. Quaife said.

"We have suffered from an apathetic attitude on the part of local government and the people."

Mr. Quaife promised to work for co-operation with North Cowichan and other areas.

He said this would mean the establishment of joint service boards for water, sewage, fire protection, recreation development and regional planning.

TEEN-AGED ACTRESS BIG HIT

DUNCAN — A teenaged actress, Sandra Bell, stole the show Thursday when Duncan Drama Club opened a three-night run with Enid Bagnold's "The Chalk Garden."

She portrays a capricious girl leading her grandmother by the nose in a brooding household where the governess is a woman who served time for murder.

The players get their teeth into the production after first act falterings and it makes an interesting offering to local playgoers.

The Bill Bennett production is being staged at Mount Prevost School.

'UNACCEPTABLE'

Alternative Asked To Dredging Plan

LAKE COWICHAN — The water rights branch of the B.C. lands and forests department will be asked to produce an alternative flood control scheme for the Cowichan River.

The council unanimously opposed a $200,000 plan to dredge the river now being promoted by the water rights branch.

Coun. Bert Brown said it is unnecessary for the B.C. government to be thinking in terms of $200,000 for flood control work.

At a council meeting, he said:

"Damage to the village by flooding has been estimated at $8,000. I have studied the proposed measures thoroughly and I find the plan unacceptable from a financial angle."

"MUCH LESS"

Coun. Archie Greenwell said the affected areas in the village could be filled to bring up the level of the ground, "and we could do this for much less than $200,000."

Meanwhile, Duncan Chamber of Commerce learned the water rights branch and the wildlife branch of the recreation and conservation department will meet Nov. 20 to discuss the dredging proposal.

LAKE COWICHAN

School Board Chairman To Retire

LAKE COWICHAN — Archie Greenwell, chairman of Lake Cowichan school board since 1942 when he was first elected as a trustee, is retiring.

His retirement comes in the middle of his 13th term and will mean an additional vacancy in December.

Mr. Greenwell plans to continue as a member of Lake Cowichan village council.

His resignation is prompted by health considerations.

His deputy, Don Hammond, says he will make no announcement about possibly running again until Monday.

Mrs. Kathy Sharp and Bill Thompson will seek re-election.

In village council Chairman Mrs. Mildren Child is not yet declaring but Councillors Boyd All and Herb Halliday are running.

CANDIDATE LOWERS HIS SIGHTS

PORT ALBERNI—Accountant George Dunbar, who planned to run for mayor, has decded to run instead as an alderman.

He explained that when he announced 10 days ago his intentions of running for mayor there was no apparent opposition to the mayor and deputy mayor (Les Hammer and Fred Bishop).

"I felt since their campaigns are to be based on personality only, the electors should have some alternative.

"But (ex-mayor) Jordon's entry will provide this alternative, so there is no need for my name to stand," he said.

CHECK THOSE PAW PRINTS

Cougars or Wild Dogs? Islanders Want Answer

By ED GOULD

GANGES — The statement by author Eric Roberts in Saga of Salt Spring Island that "the last cougar was shot here 10 years ago" is open to question.

Hardly a week goes by that a sheep rancher, hunter or woods stroller doesn't report seeing, hearing or smelling one of the big cats.

SWIM OVER

Mr. Akerman, whose family has been here for nearly 100 years, figures cougars swim over from Vancouver Island to feast on his sheep. Other Islanders contend they are not cougar at all, but big dogs that have gone wild.

First of all, what is a cougar anyway? Depending on which country you reside in, it is a puma, a panther, a mountain lion or a jaguar. In other words, it is everything but a Morris Minor.

From nose to tail it spans seven to 12 feet in its stocking feet and running flat out can chase Harry Jerome up Jim Ryun's back.

NEVER FORGOTTEN

Its nocturnal scream once heard is never forgotten. It is Screaming Lord Sutch, the English rock roller, with his G note caught in the wringer. It is Dizzy Gillespie blowing high C in a wind tunnel.

It is so excrutiatingly painful to the human nervous system it could scare long underwear off a clothes line.

The first time I heard a cougar scream I was caught in a moonlit, outdoor privy near Elgin, B.C. The noise raised hackles big as coughdrops right down to my ankles.

SHOT BY FARMER

My father, a natural-born skeptic, insisted it was only wind blowing through a hole in the tarpaper. A night later, a cougar was shot by a farmer up the road.

So much for background information qualifying me as a cougar expert. Now to deal with the case at hand.

This week a visiting professor, here on leave of absence from University of British Columbia to write several scholarly books, was cycling along a wooded path when he saw what appeared to be a cougar, or the largest dog he'd ever seen.

Later in the week, he noticed huge paw prints around his house and worried that cougar may have been stalking him while waiting for deer on a nearby game trail. He sent casts of the prints to a government expert in Victoria.

The report came back confirming that the prints were cat-like and "probably" a cougar. He phoned the RCMP who told him to check the findings with Max Akerman.

Max asked if the prints "showed claw marks" and the answer was affirmative.

"They're not cougar then," Mr. Akerman said.

Apparently a cougar withdraws its claws except while climbing trees.

CONDITION ONLY FAIR

CHEMAINUS — Mrs. Eva Tallman, 47, of Chemainus, is in only fair condition in hospital after a Thursday afternoon accident.

RCMP said she had just stepped off a bus on Willow Street and was making to cross the road behind it when struck by a car driven by Mrs. Karen Duncan, of Chemainus.

ALL LEVELS: McGILL REPORT

Students May Get Voice

MONTREAL (CP) — A 24-page report issued by the board of governors and senate of McGill University Thursday night called for full student representation at all levels of university government.

The committee, which worked on the report for 18 months, recommends that three students sit in as full-time members of the senate.

It also calls for increased faculty representation on the senate, and for students to be included in all committees of the board and of the senate, the two highest decision-making bodies of the university.

Copies of the report were issued Thursday night to the McGill students' council, the McGill association of university teachers and the board. It had been tabled in the senate Wednesday.

The senate will not act on the report until it has heard representations from the other three bodies concerned.

Israel Retreat Plans Debated

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Prospects of Security Council agreement on a Middle East peace formula appeared remote today as United Nations members studied three rival plans. None of them were believed acceptable to both the Arabs and the Israelis.

The 15-nation council was moving toward a showdown on the proposals, but some delegates predicted that the ballot may not come until next week. Some members were awaiting instructions from their governments.

Britain came in late Thursday with a compromise draft. Both the Israelis and the Egyptians withheld comment on the British plan until they heard from home, but there were reports that the Russians gave the formula a cool reception.

The United States and India, Mali and Nigeria had already put in rival plans neither of which was acceptable to both sides.

On the motion of Ambassador George Ignatieff of Canada, the council adjourned until 3:30 p.m. EST today.

Lord Caradon introduced the British resolution after warning the council that the alternative to effective action on the Middle East was "too terrible to contemplate."

The British resolution calls for Israeli withdrawal "from territories occupied in the recent conflict" when Israel seized hundreds of square miles of territory from Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

It also affirms the need for an end to "all claims or states of belligerency," a reference to the state of war the Arabs have maintained against Israel since the Jewish state was born 19 years ago.

In common with the other two resolutions, the British draft would send a UN representative to the Middle East "to promote and assist efforts to achieve a peaceful and accepted settlement."

Foreign ministers Abba Eban of Israel and Mahmoud Riad of Egypt both restated their positions after Caradon spoke and both made clear they would stand by them.

Riad said Egypt was "absolutely firm" in its demand for complete and unconditional Israeli withdrawal from all captured lands. Eban said his government would insist on "secure and recognized boundaries."

CHRISTMAS CARDS ON SALE

Local UNICEF Group Sets $10,000 Goal

Christmas is pust round the corner.

The sale of a ten card box costing $1.25 means that UNICEF can buy enough BCG vaccine to protect 50 children from tubercolosis.

The cost of two boxes can pay for enough penicillin to cure 50 children of yaws, a painful and disfiguring disease.

Last year UNICEF provided health services, family and child welfare, nutrition programs, education and vocational training and emergency assistance to 117 countries.

And UNICEF greeting card sales round the world accounted for 10 per cent of the $50.4 million budget of the United Nations Children's Fund in 1967.

Last year Canadians bought more UNICEF cards per capita than any other nation.

Victorians contributed over $9,000 in card sales, according to Miss A. W. Eaton, head of the local committee.

Included among the cards this year are designs by Salvador Dali, Ronald Searle, William Thon, Ossi Czinner of Austria, Pekka Vuori of Finland and two Canadian artists Jean-Paul Lemieux and R. E. Masson.

UNICEF also sells an engagement calendear .This year the calender is composed of 54 reproductions of the most popular greeting cards of the past several years, all contributed by internationally known artists.

The calendar which sells for $2.00 also has quotations by renown authors of English and French to accompany the pictures.

The twelve volunteers at the UNICEF Christmas card office, Room 7, 749 Broughton Street are hoping to exceed last year's sales by a thousand dollars.

"They are already selling very well," says Miss Eaton, "And last year by Xmas most of our supplies were gone."

Orders may be placed by phoning 382-9312 or by sending requests with the necessary postage to the Broughton St. office.

'HORRIFYING IMPLICATIONS

OTTAWA (CP)—Solicitor-General Pennell was asked in the Commons Wednesday whether the RCMP is buying the "strange and satanic U.S. riot-control weapons shown Tuesday night during an hour-long CBC television program.

The question by Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) was ruled out of order before he could reply, however, Mr. Cleave protested that the program had "horrifying implications."

Hospital Must Pay $170,000

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto General Hospital and an anesthetist were ordered Tuesday by an Ontario Supreme Court judge to pay $170,000 to a woman who was left with the mentality of a seven-year-old child after a 1962 operation.

Elizabeth Ainsley, 32, was undergoing open-heart surgery when air escaped from a heart-lung machine connected to a vein. Her heart stopped beating and when doctors revived her, it was discovered that the air had gone to the brain causing a cerebral embolism.

Mr. Justice Donald Morand held Dr. R. L. Matthews, staff anesthetist, 60 per-cent negligent and said the hospital was 40 per cent to blame because of the actions of assistant anesthetist Dr. Robert Porteous.

Mrs. Ainsley remained at the hospital for a year before being transferred to a sanitarium in Guelph, Ont., where she has remained since.

Mr. Ainsley was awarded $25,000 damages for loss of consortium.

'Mr. Canada' To Lead March Through City

'WILL NEED SPIRIT OF TOLERANCE'

Council of Churches Eye Full-Time Director

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

Appointment of a full-time director of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches has moved a step closer.

The director may be a clergyman or a layman. But he will require executive ability, a flair for organizing and a spirit of tolerance towards churches of all Christian denominations.

Above all, he must be dedicated to the cause of ecumenism.

Before the Council of Churches begins looking for such a man, it must decide how much it can afford to pay him. And that will depend on how much Victoria churches are willing to contibute.

The question was discussed at a special meeting of the Council of Churches in Metropolitan United Church hall Thursday afternoon.

Clergy of most Victoria churches attended and it was agreed they should report back to their congregations on the need for an executive director to deal with the increasing responsibilities of the council.

Until now, these responsibilities have been carried by the elected president of the council, who is also minister of a church.

The current president is Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons of Centennial United.

"It is impossible for one man to serve the needs of his church and the affairs of the council as well," said Aev. Albert E. King, chairman of the council's fellowship committee.

"We have agreed that a full-time executive director is needed if our Christian churches are to draw closer in witness and in service."

As a guide to the future the council invited Rev. Dr. Lemuel Petersen, executive minister of the Seattle Council of Churches, to address the meeting.

He flew from Seattle accompanied by a Roman Catholic priest, Rev. John Mitchell of St. Thomas's Church, who works for the council on a part-time basis.

Dr. Petersen said the Seattle Council has a staff of six full-time employees — a director, an associate director, a bookkeeper, an information clerk and two typists. It also has a number of part-time employees.

The annual budget for the council is $80,000 a year, of which 60 per cent is raised by the churches. Thirty per cent comes from local businesses and individual donors and 10 per cent from social and recreational activities sponsored by the council.

Dr. Petersen pointed out Seattle has 200 churches and Victoria only 60.

"I assume you wish to begin with one full-time paid officer," he said. "His job would be to involve lay persons in all kinds of Christian activity.

"Later, as this area develops, you might find it possible to employ more staff."

Dr. Petersen said the director of a council of churches could be clergyman or woman, a school teacher, a business executive or a real estate operator.

"But he or she must also be dedicated Christian, ready and anxious to serve all churches in the cause of Christ."

Dr. Petersen said the Seattle council is controlled by member churches, and each member church appoints clerical and lay representatives to the House of Delegates' the council's governing body.

"The council has no legislative or executive authority over the churches," he said. "It's functions are advisory and consultative."

Answering questions from Victoria clergy, Dr. Petersen said the work done through the Seattle council is finanaced primarily on a pro-rata basis.

"We suggest an average yearly contribution to the council of one dollar per church member."

Woman Admits Theft of $73 Of Clothing

A 35-year-old woman pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Thursday to stealing a quantity of children's clothing from Eaton's Wednesday.

Gertrude Blacha, 423 Superior, pleaded guilty to theft over $50. The total value of the clothing was $73.14.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte told the court the accused has one child, is separated from her husband, and is on welfare.

"This is a proper case for a pre-sentence report," he said.

ON GORGE

Motel Purchase Advocated By Society

Purchase of Craigflower Motel on the Gorge waters by the government is advocated by R. B. Nash, president of the Victoria Historical Society.

The motel situated on the south-west side of Craigflower bridge is up for sale and already a Prairie syndicate is considering it's purchase, it was learned today.

Robert Houseman, its owner, is presently in California and is expected to return here this weekend.

Mr Nash said the property would provide the public with some additional waterfront and three approaches to the bridge.

On the north side is the government-owned Craigflower manor and on the opposite side of the bridge, south east, is Craigflower school museum.

GREEN BELT

"I think we should do everything to acquire property along the Gorge waters," said Mr. Nash. "It's unfortunate that a green belt was not planned for the waterway years ago."

He said the motel property could be used in conjunction with the manor.

The property was once the site of Hudson's bay grist mill, servant quarters and other buildings connected with the farm.

Datsun has re-invented the economy import! Compare the features of this dynamic car with anything in (or around) its price bracket. You'll find the new Datsun delivers more safety, more comfort, more reliability and more power. And here's why:

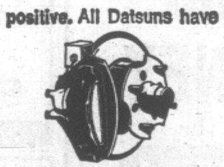
more safety

You can see better from the driver's seat in the new Datsun. The Datsun has increased visibility where it counts by eliminating the no-draft windows. (No longer necessary because of a unique ventilation system.)

Gone with the wind

There's safety inside the car too. Seat belts are standard equipment. The dashboard, sunvisors and even the backs of the front seats are padded. The door locks won't spring, even under extreme pressure. Both front and rear ends of the new Datsun are impact absorbing.

Stopping is quick and positive. All Datsuns have fine braking systems. The Datsun 1600 model has disc brakes up front. Hit them again and again at seventy. They won't fade. They'll bring you to a safe, smooth stop every time.



Disc brakes grip the rim

Road-holding ability is exceptional. Longer than previous models, the new Datsun has a wider stance and a lower centre of gravity. (Road clearance, however, is still seven and a half inches . . . ample for Canada's roughest roads.) Big wheels, aided by a great new suspension system, put more tire tread where it counts.

The Datsun's new suspension system is two thousand dollars out of its class. It is independent on all four wheels giving the car a wonderful floating ride. A split axle complements the rear suspension. In tight turns, the inside rear wheel won't lift but stays in contact with the road guaranteeing four-wheel traction at all times. A boon in icy conditions!

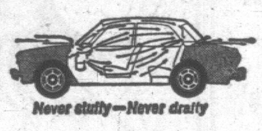
Floats over bumps

Puts safety in your corner

more comfort

Ingenious interior planning has given the Datsun true 'big-car' comfort. For example, the window glass is curved. RESULT: More shoulder room. There's also more leg room. (You can adjust the front seat a full six inches.) The attractive vinyl upholstery covers seats that are as soft and springy as you could wish.

But there's much more. Wait until you experience the Datsun's new ventilation system. It completely changes the air several times each minute as you drive. With no drafts. In any weather. With all the windows closed! (Cheerful news for non-smokers.) Two adjustable ventilators on the dash panel bring in the fresh air, and neat flowaway outlets in the rear roof pillars take out the used air. Enjoy your conversation or the radio, there's no road noise to bother you . . . no extremes of sweltering in summer or freezing in winter.



Never stuffy—Never drafty

On really chilly days, the Datsun's heater comes into its own. It is designed to handle Canada's severe winters . . . fills the car with a wrap-around flow of warm air that quickly clears frosted windows.

more reliability

Datsun is the most reliable small car on the road today. In 1967, it won the manufacturer's trophy in the Canadian National Rally Championship. And that's tough competition. (Along the way, Datsun beat all comers in the Canadian Winter Rally and took the team prize, as well as 1st, 2nd and 4th in class in the Shell Centennial 4000 Rally.) If you expect one hundred thousand mile reliability, you won't be disappointed.

more power

The new Datsun rides like a limousine and performs like a sports car. Ask any mechanic about its advanced slant overhead camshaft engine. This type of engine has fewer moving parts; is more efficient and flexible to bring you gas economy with powerful acceleration. Routine maintenance is practically nil. You change the oil in the transmission every 24,000 miles and never need a grease job.

There are two standard shift Datsuns to choose from. The thrifty Datsun 1300 has a three-speed, synchromesh box and 77 h.p. The bucket seat, stick-shift, 96 h.p. Datsun 1600 is ready to rally in any company, with a four-speed synchromesh box and 100 m.p.h. performance.

Plus an automatic. The Datsun 1600 is available with the world famous Borg-Warner automatic transmission for effortless city driving. With 96 h.p. you can be sure of smooth positive response in every range. Your new Datsun will give you better hill climbing and passing ability, more confidence in city traffic.

No matter what model you buy, you're still getting the more-for-your-money car. Check it out for yourself. Drive a Datsun—then decide.

PEDLAR REMAINS IN PANAMA JAIL

W. Germany Not Satisfied

By LUIS NOLI

PANAMA (AP) — The "finding" of another long-missing Nazi leader—former Gestapo chief Heinrich Mueller—apparently is another false alarm. But Panamanian authorities still are holding a shabby peddlar who looks like Mueller.

Investigations Chief Hector Valdes said Thursday he has reached the "firm conclusion" that the pedlar, arrested this week at the request of West German authorities, is not the missing wartime head of Adolf Hitler's secret police.

"He is just a goofy old guy who is not the man West Germany is seeking," Valdes said.

Valdes added, however, that the West German embassy in Panama has asked for an opportunity to furnish evidence supporting the contention of German officials that the man could be Mueller. He said the man will remain in custody for the time being.

PRINTS MATCH

The peddler says he is Francis Willard Keith, 61, born in Webb City, Mo. Valdes said a thumbprint of the man in custody matches a print of a Mr. Keith who arrived in Panama May 14, 1942, three years before Mueller disappeared in Berlin at the end of the Second World War.

Valdes said it also matches a thumbprint of a Francis W. Keith who worked in the Panama Canal Zone for six months in 1942.

Mueller last was confirmed alive in Hitler's Berlin bunker in 1945. Many Germans believe him dead.

Kiss on the Cheek For $110,000 Ring

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two masked men raided the penthouse apartment of wealthy Mr. and Mrs. Carling L. Dinkler today, took a 22-carat diamond ring valued at $110,000, and left Mrs. Dinkler with a kiss on the cheek.

Police said the robbery took place at the luxurious Palm Bay Yacht Club, which Mrs. Dinkler helped build in 1965.

Returning to the eighth-floor apartment after a United Fund dinner at the club, Dinkler walked into the bedroom and found two men waiting. He said each carried an automatic pistol with silencer.

"We're being held up, honey," the multi-millionaire owner of hotel chains called out to his wife, who had gone into the kitchen.

'U.S. BUYING BRITISH N-SECRETS'

LONDON (Reuters) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. seems to be trying to get British nuclear-research secrets by buying top nuclear scientists, Prime Minister Wilson said Thursday.

Wilson supported a charge of Technology Minister Anthony Wedgwood Benn that Westinghouse is trying to lure British scientists by offering inflated salaries.

'Survival Of Quebec Our Problem'

PARIS (Reuters) — Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville said Thursday night "French Canada is a French national problem."

Referring to French policies on Quebec, he told a dinner meeting it is a French problem "not because we have designs but because we are interested in the survival of that French community."

"It is our duty to show it our friendship, to give it our help," Couve de Murville added.

"France has never spoken of separatism," he said.

"We ask only that the French Canadians should have the same liberties and the same rights as the English Canadians."

On another point, the foreign minister said that when the United States overcomes its monetary difficulties and the Vietnam war ends "we shall become friends again."

Fish Derby Fraud Trial Set Dec. 21

WEST VANCOUVER (CP)—A 33-year-old Vancouver man charged with fraudulently claiming first prize in a salmon derby sponsored by Vancouver's evening newspaper, The Sun, was remanded to Dec. 21 for trial when he appeared in magistrate's court last week.

David John Chafe is accused of defrauding Pacific Press Ltd., publishers of The Sun, of a power boat and equipment valued at $3,500 on Aug. 30.

Magistrate Harvey Sedgwick adjourned the case at the request of prosecutor Lorne Topham.

Mr. Topham said he and defence counsel J. W. Motiuk had agreed on the postponement because of problems in obtaining witnesses for the trial.

OTTAWA, MONTREAL DEMONSTRATIONS

Stiff Protest Lodged by Russians

MOSCOW (CP-AP) — The Soviet Union Thursday strongly protested demonstrations earlier this month outside Soviet diplomatic buildings in Ottawa and Montreal during celebrations marking the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Diplomatic sources in Ottawa said the protest had been expected, but expressed surprise over its stiffness.

The protest, issued by the Soviet foreign affairs ministry, charged that the anti-Soviet demonstrations had occurred "with the obvious connivance of Canadian official authorities."

During the demonstration outside the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa Nov. 7, some 350 persons, many of them former East Europeans, threw rocks at the embassy and were reported to have insulted guests entering the building to take part in the anniversary celebrations. Rocks were hurled at the embassy's windows and the building was spattered with red paint.

The text of the Soviet note, carried by the official news agency Tass, said the Soviet government "insists on severe punishment for the initiators of and participators in the anti-Soviet provocation and on full compensation for the material damage caused to the Soviet mission."

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the external affairs department said the department had been advised by Canadian Ambassador Robert A. D. Ford of the protest. The spokesman said the protest "will receive careful consideration when the full text is received in Ottawa.

He noted that External Affairs Minister Martin already has expressed regrets to the Soviet embassy in Ottawa over the incident and the government has offered to compensate for the damages to the embassy.

The Soviet note, as reported by Tass, said Canadian authorities "failed to take any measures which they were obliged to take" to ensure the immunity of the embassy.

For a start on a pot-luck day, I trust you will join me in crying shame on purse-proud Toronto, which recently ordered Montreal to return the benches and trash cans borrowed for Expo use, or else make good on them to the tune of $40,000.

Now, a Montreal-based scout tells me, that city's telephone employees' association has started a fund to buy garbage cans for Toronto, "since they need them so badly."

Meanwhile, in a Greater Victoria determinedly peaceable in spite of the constant jeers and jabs aimed at her by high-and-mighty Vancouver, we are being treated to an internal broil of the sort that could only happen here.

It began when Hugh Curtis, who for my money is the best reeve distressful Saanich ever elected, gave a flat denial to the charge that his municipality smells.

The result was a deluge of rebuttals from Saanich householders—some of whom might help achieve purer air by looking to their septic lines—who insisted that the odors assailing them bore no relation to Chanel.

As a matter of fact, there are a few areas where the reeve might not choose to linger at the wrong time and season, but the general condition has improved considerably in our peninsular paradise. I'm all for sewers and so is the reeve; but a total cure is going to take time and plenty money.

Don't, though, confuse that occasional night and early-morning stench of rotten eggs with our Saanich domestic problem. The other is air pollution wafted down from Crofton, and is—or should be—the provincial government's problem.

Out today is a brisk four-page paper published for a reading audience of high school students, parents, teachers, and anyone else who can latch on to a copy. The sheet is called "Mosaic," and its first-issue run of 7,500 will, I trust, be snatched up in short order.

School board regulations forbid the distributions of Mosaic in the schools, but publisher Allard van Veen tells me that the publication will be available just beyond schoolgrounds, also here and there about the town.

Mr. Van Veen, a Uvic freshman, made it plain when he stopped by on Thursday that Mosaic is in no sense a school paper. It's entirely independent, stands for good and progressive education, and hopes to be non-political. It is given away free.

Student contributions financed its first run. The publisher hopes that sale of advertising space will help him and a high school staff with further issues.

The initial effort contains a criticism of high school counselling, an account of experiments in responsibility at Reynolds secondary, and word of a proposed B.C. Assembly of Students' opinion survey as to the rightness or wrongness of that well-publicized short story.

Five issues of Mosaic will, all going well, be brought out each school year.

Good luck, say I, and rough sailing!

If our sports car population appears to have grown over the weekend, be assured that it has indeed. For the first time in 10 years, Victoria Motor Sports Club will be playing host to the International Conference of Sports Car Clubs. Most if not all of the 140 delegates from the Pacific Northwest and Alaska will converge on the city in their trim little snarlers.

Conference clubs are dedicated to road racing over prepared tracks that would cause the average family-car driver to turn a pale green and hunt another route.

They consist mostly of esses (spell it "S's" if you prefer), hairpins and suicidal-seeming descents called deer-leaps.

Our local outfit jousts for championship hill-climb points twice each year on the road that twists to the summit of Mount Douglas—a route that offers some fairly convincing deer-leaps, hairpins and esses.

Automation Fears Called 'Red Herring'

Shingle union comments about automation were labelled "a blatant red herring" today by a spokesman for the management of McCarter Shingle and Shake Limited.

"I have never heard such absolute nonsense," the spokesman said. "The plant just started up in June and we had not even got existing machinery going to full production."

After a 30-union solidarity picket Thursday morning at the strike-bound mill, Shingle Weavers Union Local 2802 business agent Bruce Robertson said management had created much fear and suspicion among workers by not making clear its automation aims.

'MUCH MORE'

He also said the 17 employees on strike since Oct. 17 for a first contract want wage rates similar to others in the industry. The company has stated the union wants "much more."

The company spokesman said the union originally wanted $3.05 for primary splitters but this was increased to $3.25 an hour. For sawyers, it originally wanted 89 cents per square plus $1.05 an hour but raised this to 86 cents per square plus $1.50 an hour.

In addition, sawyers wanted a minimum wage guarantee of $33 a day compared with the industry guarantee of $28.50.

Earlier, the company said it had offered "the highest incentive rates in the industry."

Curtis Makes Formal Entry Into Election

First elected in October, 1961, after Reeve Stanley Murphy resigned, he was re-elected by acclamation two years ago.

Two persons have filed nomination papers for council — A. W. Mesher and Councillor William Noel.

Three persons are in the race for the single seat on the Greater Victoria School Board — Douglas Brown, Richard Reeve and Cecil Wyatt. No one has come forward for the single vacancy in Saanich School Board, which extends from Royal Oak northwards.

Deadline for nominations is Monday Nov. 27.

FISH KNIVES, CASH STOLEN

Two filleting knives, a $78 cheque and $30 in cash were stolen overnight from Dennis Shellfish Company, 405 Yates St.

City detectives said a padlock on the ground floor door was forced.

Thieves also forced their way into the parked car of John F. Cabeldu, 730 Humboldt, and tore a $110 tape recorder from its dash mounting.

FUND DRIVE STARTS NEXT FRIDAY

Christmas and Dr. Lotta on Way

Dr. Lotta's on the move again.

Her appearance in Victoria to begin a cross-country drive to raise funds for the Unitarian Service Committee's work with children in Asian countries has become as regular an institution as Christmas.

This year is no exception.

Dr. Hitschmanova's campaign will get off to a good start Friday, November 24, when she shows colored slides and comments on "The World We Never See" at a public party from 2 to 5 p.m., at the St. John Ambulance Headquarters, 941 Pandora Avenue.

It will be the 15th year the Times has sponsored the Christmas Apeal and the 23rd anniversary of the founding of Dr. Lotta's organization.

Last year the Times collected more than $13,000 for the "Save the Children" Fund. The money helped to make food, clothing, shelter, education and medical supplies available for youngsters who would otherwise have perished.

Blast Victim's Condition Termed 'Fair'

Four-Hour Session On Operating Table

A scientist sprayed with acid and glass in a laboratory explosion Thursday is reported still in fair condition.

Surgeons had Dr. Joseph Baker, 44, on the operating room table for four hours Thursday afternoon as they removed particles of glass which blasted him when his experiment blew up.

He also suffered burns from the acid involved in the soil experiment.

The blast in the second-floor laboratory at the federal Forest Research Laboratory, 506 West Burnside, blew out a safety glass door on the experimental apparatus, shattered windows and light fixtures.

Lab technician Eric Payne, 20, also suffered cuts and acid burns but of a less serious nature.

Only Dr. Baker probably has the answer to why the explosive perchloric acid went up, the laboratory's director, R. R. Lejeune said today. And it could be some time before he reports.

The acid, which is both corrosive and explosive, is used in minute quantities and is a common agent in analysis. Thursday's blast is the first serious accident in any of the chain of federal laborities in many years.

SHOWER FAILED

A safety shower in the laboratory for such emergencies failed to function Thursday and Mr. Lejeune said he does not know why.

Tests on it cannot be made until the laboratory has been put in order sufficiently to pass fire department inspection and therefore may be delayed until Monday.

The director said a rough estimate of damage from the explosion would be $2,000.

Dr. Baker is married and has a 10-month-old daughter. He came to the Victoria laboratory in 1965 from the federal department of agriculture at Prince George.

'Merciful As I Can' —Ostler

Carl Raymond, 22-year-old bank robber, today was sentenced to three years in the British Columbia Penitentiary by Magistrate William Ostler.

"I am being as merciful as I can under the circumstances," Magistrate Ostler told the London, Ont., man who held up the Bank of Montreal at Fort and Richmond Oct. 13 and took $1,555 at the point of an unloaded shotgun.

Raymond at first denied the charge of armed robbery and then changed his plea to guilty.

Magistrate Ostler said he was impressed by the probation officer's report and was not without compassion for the accused.

'DESPERATE'

"You were faced with a desperate situation and committed a serious crime. It is to your credit that the gun was not loaded but the victims (the people in the bank) did not know that.

"The fact that the gun was not loaded puts the offence in a less serious light.

"I cannot suspend sentence. I must protect society but I am very concerned about your rehabilitation so I shall send you to where you can get guidance and training," Magistrate Ostler said.

He also "highly commended" the police on the quick capture of Raymond.

Prior to sentence Raymond said he had learned his lesson in the 35 days he had spent in jail since his capture a few hours after the robbery. He planned to start up his own business and his wife is willing to take him back, he said.

She was with him in Victoria but has since returned to Ontario.

Talks Due Soon On River Switch

A multi-million-dollar diversion of part of the Fraser River's tributary system may be undertaken soon.

Serious discussions are about to start on sharing costs for the scheme which would divert part of the Shuswap River's flow into Okanagan Lake, Water Resources Minister Ray Williston said today in an interview.

He said the diversion is needed because increasing population an expanding irrigated vineyard acreages for the wine industry are seriously lowering the lake's level during dry periods.

It could result in the level becoming too low for anyone to be able to use the numerous and expensive recreational facilities already installed around the lake," he said.

"The lake's greatest importance is recreational and this importance is increasing all the time."

An engineering study was undertaken by the province, with federal assistance under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act, a year ago to find a solution.

It proposed diverting the Shuswap, which flows west and north into the Thompson River which in turn joins the Fraser.

The study said there were two feasible ways of raising the Shuswap River's height the necessary 30 feet to send part of it across the watershed divide 20 miles southward into Okanagan Lake.

$16 MILLION

At a 50-year cost of $16 million, a half-mile-long earthfill dam could raise the river's level high enough to spill water by gravity feed into a canal-and-creek system that would feed Okanagan Lake.

For $14.7 million over 50 years, a smaller concrete dam, pumping station and pipeline system could be built to feed the lake.

In both bases, the dams would be near Enderby. The study added that the cost of the first alternative could be reduced if suitable earthfill material was found near the damsite.

330,000 PERSONS

Both schemes ultimately would provide enough water for Okanagan Lake to meet the domestic and industrial needs of about 330,000 persons in the lake area.

That's four times the present population.

Diversion also would permit increasing the present 60,000 acres of irrigated land by 123,000 acres.

However, Mr. Williston said that some residents of the area are agitating for the canal proposal on an expanded basis so that boaters could use it.

This would connect the huge Shuswap lakes and rivers system to Lake Okanagan and the Columbia River system in Washington State.

But it would increase both the capital and operating costs of the diversion "by many millions", he said.

Nobody Demands Super-Parents . . . Adoption Simple, Rewarding

By KATHARINE THOMAS

The desire to give a child "as good a home as I had" prompted Michael Minter and his wife Pauline to adopt a little boy from the Family and Children's Service.

Mr. Minter, an auto mechanic who came from England three years ago, is himself adopted.

"I wasn't denied opportunities and now I want to give them to another child," he says. "If I hadn't been adopted, there's no telling where I might have ended up."

The Minters already have a three-year-old girl, Kay Rebecca and Mrs. Minter is expecting another child.

They adopted Andrew Frederick, a year and a half ago, when he was six weeks old. "It's amazing, he's got my double crown and my double thumb," says Mrs. Minter.

"It's marvellous how they match the child to the family," Mr. Minter added. "You don't think of them as adopted once they are your own children."

The Minters feel that many children, particularly boys—there is a greater demand for girls—are desperately in need of a good home.

"We wanted to help fill the need," Mr. Minter says.

They believe that many people are afraid of adoption because of all the "red tape" and the fear of intrusion into their private life.

"Many people feel that they are not good enough—that they have to be super-parents to be able to adopt," Mr. Minter says.

A BOUNCING BONNY BABY is Andrew Frederick, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Minter. Their own daughter, three-year-old Kay Rebecca, is thrilled to have a baby brother.

"But it is not true. The adoption process is a simple one. During the six-month 'probation,' the agency makes appointments for three visits—but they're more like social visits.

"You are required to have separate interviews and then interviews together before the child is placed," Mrs. Minter added. "But the agency just wants to make sure the arrangement will be satisfactory, that the child will be happy and that you will be happy with him.

"When you realize that someone's whole future is at stake, you see it's not much to ask. The agency has the terrific responsibility of finding good homes."

"All children when young are bright," says Mr. Minter, "it's the home environment that makes the difference."

"It really requires something special; too many people get a romantic notion about adopting a racially different child, but they don't realize the responsibilities involved," says Mrs. Minter.

How did their own child react to Andrew?

"She was thrilled to death," says Mrs. Minter. "She knows where he came from, but she also knows he's ours now, and ours to keep."

The Minters are determined Andrew will know he is adopted.

"I want it out in the open," says Mr. Minter. "A child should feel he can ask any question and get an honest answer.

"It does make some difference if you're adopted. But there is always the stock answer—an adopted child knows his parents love and want him because they chose him."

'COME AND ASK QUESTIONS'

A public meeting for prospective adopting parents and interested citizens will be held by the Family and Children's Service Monday at 8 p.m. at Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook Street. A panel made up of people who have been adopted, adopting parents and social workers will answer questions.

Ask The Times

Q. Does holly grow in Michigan? L.M.

A. The Encyclopedia Brittanica says that holly grows in the U.S. from Massachusetts to Florida, west to Texas and north to Indiana, which would preclude Michigan. But florist Keith McEachern says that a type of holly does grow in Michigan but not the same type as our Christmas holly.

Q. What is the source of the quotation which starts out "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year, Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown . . .?" H.M.S.

A. A work, God Knows, by Minnie Louise Haskins.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conondrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Belmont Park Work Coming for Painters

A make-work try by members of Victoria local of the painters' union has paid off.

MP David Groos told the Times he had been successful in asking the department of defence construction to call for tenders on the painting of 251 houses in Belmont Park naval married quarters.

Two tenders for separate contracts to paint the interiors of the buildings will be called within two weeks, Mr. Groos said.

Business representative A. H. Gildemeester of Local 1163, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, had written Mr. Groos pointing out the need of employment for painters during the winter months and the fact that Belmont Park houses were due for painting this year.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Novelty Chocolates Good for Gift Giving

By PENNY SAVER

The homely cocoa bean is one of the most popular flavorings in the world today. In its most popular form, milk chocolate, it serves as a covering for sweets. Baking chocolate is a standard item in the pantry. Cocoa derivatives can be used as beverages or even as ointments for burns.

Because of its popularity, chocolate makes a sweet gift at Christmas. Just the other day I was in a store that has a variety of chocolate novelties for the season. Made of Dutch dark chocolate, these items make tasty stocking stuffers for the little ones in the family.

For the boys, there is a smoking set. The chocolate is shaped to look like a pipe and a box of matches, then covered with printed foil. This set costs 50 cents. A model gas station with pumps and cars sells for 60 cents.

For the girls, there is a sewing kit with scissors, tape, thimble and so forth at 50 cents a set, and a manicure set with scissors, file and bottle of nail polish for 60 cents.

A box of milk chocolate wooden shoes made from the best imported Dutch chocolate costs 45 cents. Figurines, medals and other chocolate shapes in a box are priced at 75 cents.

For the more sophisticated tastes there are liquor-flavored chocolates at 75 cents for a 2¾-ounce box and $1.25 for a five-ounce box.

White chocolate is a rarely seen form of chocolate. This store sells white chocolate flowers at 90 cents for the half pound. White choocolate bars cost 12 cents, 15 cents and 30 cents.

Marzipan is another popular sweet. Most of us only see it as the icing on wedding and Christmas cakes, but it also makes a delicious confection. Boxes of marzipan fruits cost $2 and $2.85 when gift-wrapped. Bought separately, the fruits cost 12 cents each.

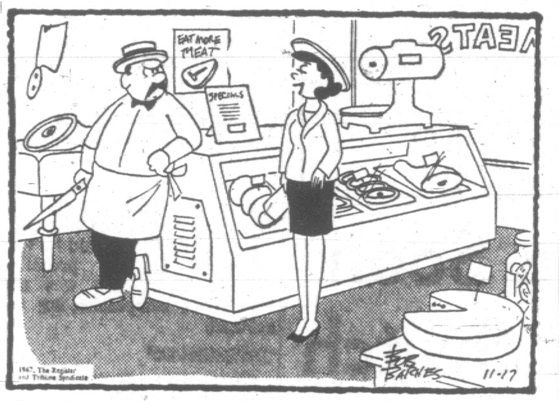
Gift-wrapped boxes of assorted cookies, packed for travelling, are priced at $1.50.

Attention antipasto lovers! A company in Duncan has begun producing an antipasto that is tailor-made for Canadian tastes. This delicious mixture of tuna, anchovies, tomato, olives and sweet peppers is finer in texture than the imported variety so it can be easily spread on sandwiches or crackers. Perfect for party snacks, pizzas, stuffed eggs, meat loaf—anything you can name—this product sells for 63 cents a jar.

Please call me at 382-3131, if you would like to know where to shop for these items.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes



"Is it true that to you, the greatest invention since the wheel is meat tenderizer?"

Wormald-Reynolds Vows

A stirling silver brooch which had belonged to her great-great-grandmother and had been worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day, was worn by Margaret Georgina Reynolds when she became the bride of George Robert Wormald in Oaklands Chapel.

Her jewelry complemented a gown of peau d' elegance which she had made herself. Styled on empire lines, it featured a lace bodice with softly belled sleeves. A detachable peau d'elegance train swept back from the waistline, complemented by her tiered veil which misted from a floral headpiece. Feathered bronze chrysanthemums, centred with a honey-toned orchid, formed her bouquet.

Gold and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the church and gold ribbons were on the pews when Mr. J. W. Robertson heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Reynolds, 1351 Slater Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wormald, 2940 Shelbourne Street. Mr. Reynolds gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. M. Smith was the organist.

The bride's attendants wore matching gowns of apricot peau d'elegance styled with bodices of beige lace, and gold peau d'elegance floral headpieces. As jewelry they wore pearl pendants, gifts of the bride, and they carried bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums.

Mrs. D. T. Farndon was matron of honor, Mrs. H. Roodbol was bridesmatron and bridesmaids were Miss Cathleen Wormald, the groom's sister and Miss Rosemary Fryer, the bride's cousin.

At the reception following in Holyrood House a three-tier wedding cake centred the head table and bronze chrysantheuums decorated the room. Sgt. N. V. Hindle, Hope, proposed the toast to his niece.

Guests travelling to Victoria for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. C. Curnutt of Garibaldi Ore; Mr. and Mrs. H. Dowling of Tacoma, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Stewart of Mt. Lehman, B.C., Sgt. and Mrs. N. V. Hindle of Hope.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Better Sick Now Than Stuck Later

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been going steady with a girl I'll call "Dotty" for about a year, but there is another girl I like better. I don't want to hurt Dotty's feelings, but I would like to get out of going steady with her so I can openly date this other girl.

Dotty is a very nervous girl and every time I have even hinted at breaking up, she gets sick. I would appreciate any help you can give me. I am 22 and Dotty is 19.

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: I feel sorry for Dotty, but I feel sorrier for you if you continue to go with her because you haven't the courage to break it up.

Level with her! And the sooner the better. Dotty may get sick, but she'll get over it Take my advice before you find yourself married to a woman who "gets sick" every time she doesn't get her own way.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "BAFFLED" who quit having birthday parties for her children because the mothers would bring their children, and instead of going home, they would stay for the party, too, which meant having more uninvited guests than invited ones. Here is how I solved that problem:

On the day of my child's birthday I would take ice cream and cupcakes to school and treat the whole class. The teacher was very co-operative; that way, no one (but the teacher) knew of the party in advance, so there was no need to bring a birthday gift (which many could not have afforded, anyway).

No cleaning up afterwards, and no frayed nerves. Good idea?

MRS. SMITH

DEAR MRS. SMITH: Great. If your child's birthday doesn't happen to fall on a weekend, holiday or during summer, Easter or Christmas vacation.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem is company who don't know when it's time to go home. When we have people over and they say, "Well, I think we'd better be going now," just to be polite we say something like, "O, you don't have to go yet," or, "Stay a little while longer." So they stay. And it's another hour before they make a move to go home.

Abby, I wish you would tell people that when a host and hostess say, "You don't have to go home yet," these are just polite words and shouldn't be taken seriously. Why are some people so dumb?

EARLY RISER

DEAR EARLY: Which people? There would be no problem if hosts and hostesses would not encourage their guests to overstay their welcome with insincere coaxing.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

DEAR EMILY WILKENS: BRUSH UP ON BRUSHES

In your articles you mention natural bristle hair brushes from time to time. Where can I find one at a reasonable price?

I would also like to know what to do about my dry hair. Even though I use oil daily in my cooking and brush my hair faithfully every night, my hair still looks very dry.

Natural bristle brushes are available in a wide price range. Check department stores for seasonal specials when the price is considerably lower. If you have a beauty supply store in your area, investigate their prices—you might be able to purchase an extra-special bristle brush at the wholesale cost.

Regarding your dry hair, be sure you're consuming at least two tablespoons of unsaturated vegetable oil daily. Before your nightly brushing, sprinkle a few drops of corn or baby oil on your fingertips and massage thoroughly into your scalp. For daily grooming, a bit of pomade rubbed across the bristles of your brush adds a gleaming look to dryish hair.

BOLDER BROWS

As I've gotten older, my eyebrows have become dull-looking and sparse. Can you recommend something other than dye that I can use to make them darker?—Alice P.

Eyebrows — as well as eyelashes — frequently become lighter and sparser as the years go by. Apply a bit of castor oil to your brows (lashes, too) nightly, grooming them with an eyebrow brush to encourage lustre and growth.

For etching in the brow line, you'll find that brush-on brow powder will be more natural looking than the familiar pencil.

DROP THAT DROOP

The corners of my mouth droop so badly that in spite of a happy disposition my friends and family accuse me of having the meanest face in the world. Is there an exercise for a happier-looking face?—Mrs. Ellen Z.

To help turn on a "sunny-side-up" look, work on conditioning the muscles which encircle your mouth by doing this little exercise:

Place a finger in each corner of your mouth and pull back a bit; then purse your lips, attempting to push the fingers closer together. Do this at least six times a day.

A sure-fire brightener is to practice making pleasant expressions before a mirror, just as actresses do.

WAYS WITH WAX

Several of my friends and I have dark heavy hair on our upper legs. Bleaching doesn't work too well. We want to try waxing. Are the proper products readily available and how do we do it?—Lorraine L.

It's a good idea, if you can afford it, to have the first treatment at a department store salon to see just how it's done. A waxing usually lasts six weeks.

After that, you and your friends might make it a fun and easy do-it-yourself project by helping each other with the treatment. Wax strips for home use may be purchased at most beauty counters. Just be sure to follow directions carefully.

Emily Wilkens welcomes letters, but cannot undertake to answer each one. She will use questions in her column of general interest. Address your letters to Emily Wilkens, in care of this newspaper.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Woman's Skirt Length Formula

Q. Many women write to ask how long skirt lengths should be for the mature woman.

A. Someone said that the skirt length should be halfway between a woman's knees and her age. I wish I had thought up that gem, but I didn't, and I do not know to whom to give credit.

Lowman

Q. Do you really think false eyelashes are for every woman? I would like to try them but I feel shy about it and fear that I would look ridiculous.

A. Yes I do! However, there are all kinds of false lashes. You do not have to wear the very heavy artificial looking ones. Buy thinner ones made with real hair and wear them just a little longer than your own. Use a liner first. These do really add much beauty to a face and they do not have to be grotesque.

Q. Do corns on your feet always come from poorly fitted shoes?

A. This is usually the cause. However, weak muscles causing flat feet and other abnormalities can also create unusual pressures.

Q. I am 5 feet and 5 inches and weigh 125 pounds. My bust and hips measure just the same, 34 inches, but my waist is not 10 inches smaller. It measures 26 inches. I eat small meals and leave off desserts. How can I get my figure into better proportion?

A. If you have a medium build, you are really not overweight, but watch it. Your measurements are not badly out of proportion, but as you indicated, you should lose a couple of inches from your waistline.

Do this exercise faithfully. It is also very relaxing. Stand with your feet separated and your arms hanging at your sides. Bend over from the waist letting your head, arms and trunk drop forward, all the way. Very slowly straighten your spine. Try to do this so slowly that you feel it segment by segment until your head is erect. Continue.

Margo Oliver, Weekend Magazine's food editor, visits Victoria to introduce her new cook book.

IODE Chapter Makes Plans To Take Part in Festival

The Esquimalt Chapter IODE made plans for the apron and novelties booth, for which the chapter will be responsible at the IODE Festival, when the group met at a recent luncheon meeting. The festival will be held in Christ Church Memorial Hall on Feb. 17, 1968. Esquimalt members will also sell tickets on the raffle of a color television set.

Proceeds of $73.75 were realized at the rummage sale held recently. Financial contributions were voted to "Canadian Scene," the Commonwealth Relations Fund, Overseas Relief, the Shipping Fund, Peace Garden, Second War Memorial and the Eva Shortreed Memorial Bursary. The sum of $36 was voted for Christmas hampers.

The educational secretary reported that sets of historical pictures were presented to four Esquimalt schools on the chapter's behalf. Miss Sandra Butler, Esquimalt Senior Secondary, was announced the winner of the chapter's $100 scholarship.

The services at home and abroad secretary reported that the standard was carried and a wreath laid on the Cenotaph in Esquimalt Memorial Park on Remembrance Day.

It was also reported that members have taken flowers to the Veterans' Hospital on two occasions and that an afghan was presented to Rose Manor. Two afghans will also be given to West Bay Hospital and the Veterans' Hospital pavilion. Members served 67 hours in the Red Cross Lodge at the Veterans' Hospital during the past month.

A nominating committee for 1968 was appointed at the meeting.

Produces a Book Which All Women Will Appreciate

MARGO RUSHES TO THE RESCUE

By PAT DUFOUR

Although she denies it, I'm convinced that Margo Oliver, food editor for Weekend Magazine which we carry each Saturday, majored in psychology.

This week I started my Christmas baking. The cakes are done, the plum puddings get their turn this weekend, and I must admit to a feeling of smugness. Yet, I'm convinced that I'll still end up days before Christmas, pushing the panic button and wondering how on earth I'm going to squeeze time to cook all those other little goodies that make Christmas a culinary nightmare for most busy women. It happens every year!

Margo flew out from Montreal this week with the partial answer to my yearly problem. It's her new cook book, fresh off the presses, which is a collection of recipes that have hit the top of the popularity poll in the nine years she's been with the magazine.

I've never been able to resist cook books, I collect them with the fervor of a confirmed addict, but Margo's creation is one of the most exciting . . . and useful . . . in my collection. And, for disorganized women like myself, who never can find their Christmas recipes when they need them, Margo has devoted the last section to this problem. Smart girl, she'll have me trying them out in good time this year.

Margo describes herself as a "meat and potato cook who likes to make and eat gourmet dishes occasionally" and this fact is made clear as soon as you examine her book. It's basically practical, and beautiful.

The book is the work of Weekend staffers all the way and the excellent art plates, there are 20 in the book, are so realistic you almost expect the dishes to pop out of the page and onto your desk! Several of my cook books have become a little smudged over the years. This new one is going to be different. It has a washable cover which laughs at coffee stains, floury fingers and other kitchen hazards.

The type is large and easily read and the book's contents are arranged in an orderly manner befitting a "meat and potato" artist. There are five main sections, including the one I've already mentioned. The first contains soups, salads and vegetables, the second is devoted to main dishes, the third to desserts, and another one is brimful of recipes for making yeast and quick breads, waffles and pancakes.

Have you ever found yourself imitating a juggler as, halfway through a recipe, you have to turn to another page, just as you're about to start on a crucial part of the preparation? This won't happen when you use Margo's book. She's eliminated this frustration by making sure that each recipe can be read at a glance, and in one spot.

Margo was out in Victoria last March and she reports a great change in food across Canada since that time. On her junkets, Margo finds herself eating many a restaurant meal. These, she says, have improved in standard in every city she's visited. She attributes this to popular demand.

"Customers, I think, just won't settle for second best these days. Frankly, I think hotels and restaurants like it this way. It's rather like cooking for a family. When they sit up and take notice, you try that much harder to please them."

In case you're thinking that her book is all meat and potato, I should stress that some of the recipes are sheer delight, even to read. Margo, who has tested them all, has collected them from all sources. Like us, she adheres to some of her grandmother's favorites, but she has some dandies which she's gathered on her various trips.

One that's bound to be a favorite with us West Coasters is paella, which Margo found when she visited Spain. The main ingredients are clams in the shell, shrimps and chicken. Teamed with rice and colorful vegetables, it's enough to kill the willpower of any dieter.

The one basic difference between Margo's version and the one she fell is love with when she was in Spain is that she shells the shrimps. Spaniards prefer to enjoy the shelling chore during dinner itself.

Some of the other glamor dishes that have me drooling are Caribbean chicken, Gateau Saint-Honore, crab in avacado halves, Hawaiian pork and Chinese meat balls. The list is endless.

This morning, I couldn't help sneaking into a local book store (most of them have the new book) and watching a woman as she leafed through Margo's offering.

You guessed it . . . we ended up comparing notes. Both of us agreed that we're going to throw out our clippings and rely on Margo's filing system.

We've also made a pact. This year's holiday baking is going to have an early deadline, thanks to Margo.

Victoria Man Takes Bride At Ceremony in Ontario

A wedding of wide interest in Victoria took place in St. Andrew's United Church, Pakenham, Ont., recently when Bonnie Alice Russell and Const. William Lloyd Neville, RCMP, exchanged rings and vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Cora Russell, Pakenham, and the late Mr. Carswell Russell. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. V. Neville, 2981 Larkdowne Road. Mrs. Neville travelled to Pakenham, Ont., for the service. Rev. Harold Davies officiated.

Peter Russell gave his sister in marriage. The bride wore a gown of peau de soie, styled on A-lines and trimmed with lace appliques on the front with matching appliques trimming the train which swept back from the shoulders. Her veil misted to shoulder-length and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white baby chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Wayne Nield, Stittsville, Ont., was matron of honor and Miss Elaine Savage, Ottawa, Ont., was maid of honor. Miss Lois Simpson, Ottawa, and Miss Linda Neville, the groom's sister, Victoria, were bridesmaids. They wore matching gowns of forest green peau d'elegance with toning bows in their hair and carried bouquets of bronze and gold baby chrysanthemums.

Douglas Russell, the bride's brother, acted as best man and Allan Barratt, Ottawa; Fraser Ross, Kitchener, and Paul Daniels, Pakenham, ushered the guests.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

In "Marshall Miles Teaches Logical Bridge," the author points out that when your opponents reach three no-trump through their own bidding and without competition, a double asks your partner to lead the first suit bid by dummy.

This is an old convention and like most conventions, whether old or new, has almost as many variations as there are expert players.

Marshall teaches the simplest form, which may be stated as follows: "When your opponents reach three no-trump without any competition, a double asks your partner to lead the first suit bid by dummy. It doesn't demand that your partner make this lead. Your partner may have some overpowering reason to lead something else. It also doesn't guarantee that you will beat the contract. It just is a toll that is going to prove valuable in the long run."

Opening lead—♠ 8

Today's hand shows Marshall Miles' first example. East isn't sure that a spade lead will beat three no-trump, but he is pretty sure that without a spade lead South will romp home. He doubles and hopes for the best.

This time it works. West hears the double and opens a spade. East takes five spade tricks and South is down one. If it had turned out that North held five spades instead of four, East's lead-directing double would merely have held declarer to nine tricks; but that is the chance that a player who makes this type of double takes. You must use your lead-directing doubles with discretion and realize that it is rare indeed that you can be certain that your lead-directing double will succeed, but you should also know that you never get anywhere by just sitting back and waiting for something to happen.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

CHANNEL CHIT CHAT: ABC-TV has granted Canadian Peter Jennings his wish and moved him out from behind the anchor desk of the evening news. His place will be filled by Bob Young Jan. 1. It's a polite way of showing that the young Jennings couldn't cut the mustard against such heavies as Walter Cronkite, Huntley and Brinkley.

Stephen

Walter Lippman and his views on world affairs are featured on National Educational Television's Public Broadcast Laboratory Sunday (Channel 9 if you can get it). . . . Former president Eisenhower and general of the army Omar Bradley discuss American conduct of the Vietnam war in a CBS-TV half-hour Nov. 28.

The production on ABC's series "Custer" has finished. Custer will not be killed in the last segment, despite the fact the series was by the network. Someone, somewhere said "the ratings killed 'Custer' even before he could get to the Little Big Horn.

Don't be surprised if NBC-TV rings in Dan Rowan and Dick Martin in a comedy variety series during TV's second season. The pair hit it off great with their "Laugh-In" during the network's preview week and now are skedded to co-emcee NBC's Tonight week of Dec. 25 while Johnny Carson is playing a Florida nightclub date.

Sen. Robert Kennedy and his family appear Nov. 26 on ABC-TV's children's show, Discovery, which concerns vanishing wilderness areas in the United States. If you haven't caught this excellent program, you're missing a top-calibre viewing product.

Television is the poorer for the lack of regular appearances by Jack Benny but when he does show up the ratings start climbing. He did a guest stint with Lucy on Nov. 15 and she became No. 1 in the ratings. He hosted Kraft Music Hall and gave the show its highest New York overnight sampling since the season opener with the Tijuana Brass.

Premier Bennett will be centre of stage when Channel 6 and 8's This Week public affairs program airs next Wednesday. He'll be quizzed by a panel made up of our John Mika, Ian Street of the Colonist, Pat Carney of the Vancouver Sun, Marc Raines and yours truly.

Help Sought For Marginal B.C. Farmers

Farmers will press for higher returns for their produce at the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture at the Empress Hotel on Nov. 28-29.

Archie Stevenson, president, said today the objective is to elevate the position of primary producers.

"Rising cost of production is forcing many marginal farmers out of business," he said. "It's a major agricultural problem."

Delegates from all parts of B.C., representing over 80 farm organizations, will attend.

RICHTER TO SPEAK

Principal speakers will be Agriculture Minister Frank Richter, Dr. Gordon Shrum, chancellor of Simon Fraser University, and Dr. Michael Shaw, new dean of the faculty of agriculture, UBC.

Of major importance to dairy farmers is an Okanagan resolution calling for changes to the federal milk subsidy to bring quality of milk into consideration.

At present the subsidy is based on utilization and does not relate bacteria count to price.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Candy Ledbetter, age 15, of Redlands, California, for her question:

How do cheetahs differ from leopards?

The leopard and the cheetah are both big cats of the animal family Felidae. Both wear coats of basic blond painted with dark spots. But when it comes to character, the two big cats are not at all alike.

All the big cousins of the house cat, of course, are carnivores. As meat eaters, they tend to regard most smaller animals as possible items on their menus. Tigers and jaguars, lions and leopards are fierce predators andnot at all shy about attacking human beings. Some of these big cats have been tamed and trained. But as a rule, they are creatures of the wild who do not regard us as their friends. The cheetah also is a big cat, often as big as a leopard. But he is less fierce than his catty cousins. Since ancient times, cheetahs have been tamed and trained to hunt for their human owners.

In appearance and size, the leopard and cheetah are somewhat similar. A big leopard may be 4 feet long, plus a 38 inch tail. A big cheetah may be the same length, but his tail is a few inches shorter. He has longer legs, but the stockier leopard outweighs him by about 50 pounds. A big leopard tips the scales at about 150 pounds. And only the leopard wears spots clustered together in round rosettes. The spots of the cheetah cover his blond coat is separate, evenly distributed freckles.

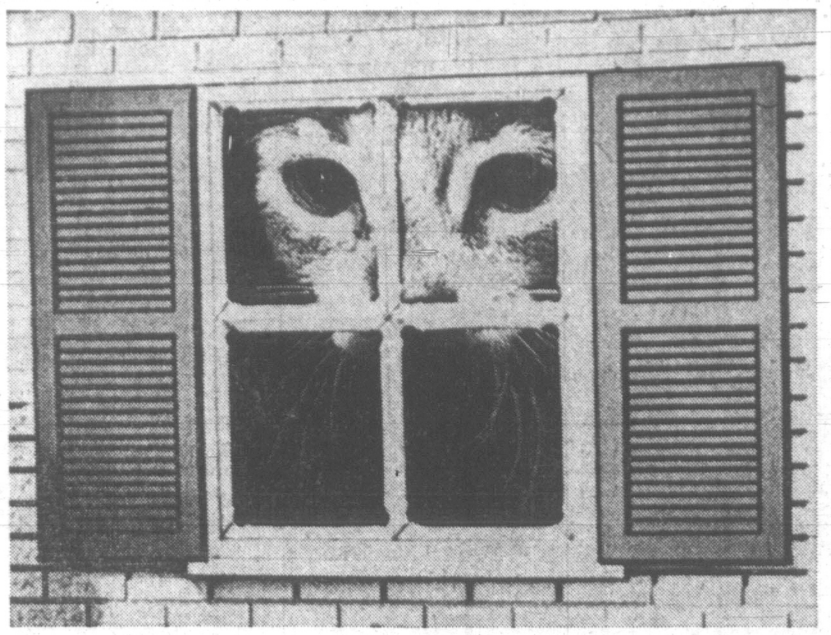
More impoetant differences between the two cats, however, are less noticeable. The leopard is a typical cat with retractile claws that can be sheathed and unsheathed as he chooses. But the cheetah's claws are unsheathed, like those of a dog. He keeps them sharpened by scratching on tree trunks. But s weapons they cannot compare with the saber-sharp talons of the leopard.

Timid Animal

Both of these big cats are natives of Asia and Africa. The leopard can live either in the jungles or open country, where he climbs and swims, prowls and pounces with clever cunning. The cheetah is more at home in open scrub terrain, observing his prey from behind a rock or a tuft of tall grass. His hunting skill is in his long, strong, rangy legs. And the cheetah is the fastest animal on four feet. While his prey is within range, he starts his record-breaking sprint. He quickly reaches a speed of 45 miles per hour and may reach a top speed of 70. But the champ is soon winded. When a fleet-footed antelope keeps ahead for 500 yards, the cheetah gives up and waits for another victim.

The leopard is much fiercer by nature and much more able to protect himself than is the cheetah. Some regard him as the meanest and most bad tempered of all wild animals. The cheetah, though a big cat, tends to be timid. When captured as a kitten, he gives up his wild hunting altogether and settles down happily with his adopted human family. When contented, he purrs like a small house cat. He may not be s handsome as his leopard cousin, but he is a far more friendly character.

Arthritis is no respecter of persons. It strikes people of all ages in all walks of life. Over a million Canadians suffer from arthritis or other rheumatic disease. The tragedy lies in the fact that many of these people do not even go to see a doctor. While there is, as yet, no real way to prevent arthritis or cure it, the majority of sufferers can be helped by early diagnosis and modern treatment, according to Dr. Harold Robinson, Medical Director of the B.C. Division of C.A.R.S.



OVERGROWN CAT? No, it's not a tabby topsy outgrowing its quarters, but rather a kitten peering through the window of a doll house. Wilmington News Journal photographer Chuck McGowan clicked the candid cat in the living-rom of his Dover, Del., home.

Survivors Of Heart Stoppage

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Alvarez

Recently, Dr. R. G. Drumm and D. S. Kornfeld of Columbia University made a careful study of a number of men who had apparently died with heart stoppage, and had then been resuscitated. As I have said here before, the upper, thinking part of the brain can stand only about five minutes without blood; after that it dies, and then the person may be left a vegetable.

I knew some of these people who were kept alive for years with tube feeding. They were kept in the hospital with much nursing; their eyes were open, but they evidently saw nothing. One lived about 10 years. and another lived seven years without ever saying anything or recognizing a loved one. They lived, because the lower animal part of the brain can survive longer without circulation than can the upper part. Other tissues of the body can stand being without blood for much longer periods of time. I just read that the liver can survive for an hour.

Certainly, if I ever drop unconscious to the floor with a bad heart attack and stay there for more than five minutes, I hope that no one will bring me back to life because the chances will be that it will be a life that will do me no good and will only ruin my relatives financially.

Now, what doctors Drumm and Kornfeld have found is that even some of the people who survived well enough to seem, at first glance, normal, have become irritable, unable to sleep, restless, and unhappy, apparently because of a slight injury to the upper part of the brain, such as one might expect. A while ago several studies of the many persons who had had "open heart surgery" showed that the brain had been slightly injured perhaps by inadequate circulation during the time when the heart was being repaired.

Also, a while ago, when I spent all my spare time for 16 months in a big library, searching the literature for information about little strokes which — together with the results of my studies of hundreds of patients — I then built into a book, I found that for years it has been known that when a person has a bad heart attack, he can also have a little stroke, because during the time in which his heart is pumping poorly, his brain does not get quite enough blood.

Caning Retained

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters) — The city of Liverpool has decided to retain the use of the cane as a punishment for physically handicapped and maladjusted children. The city council rejected by a 56-to-29 vote a proposal to abolish corporal punishment for such children in municipal schools.

'Most Imaginative Centennial Event'

By ELIZABETH FORBES

If the "Miles for Millions" march planned here by University of Victoria students for Nov. 25, as a youth centennial effort to buy portable classrooms for developing Commonwealth nations, follows the pattern of the same type of march in other Canadian cities, then there is no doubt, thousands will take part.

Forbes

Last April in Ottawa, for instance everybody walked. Well, perhaps not everybody. But (according to the summer edition of the Oxfam - Canada News) it seemed that way when thousands gathered on Parliament Hill for a "Miles for Millions" stroll, organized by the Centennial International Development Program and the local Oxfam Committee, to raise money for equipment to drill wells in India.

Prime Minister Lester Pearson, who was walker No. 1, described it as "just about the most imaginative event in this Centennial Year." He only walked as far as his office but he sponsored a high school boy who walked 31 miles on his behalf.

About 4,000 people started. The Bishop of Ottawa completed 20 miles. One pretty girl was reported to have persuaded her friends to sponsor her for $70 a mile. A group of young people from an Anglican church pushed an iron beadstead the full 40 miles. None of them needed a rest, but they raised $116.

Four hundred and seventy-seven completed the course. Among the last to finish, around 3 a.m. the next morning, was an 11-year-old boy whose father was working in India. His effort and those of others raised more than $80,000.

In Victoria, as in the nation's capital, volunteers will do the marching and their sponsors will pledge to pay an amount for each mile they cover. The walk will start at 8:30 a.m. in front of the legistine Buildings and the 26-mile route will include stops at every municipal hall in Greater Victoria. Old and young are invited to find sponsors and join in.

Twenty per cent of the proceeds will go to the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief (Oxfam). The other 80 per cent will be presented to Project 100 launched in 1966 by the educational activities subcommittee of the Provincial Centennial Committee.

At that time a target of $90,000 was announced to be raised by British Columbia students through their own activities. It was estimated this sum would buy six mobile classrooms and equip them with modern aids to education including books, filmstrips, audio-visual and scientific aids and laboratory equipment.

First of these units, destined for Guyana, is nearly completed and will go on display on the lower mainland in a few days, says L. J. Wallace, chairman of the provincial centennial committee. It was appear at Langley on Nov. 24, where the schoolchildren there will present a sizeable cheque to the project, then proceed to Victoria, where it will be on display during the Miles for Millions" march.

A second unit, marked for Tanzania, is nearly ready. Other classrooms will go to India, Pakistan, Zambia and Hong Kong. More will be sent if total funds exceed the $90,000.

University of Victoria confidently expects to field most of its student body for this marathon walk. High schools will have their quotas, too. Mayor Hugh Stephen and Reeve Hugh Curtis have signified they will be starters.

Now all it needs is for thousands of adult Victorians (children, too) to step out and join the parade.

As the Oxfam-Canada News said in reporting the Ottawa stroll last spring: "What is important about these walks is that they do more than just raise money, valuable as that is. They provide a demonstration that people in Canada, young and old, care about their neighbours in other countries . . . and are prepared to go to some discomfort to do something about helping them."

UVic students have taken on this 26-mile walk as a student project to assist other students. It's a constructive effort. The kind of effort we've been suggesting young people make if they sincerely wish to become involved in the affairs of this city.

It merits the backing of every person who can walk or who knows someone who can walk for them.

That's right! I'm talking to you . . . and you . . .and you! And I'm asking that you help make this "Miles for Millions" march a real success either by sponsoring someone in the walk or by going in it yourself.

Passmore Charges Meeting One-Sided

A charge that the Saanich Action Committee refused to permit Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis to speak at a public meeting Wednesday called to discuss the regional sewage report, was made Thursday by Coun. Leslie Passmore.

The committee—opposed to the dumping of sewage into the sea—sponsored the meeting.

"The reeve was told that he wouldn't be allowed to explain the reasons why the regional board is in favor of implementing the recommendations of the report," Mr. Passmore said.

"This would indicate that the meeting was not called to give all the facts to ratepayers but was political," he stated.

The veteran councillor said the meeting reminded him of meetings held 20 years ago to oppose the efforts of Saanich council to get the first sewer bylaw approved.

"At that time the same old arguments were advanced to delay the project: look for something better, impose stricter septic tank bylaws, wait for a better bond market."

He said after six or seven years, when the pollution situation was endangering health of residents, the sewer bylaw was finally passed.

"There are two sides to this question," he said. "Both sides should be heard."

Smart man, Father. And just wait 'til Mother sees the Maytag he's chosen!

It is the Maytag A206 with push-button controls for modern, automatic washing. There are three temperatures, two agitation and spin speeds to handle everything from diapers to thick, heavy bedspreads. And all clothes are washed really clean because this Maytag has spray and deep-power rinses, as well as selective wash-times. All it's costing Father to please Mother is

Accused Hosts Crown Witness

'He Wanted to Explain Events' Woman Tells Extradition Hearing

A man the Crown seeks to extradite from the United States wined and dined one of the Crown's witnesses in San Francisco less than two weeks ago.

Mrs. Lillian Proceviat, 2616 Blackwood, testified Thursday at the final session of the three-day proceedings before Magistrate William Ostler.

Earlier, Mrs. Proceviat had given testimony in the preliminary hearing against Leslie Millin of Vancouver. Millin was committed for trial in a higher court.

Both Beeler and Millin were principals in the multi-million-dollar Chateau Victoria complex.

Mrs. Proceviat testifed Beeler phoned her about five times since the Millin hearing last September.

'PICKING ON' HIM

She said Beeler told her everyone in Victoria was "picking on" him and that he wanted to explain to her what had happened.

Mrs. Proceviat said she and her husband took a one-day trip to San Francisco as Beeler's guests. They flew there on the morning of Nov. 5 and returned late the same night.

She said the former Victoria promoter had attempted to prove that he had not taken the money he received for selling a quarter-section of land belonging to Mrs. Proceviat's father.

Mrs. Proceviat testified Beeler met them at the airport and took them to his office. In the office were Beeler's "business lawyer" and a stenographer with "a sort of typing machine."

DOESN'T FEEL GUILTY

Mrs. Proceviat told the hearing Beeler said he didn't feel guilty, "but they'll put me behind bars up there."

She said the meeting lasted about an hour and he explained that all the money had gone into Yorkshire Trust.

She testified Beeler then asked her to make a statement and she did.

Beeler took them to dinner and then to his apartment.

'OUT OF THIS WORLD'

She described his apartment as "just out of this world. I've never seen anything like it."

She told the hearing Beeler said "Don't forget I told you it's not my responsibility, I promised you won't suffer. Anytime you want help you just call on Mr. Beeler."

Two Victoria doctors testified to having paid money to Beeler for an interest in the development.

Dr. Norman Cook, ear, nose and throat surgeon, said he had been attracted by a brochure on the chateau complex. It was shown to him in the hospital in October, 1962, when Beeler was his patient.

Dr. Cook said he paid Beeler $10,000 then, and subsequently made another three payments of $5,000 apiece. He said he did not receive stock, but was told at one point he had 1 per cent of the risk capital.

He said he put $200 into an option on land for a nursing home near the lagoon property, money which he received back. Dr. Cook said Beeler never paid him for a second operation on his nose, and he never saw any returns for his $25,000.

Dr. Malcolm MacKay, 1287 Rockland, said he was "given the privilege of purchasing shares in Chateau Victoria" at $5,000 apiece for two shares. Later he was given four more shares for a bargain total price of $5,000.

SUMMONS ISSUED

Victoria lawyer Francis Donegani testified he had been employed by the Bank of America in San Francisco in the spring of 1960 to attempt to collect $50,000 and interest from Beeler.

After a year of unfulfilled promises from Beeler, Mr. Donegani said he had a writ of summons issued, suing Beeler.

In 1961, Beeler's lawyer offered $10,000 in exchange for "certain documents" in Mr. Donegani's possession, including the promissory note.

Mr. Donegani said the Bank of America agreed to take the money and to issue a second note for the balance, but the money was not paid.

HEARING CLOSED

The Crown, represented by Lloyd McKenzie, QC, and Kenneth Murphy, closed the three-day hearing at noon.

Beeler will face nine charges of fraud totalling $93,820 if the courts in San Francisco decide he should be extradited to stand trial in Canada.

Evidence from the Victoria hearing has been sent to a California judge.

Swimmer Electrocuted

An apparent short circuit in an underwater lighting fixture turned the pool into a death trap for Bruce Leighton, 16, who was pulled from the water unconscious and later pronounced dead in hospital.

RIFLE BAN RETAINED IN WITTY LAGOON AREA

The ban covers the 45 acres at Witty Lagoon Park and about 300 acres in the buffer zone from Latoria to Wooton Road.

It was imposed last year because some people complained of stray bullet incidents in the area, but not all residents favored the ban.

Dr. James Hatter, director of B.C. Wildlife Branch, told the meeting the department did not wish to impose firearm bans in areas unnecessarily

"But it has become obvious, with the greatly increased development during the past few years, that we had to close Witty Lagoon to firearms," he said.

Nixon-Reagan Ticket Tops GOP Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon has topped an Associated Press poll of delegates to the 1964 Republican national convention as their favorite for the presidential nomination next year. California's Governor Ronald Reagan emerged as overwhelming choice to be the vice-presidential nominee.

A majority of those participating in the survey said they favor a Nixon-Reagan ticket.

However, a combination of Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Reagan received a substantial number of votes and ran second as the strongest potential team.

Reagan received support, mostly for the vice-presidential nomination, in all 50 states.

CIA Shifts Interviews Off-Campus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of student demonstrators, the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency has shifted some of its recruiting from on-campus sites to nearby federal office buildings.

A CIA spokesman said recruiters for the intelligence service in the New York-Washington - Boston area have been instructed to hold their interviews in office buildings off campus.

But in other parts of the U.S. the majority of CIA interviews are still being conducted on the college grounds, the spokesman said.

One exception is at the University of Colorado where interviews scheduled for Nov. 20-22 will probably be moved to a federal building in Denver.

The spokesman explained that where there are indications that the presence of a CIA recruiter on campus will set off a disturbance or embarass the university, the CIA prefers to move its interviews to a federal building off campus.

Hit-Run Driver Pays $300 Fine

A driver who struck a parked vehicle and then failed to stop was fined $300 Thursday.

Huizen Rykelyk, 39, of 3216 Wicklow, was fined $250 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and $50 for careless driving.

Magistrate's court was told convictions for similar offences dating back to 1962.

All Phone Lines Into Los Angeles Jammed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The publishers of two teen-age magazines said Thursday night the telephone company cut off their service because of a promotion that had jammed all long-distance lines into Los Angeles Wednesday night.

The magazines Dig and Fifteen, products of I. C. Publications, had announced that teen-agers anywhere could call collect and talk Wednesday night with Mark Lindsay, a member of the Paul Revere and the Raiders singing group.

J. R. Cline, general commercial manager for Pacific Telephone Co., said the result was "detrimental to our subscribers who were unable to complete their calls."

A recording was added to the magazine's telephone line, saying:

"The star night interviews have been discontinued."

Prior to the telephone company's action, a spokesman for I. D. Publications said Thursday the magazine would accept collect calls to a different singing star on the 15th of each month.

Thousands of teen-agers' calls didn't get through to Lindsay because of the jammed lines.

The teenage talkathon Wednesday night drew calls from thousands of teen-agers from all over the world and cut off incoming long-distance calls to Los Angeles for almost two hours.

The magazine's switchboard logged at least 10,000 calls from Australia, Tokyo, London and the United States. Thousands more were trying to call but couldn't get through.

. . . RETENTIONISTS

"The mental barbarism, and I don't believe that's putting it too strongly, that characterizes executions and the awaiting of executions should have no place in our society."

If man took upon himself God's right to punish, he must also take upon himself God's promise to restore, he said.

Seventeen men now are under sentence of death in Canada.

Richard Bell (PC—Carleton) asked whether the government will carry out the law if the bill is defeated.

"Mr. Speaker, if this bill is defeated, then the law of Canada will be carried out," Mr. Pearson replied.

Asked by George Muir (PC—Lisga) how he could support a limited move to abolition if he felt the gallows was purely retaliatory, the prime minister replied that "three-quarters of a loaf is better than none."

"I hope that we will have total abolition before long."

LAST IN 1962

The Liberal government has commuted all 27 death sentences brought before it since taking office in 1963. The last execution in Canada was a double one Dec. 11, 1962, in Toronto's Don Jail.

A free vote April 5, 1966, on a bill to abolish capital punishment altogether was defeated 143 to 112 in one of the heaviest votes in recent years in the 265-seat House.

Mr. Cowan, a Liberal renegade and perhaps the staunchest retentionist in the Commons, lashed out at the cabinet for its policy of commutation and for bringing capital punishment to a vote for the second time in the same Parliament.

"I say that every one of these commutations has been illegal," Mr. Cowan contended in perhaps the most savage attack of the debate.

The death sentences of Georges Marcotte, who machine-gunned two policemen during a Montreal bank robbery, and Reginald Colpitts, who stabbed to death a Dorchester penitentiary guard, had been commuted.

MENTIONS CASES

The alternative in the bill of life in prison had meant an average term of eight years, 10 months and one day, he said, referring to 13 cases dealt with since the Liberals took office.

The bill would give a life sentence to a killer of women and children but if the same man killed a policeman or prison guard, "he will swing for it.

"The man or woman does not live who can tell me any policeman or prison guard is more important to this nation than my wife or daughters or my six grandchildren," he added, in an emotional pitch that drew applause from the mainly retentionist Conservative benches.

The proposed law said that a man could go to Rideau Hall and shoot the Governor-General or his wife and get "eight years, 10 months and one day."

"If any man shoots the policeman at the gate, he will swing for it.

"I ask you, why keep the Governor-General inside when he is not as important as the policeman at the gate.

"Let us put the valuable man, the policeman, in Rideau Hall and put the Governor-General at the gate."

The biting sally drew laughter.

HOME GARDEN

Prepare 'Mums' For Yule Blooms

By HILDA BEASTALL

To have fine chrysanthemums in bloom for Christmas a home gardener need only buy a few rooted cuttings in spring of late flowering varieties.

Hilda

From then on, they would be treated much the same as outdoor earlies, even growing them in garden beds.

Some gardeners prefer to grow these late chrysanthemums in large pots right from the time the cuttings are available in May. This saves digging the plants from the beds in September and avoids any check in growth resulting from the move.

Feeding and watering was a constant need during the summer, and now that their plants are full of buds and some beginning to bloom, feeding can be discontinued but the need for water is just as great.

With the pots standing either on a porch, in an unheated greenhouse or shed, or perhaps in a conservatory-type room attached to the home, fresh air must be admitted throughout the day. Without it, flowers and foliage will be poor.

The plants grown in a temperature ranging between 45 degs. F. at night to 65 degs. in the daytime will come along more rapidly than those without any artificial heat, but the normal blooming dates for the varieties govern the sequence of bloom.

At this date, any new growths showing buds may as well be pinched off for they are unlikely to flower and only weaken those already producing buds.

Apart from the large flowered disbuds, an excellent strain of chrysanthemums for winter blooms under shelter are the Godfreys, with quantities of large single flowers in pink, biscuit gold, and dark red.

Bank Executive Hunt Continues

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The search for a chief executive officer for the Bank of British Columbia continues, effectively delaying the hiring of permanent staff.

Bank secretary D. M. Clark said Thursday the executive officer is being sought from among possible candidates in many parts of the continent, but it was hoped the man chosen would be Canadian.

The bank's directors think the chief executive should have a say in the engagement of staff, hence the delay in hiring.

Mr. Clark said it is hoped the bank will be in operation "as soon as possible," which previously has been taken to mean early in 1968.

Victoria industrialist Harold B. Elworthy is serving as president for the interim period, and when operations begin Victoria will be the site of a charter branch.

The last meeting of the directors chose the final form of stock certificates and a printing order has been given. By Jan. 15 it is expected the 11,700 original subscribers will be able to exchange their certificates for shares.

A total 510,555 shares were subscribed for, realizing $12.763 million capitalization.

A Vancouver-based company launched into the international sphere in an attempt to take advantage of the travel boom has formed a new alliance in Europe.

Captain International Industries Ltd. has rights to an electronic room service machine, the Bell Captain, that dispenses up to 15 personal need items and automatically bills the room guest through a front desk connection.

The guest pays for such items as toothpaste, small bottles of liquor, shaving needs and shoe laces from a machine in his room as he settles his account on check-out.

Hawker Siddeley Canada has an agreement with Captain International to make 500 of the machines for use in hotels and motels across the continent and abroad.

Captain International was formed in 1961, changing its name twice before settling on the present title. Its president is Keith Baldwin, who points to hotel-motel industry expansion projections for the next four years supplied for several European countries by the Canadian government.

The new link is between the parent firm and a British-Swiss company, Bell Captain S. A. of Geneva and Whitehall Court, London, which has marketing and servicing rights for Europe.

It is owned 50 per cent by Captain International and general manager is W. R. Anderson. Exclusive rights have been granted in Britain and Ireland to Phonographic Equipment Co. Ltd., of London, and its QuickMaid Services Ltd., which is active in the food and beverage business.

An initial order of 78 machines has been given on behalf of Bell Captain S. A.

Surveys indicate a western world uranium shortage by 1973 due to limits of production as seen today.

Canada is already under pressure to agree to export contracts that will commit even more uranium supplies than are now tied up in Japanese and British markets.

Production capacity, according to a study of the uranium committee, Canadian Nuclear Association, is less than 40,000 tons while power plant demand will be more than double that by 1980.

City Businessman Will Retire Soon

Retirement of Courtney Haddock as manager of its Victoria department store was announced today by Woodward Stores Ltd., ending 44 years of service with the company.

The move is effective Jan. 31, coinciding with Woodward's fiscal year-end, and means Mr. Haddock will relinquish the post of company vice-president.

His replacement as store manager will be Horace Drew, now serving as manager of Woodward's Guildford store in Surrey, which opened a few months ago.

Prior to that Mr. Drew was New Westminster store manager, and before that he coordinated food services for the department store chain and handled buying at Woodward's Toronto office.

IN HOSPITAL

The move was announced as Mr. Haddock recuperates in Royal Jubilee Hospital from a minor operation.

He came to Victoria in 1951 to open and manage Woodward's specialty store in the downtown business district. When the company decided to expand the operation he was instrumental in obtaining the site for Mayfair shopping centre on north Douglas Street, where his office is today.

Before coming here Mr. Haddock was widely known as an authority on English chinaware, for which he was buyer and department manager in the Vancouver store for 22 years.

Prior to that he was a men's wear clerk and before joining Woodward's was a vacuum cleaner salesman who took courses at a business school.

An unorthodox business figure, Mr. Haddock is a staunch free enterpriser who believes in qualified shock treatment for governments and the business community to keep them alert and working in the public interest.

As he turned over the job of president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce to his successor two months ago he lashed government spending and chided tourist operations for not supporting their industry financially.

The retiring manager has been anything but retiring in public affairs and community effort. He is now chairman for the second time of Royal Jubilee board of directors, chairman of Salvation Army advisory board and Vancouver Island heart foundation; he has been cited for his work for the tri-university capital fund drive and Jubilee building campaign; he is a past commodore of Victoria Power Squadron, is an organized hockey booster and ardent fisherman.

Carter Defends His Tax Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Kenneth Carter Thursday defended the tax system he has advocated for Canada and rejected claims that it would be impractical, socialistic and damaging to the country.

But the chairman of the royal commission on taxation made one candid admission in a speech to the Ottawa Canadian Club. Some recommendations, as critics suggest, lack political acumen, he said.

"I felt it was most important that recommendations be made wholly in the interests of the country and without regard to the election of our politicians.

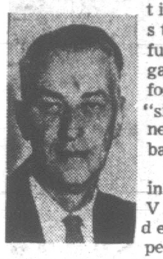
Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1967—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

For a start on a pot-luck day, I trust you will join me in crying shame on purse-proud Toronto, which recently ordered Montreal to return the benches and trash cans borrowed for Expo use, or else make good on them to the tune of $40,000.

Now, a Montreal-based scout tells me, that city's telephone employees' association has started a fund to buy garbage cans for Toronto, "since they need them so badly."



Meanwhile, in a Greater Victoria determinedly peaceable in spite of the constant jeers and jabs aimed at her by high-and-mighty Vancouver, we are being treated to an internal broil of the sort that could only happen here.

It began when Hugh Curtis, who for my money is the best reeve distressful Saanich ever elected, gave a flat denial to the charge that his municipality smells.

The result was a deluge of rebuttals from Saanich householders—some of whom might help achieve purer air by looking to their septic lines—who insisted that the odors assailing them bore no relation to Chanel.

As a matter of fact, there are a few areas where the reeve might not choose to linger at the wrong time and season, but the general condition has improved considerably in our peninsular paradise. I'm all for sewers and so is the reeve; but a total cure is going to take time and plenty money.

Don't, though, confuse that occasional night and early-morning stench of rotten eggs with our Saanich domestic problem. The other is air pollution wafted down from Crofton, and is—or should be—the provincial government's problem.

Out today is a brisk four-page paper published for a reading audience of high school students, parents, teachers, and anyone else who can latch on to a copy. The sheet is called "Mosaic," and its first-issue run of 7,500 will, I trust, be snatched up in short order.

School board regulations forbid the distributions of Mosaic in the schools, but publisher Allard van Veen tells me that the publication will be available just beyond schoolgrounds, also here and there about the town.

Mr. Van Veen, a Uvic freshman, made it plain when he stopped by on Thursday that Mosaic is in no sense a school paper. It's entirely independent, stands for good and progressive education, and hopes to be non-political. It is given away free.

Student contributions financed its first run. The publisher hopes that sale of advertising space will help him and a high school staff with further issues.

The initial effort contains a criticism of high school counselling, an account of experiments in responsibility at Reynolds secondary, and word of a proposed B.C. Assembly of Students' opinion survey as to the rightness or wrongness of that well-publicized short story.

Five issues of Mosaic will, all going well, be brought out each school year.

Good luck, say I, and rough sailing!

If our sports car population appears to have grown over the weekend, be assured that it has indeed. For the first time in 10 years, Victoria Motor Sports Club will be playing host to the International Conference of Sports Car Clubs. Most if not all of the 140 delegates from the Pacific Northwest and Alaska will converge on the city in their trim little snarlers.

Conference clubs are dedicated to road racing over prepared tracks that would cause the average family-car driver to turn a pale green and hunt another route.

They consist mostly of esses (spell it "S's" if you prefer), hairpins and suicidal-seeming descents called deer-leaps.

Our local outfit jousts for championship hill-climb points twice each year on the road that twists to the summit of Mount Douglas—a route that offers some fairly convincing deer-leaps, hairpins and esses.

ROYAL CANADIAN LEGION SCHOLARSHIPS worth a total of $5,000 and designed to further the education of high schol and university students were presented Thursday at a special ceremony. Automation Fears Called 'Red Herring'

Shingle union comments about automation were labelled "a blatant red herring" today by a spokesman for the management of McCarter Shingle and Shake Limited.

"I have never heard such absolute nonsense," the spokesman said. "The plant just started up in June and we had not even got existing machinery going to full production."

After a 30-union solidarity picket Thursday morning at the strike-bound mill, Shingle Weavers Union Local 2802 business agent Bruce Robertson said management had created much fear and suspicion among workers by not making clear its automation aims.

'MUCH MORE'

He also said the 17 employees on strike since Oct. 17 for a first contract want wage rates similar to others in the industry. The company has stated the union wants "much more."

The company spokesman said the union originally wanted $3.05 for primary splitters but this was increased to $3.25 an hour. For sawyers, it originally wanted 89 cents per square plus $1.05 an hour but raised this to 86 cents per square plus $1.50 an hour.

In addition, sawyers wanted a minimum wage guarantee of $33 a day compared with the industry guarantee of $28.50.

Earlier, the company said it had offered "the highest incentive rates in the industry."

Curtis Makes Formal Entry Into Election

First elected in October, 1964, after Reeve Stanley Murphy resigned, he was re-elected by acclamation two years ago.

Two persons have filed nomination papers for council — A. W. Mesher and Councillor William Noel.

Three persons are in the race for the single seat on the Greater Victoria School Board — Douglas Brown, Richard Reeve and Cecil Wyatt. No one has come forward for the single vacancy in Saanich School Board, which extends from Royal Oak northwards.

Deadline for nominations is Monday Nov. 27.

FISH KNIVES, CASH STOLEN

Two filleting knives, a $78 cheque and $30 in cash were stolen overnight from Dennis Shellfish Company, 405 Yates St.

City detectives said a padlock on the ground floor door was forced.

Thieves also forced their way into the parked car of John F. Cabeldu, 730 Humboldt, and tore a $110 tape recorder from its dash mounting.

By KATHARINE THOMAS

The desire to give a child "as good a home as I had" prompted Michael Minter and his wife Pauline to adopt a little boy from the Family and Children's Service.

Mr. Minter, an auto mechanic who came from England three years ago, is himself adopted.

"I wasn't denied opportunities and now I want to give them to another child," he says. "If I hadn't been adopted, there's no telling where I might have ended up."

The Minters already have a three-year-old girl, Kay Rebecca and Mrs. Minter is expecting another child.

They adopted Andrew Frederick, a year and a half ago, when he was six weeks old. "It's amazing, he's got my double crown and my double thumb," says Mrs. Minter.

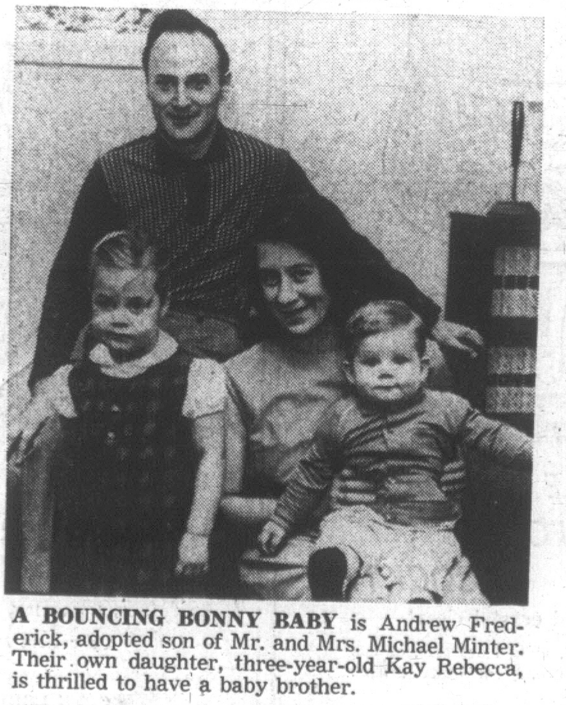
"It's marvellous how they match the child to the family," Mr. Minter added. "You don't think of them as adopted once they are your own children."

The Minters feel that many children, particularily boys—there is a greater demand for girls—are desperately in need of a good home.

"We wanted to help fill the need," Mr. Minter says.

They believe that many people are afraid of adoption because of all the "red tape" and the fear of intrusion into their private life.

"Many people feel that they are not good enough—that they have to be super-parents to be able to adopt," Mr. Minter says.



A BOUNCING BONNY BABY is Andrew Frederick, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Minter. Their own daughter, three-year-old Kay Rebecca, is thrilled to have a baby brother.

"But it is not true. The adoption process is a simple one. During the six-month 'probation,' the agency makes appointments for three visits—but they're more like social visits.

"You are required to have separate interviews and then interviews together before the child is placed," Mrs. Minter added. "But the agency just wants to make sure the arrangement will be satisfactory, that the child will be happy and that you will be happy with him.

"When you realize that someone's whole future is at stake, you see it's not much to ask. The agency has the terrific responsibility of finding good homes."

"All children when young are bright," says Mr. Minter, "it's the home environment that makes the difference."

"It really requires something special; too many people get a romantic notion about adopting a racially different child, but they don't realize the responsibilities involved," says Mrs. Minter.

How did their own child react to Andrew?

"She was thrilled to death," says Mrs. Minter. "She knows where he came from, but she also knows he's ours now, and ours to keep."

The Minters are determined Andrew will know he is adopted.

"I want it out in the open," says Mr. Minter. "A child should feel he can ask any question and get an honest answer.

"It does make some difference if you're adopted. But there is always the stock answer—an adopted child knows his parents love and want him because they chose him."

'COME AND ASK QUESTIONS'

A public meeting for prospective adopting parents and interested citizens will be held by the Family and Children's Service Monday at 8 p.m. at Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook Street. A panel made up of people who have been adopted, adopting parents and social workers will answer questions.

FUND DRIVE STARTS NEXT FRIDAY

Christmas and Dr. Lotta on Way

Dr. Lotta's on the move again.

Her appearance in Victoria to begin a cross-country drive to raise funds for the Unitarian Service Committee's work with children in Asian countries has become as regular an institution as Christmas.

This year is no exception.

Dr. Hitschmanova's campaign will get off to a good start Friday, November 24, when she shows colored slides and comments on "The World We Never See" at a public coffee party from 2 to 5 p.m., at the St. John Ambulance Headquarters, 941 Pandora Avenue.

It will be the 15th year the Times has sponsored the Christmas Apeal and the 23rd anniversary of the founding of Dr. Lotta's organization.

Last year the Times collected more than $13,000 for the "Save the Children" Fund. The money helped to make food, clothing, shelter, education and medical supplies available for youngsters who would otherwise have perished.

Blast Victim's Condition Termed 'Fair'

Four-Hour Session On Operating Table

A scientist sprayed with acid and glass in a laboratory explosion Thursday is reported still in fair condition.

Surgeons had Dr. Joseph Baker, 44, on the operating room table for four hours Thursday afternoon as they removed particles of glass which blasted him when his experiment blew up.

He also suffered burns from the acid involved in the soil experiment.

The blast in the second-floor laboratory at the federal Forest Research Laboratory, 506 West Burnside, blew out a safety glass door on the experimental apparatus, shattered windows and light fixtures.

Lab technician Eric Payne, 20, also suffered cuts and acid burns but of a less serious nature.

Only Dr. Baker probably has the answer to why the explosive perchloric acid went up, the laboratory's director, R. R. Lejeune said today. And it could be some time before he reports.

The acid, which is both corrosive and explosive, is used in minute quantities and is a common agent in analysis. Thursday's blast is the first serious accident in any of the chain of federal laborities in many years.

SHOWER FAILED

A safety shower in the laboratory for such emergencies failed to function Thursday and Mr. Lejeune said he does not know why.

Tests on it cannot be made until the laboratory has been put in order sufficiently to pass fire department inspection and therefore may be delayed until Monday.

The director said a rough estimate of damage from the explosion would be $2,000.

Dr. Baker is married and has a 10-month-old daughter. He came to the Victoria laboratory in 1965 from the federal department of agriculture at Prince George.

'Merciful As I Can' —Ostler

Carl Raymond, 22-year-old bank robber, today was sentenced to three years in the British Columbia Penitentiary by Magistrate William Ostler.

"I am being as merciful as I can under the circumstances," Magistrate Ostler told the London, Ont., man who held up the Bank of Montreal at Fort and Richmond Oct. 13 and took $1,555 at the point of an unloaded shotgun.

Raymond at first denied the charge of armed robbery and then changed his plea to guilty.

Magistrate Ostler said he was impressed by the probation officer's report and was not without compassion for the accused.

'DESPERATE'

"You were faced with a desperate situation and committed a serious crime. It is to your credit that the gun was not loaded but the victims (the people in the bank) did not know that.

"The fact that the gun was not loaded puts the offence in a less serious light.

"I cannot suspend sentence. I must protect society but I am very concerned about your rehabilitation so I shall send you to where you can get guidance and training," Magistrate Ostler said.

He also "highly commended" the police on the quick capture of Raymond.

Prior to sentence Raymond said he had learned his lesson in the 35 days he had spent in jail since his capture a few hours after the robbery. He planned to start up his own business and his wife is willing to take him back, he said.

She was with him in Victoria but has since returned to Ontario.

Talks Due Soon On River Switch

A multi-million-dollar diversion of part of the Fraser River's tributary system may be undertaken soon.

Serious discussions are about to start on sharing costs for the scheme which would divert part of the Shuswap River's flow into Okanagan Lake, Water Resources Minister Ray Williston said today in an interview.

He said the diversion is needed because increasing population an expanding irrigated vineyard acreages for the wine industry are seriously lowering the lake's level during dry periods.

It could result in the level becoming too low for anyone to be able to use the numerous and expensive recreational facilities already installed around the lake," he said.

"The lake's greatest importance is recreational and this importance is increasing all the time."

An engineering study was undertaken by the province, with federal assistance under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act, a year ago to find a solution.

It proposed diverting the Shuswap, which flows west and north into the Thompson River which in turn joins the Fraser.

The study said there were two feasible ways of raising the Shuswap River's height the necessary 30 feet to send part of it across the watershed divide 20 miles southward into Okanagan Lake.

$16 MILLION

At a 50-year cost of $16 million, a half-mile-long earthfill dam could raise the river's level high enough to spill water by gravity feed into a canal-and-creek system that would feed Okanagan Lake.

For $14.7 million over 50 years, a smaller concrete dam, pumping station and pipeline system could be built to feed the lake.

In both bases, the dams would be near Enderby. The study added that the cost of the first alternative could be reduced if suitable earthfill material was found near the damsite.

330,000 PERSONS

Both schemes ultimately would provide enough water for Okanagan Lake to meet the domestic and industrial needs of about 330,000 persons in the lake area.

That's four times the present population.

Diversion also would permit increasing the present 60,000 acres of irrigated land by 123,000 acres.

However, Mr. Williston said that some residents of the area are agitating for the canal proposal on an expanded basis so that boaters could use it.

This would connect the huge Shuswap lakes and rivers system to Lake Okanagan and the Columbia River system in Washington State.

But it would increase both the capital and operating costs of the diversion "by many millions", he said.

Ask The Times

Q. Does holly grow in Michigan? L.M.

A. The Encyclopedia Brittanica says that holly grows in the U.S. from Massachusetts to Florida, west to Texas and north to Indiana, which would preclude Michigan. But florist Keith McEachern says that a type of holly does grow in Michigan but not the same type as our Christmas holly.

Q. What is the source of the quotation which starts out "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year, Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown . . .?" H.M.S.

A. A work, God Knows, by Minnie Louise Haskins.

Belmont Park Work Coming for Painters

A make-work try by members of Victoria local of the painters' union has paid off.

MP David Groos told the Times he had been successful in asking the department of defence construction to call for tenders on the painting of 251 houses in Belmont Park naval married quarters.

Two tenders for separate contracts to paint the interiors of the buildings will be called within two weeks, Mr. Groos said.

Business representative A. H. Gildemeester of Local 1163, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, had written Mr. Groos pointing out the need of employment for painters during the winter months and the fact that Belmont Park houses were due for painting this year.

National Medicare Delay Firms Up at Conference

Times News Services

The scheme is due to come into effect July 1 next year and estimated to cost about $800 million on a 50-50 federal provincial split.

Mr. Sharp's call for belt-tightening has made medicare postponement likely although the official government stand is that medicare will go ahead as planned unless provinces ask for a delay.

Ottawa is hoping that all the provinces will request an adjournment and while almost all the provinces would like to see the plan delayed, they would prefer that Ottawa make the move.

ONLY PROVINCE

Premier Bennett was the only minister Thursday who specifically stated that he wants the federal money next July 1, and that British Columbia's current medical plan will be altered to conform with the federal criteria.

Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher, a Liberal, appeared to open the door for an agreement when he suggested a further postponement for one year.

Mr. Thatcher had the strongest hand among the premiers as his province already has medicare.

But he added that Saskatchewan could not afford to lose scheduled equalization payments and medicare at the same time and would need one or the other.

SHARP TODAY

Mr. Sharp, who will speak today on the provincial representations on medicare, told reporters Thursday night: "I know of no intention by the federal government to change its legislation, but of course when provinces make representations to us we give them careful consideration because they are very much involved in financing a medicare program."

He spoke to Prime Minister Lester Pearson following the first sessions of the two-day meeting.

$2,500 Donation

The business division of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal came closer to its target this morning with a $2,500 donation from Victoria Machinery Depot.

The donation helped the daily audited total up to $546,009 or 91 per cent of the $600,000 target.

Also helping was another $1,000 from the Oak Bay-Saanich residential division which had already exceeded its quota.

Historic Moon 'Hop' Taken by Surveyor

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor VI made an historic "hop" on the moon today, scientists say, becoming the first earth rocket to lift off the lunar surface.

The three-legged, picture-taking spacecraft, which soft-landed on the moon's Central Bay November 9, reached an altitude of about 10 feet on a 6½-second flight initiated by signals from the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

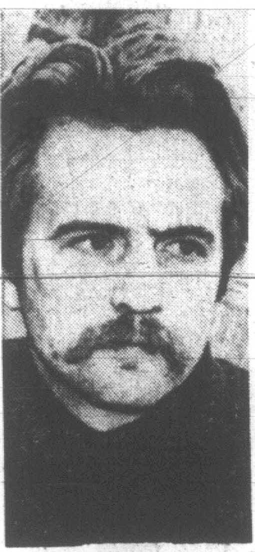
The U.S. mooncraft landed about eight feet from its original position. Scientists said the manoeuvre was designed to tell them more about the lunar surface.

"This will help the Apollo people know the strength of the surface since they'll have to fire rockets to return to earth," a laboratory spokesman explained. He referred to the Apollo program aimed at landing a man on the moon.

BOLIVIA CRACKDOWN

Writer Gets 30-Year Term

CAMIRI (AP)—A Bolivian military tribunal today convicted French Marxist author Regis Debray and Argentine Cira Roberto Bustos of leftist guerrilla crimes and sentenced each to 30 years in prison.



DEBRAY
. . . pen or gun?

The five-member tribunal freed four Bolivians also charged with guerrilla activity against the state. Specific charges against the six were murder, robbery and subversion.

Defence lawyers for Debray and Bustos said they plan to appeal the sentences to the Supreme War Council in La Paz, the Bolivian capital.

Debray and Bustos went on trial along with the four Bolivians in this small southeast Bolivian oil town Sept. 27.

Although 12 prosecution witnesses testified against Debray and Bustos, there was no evidence presented which directly linked either of them with combat activity.

ARMED WITH RIFLES

The two admitted they stood guard duty armed with M-1 rifles, which also were used on hunting expeditions.

Debray, 27, author of the guerrilla handbook Revolution Within Revolution, maintained from the start he was in Bolivia as a journalist for a Mexican magazine. He said he had asked the late Ernesto (Che) Guevara for permission to join the rebels as a combatant but was turned down.

Excerpts read earlier this week from Guevara's diary backed up this contention. Guevara had written that he felt Debray would have been more useful to the movement operat-

'No Basis' For Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said today the Soviet Union has not "the slightest basis or justification" for claiming connivance of Canadian authorities in anti-Soviet demonstrations Nov. 7 in Ottawa and Montreal. (See story, Page 21.)

Bomb Blasts Hall Before Snowdon Visit

CARDIFF, Wales (AP) — A bomb blast smashed the doorway and entrance hall of Cardiff's Temple of Peace today shortly before Lord Snowdon arrived there for a conference on Prince Charles' investiture as Prince of Wales.

Police sources blamed the explosion on extremists demanding home rule for the Welsh. As Snowdon calmly entered the meeting hall, demonstrators waved banners outside. One proclaimed: "Republic, not royalty."

The blast broke windows throughout the area, but there were no reports of injuries. Police found evidence of a crude time bomb placed on a shelf above the front doors of the temple—built as a symbol of Welsh devotion to peaceful causes.

Another member of the Royal Family, Princess Alexandra, was on the periphery of a bombing attempt Thursday when she opened a new Northern Ireland government office in London after a home-made explosive device was found on its steps and dismantled. Police refused to speculate whether the outlawed Irish Republican Army planted the bomb.

Snowdon was to discuss three months of celebrations planned by the Welsh Tourist Board to surround the investiture ceremony.

Welsh nationalists have said the pomp will cost $7,000,000 and have threatened to sabotage every step of the celebrations.

Charles, 19-year-old heir to the British throne, is to be presented formally to the people of Wales at Caernarvon Castle, ancient seat of Welsh kings July 1, 1969.

LOAN ON WAY

Pound Slides To Floor Price

LONDON (UPI)—One of the wildest days in London market history ended today with world-wide speculation on whether Britain's currency could survive its worst crisis since 1949 without devaluation.

At the end of a hectic day of trading on the foreign currency exchange, the pound closed at the psychological "floor" price of $2,7825.

Near the end of the day, Swiss bankers said Britain would obtain the $1 billion loan she sought in hard negotiating with the so-called "group of ten" richest nations meeting in Paris.

Sources said the Bank of England spent tens of millions in precious dollars and gold reserves to keep the pound from slipping beneath $2.7825.

SILENCE SCORED

Conservatives appealed to the Speaker of the House of Commons to break the continuing silence of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government on reports Britain was negotiating a one-billion-dollar loan to restore confidence in the pound. The effort failed.

A British minister pledged in Paris that the pound would not be devalued. It did not remove tremendous, day-long pressures against the pound.

VANCOUVER FOGGED IN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first heavy fog of the season blanketed out the Vancouver area early today, delaying planes and shipping and causing a general slowdown in city traffic.

Canadian Pacific Airlines said three incoming flights were diverted from Vancouver International Airport to Abbotsford, in the Fraser Valley. Air Canada reported four flights were cancelled.

The P. and O. Orient liner Orcades, scheduled to dock Thursday night, was delayed and anchored outside the harbour for the night.

STRATEGIC HILL GRABBED BY U.S.

SAIGON (AP)—United States infantrymen, driving through a murderous blaze of North Vietnamese machine-gun and small arms fire, late today seized the top of a strategic hill overlooking Dak To, in South Vietnam's central highlands.

The U.S. command in Saigon said 17 Americans were killed and 24 wounded in the fight. There was no immediate word about North Vietnamese casualties.

Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett reported from the batle scene that soldiers of the United States 4th Infantry Division "occupied the topmost point of the hill around 5 p.m. after some of the blodiest fighting" in the two weeks of heavy combat in the area close to the Laotian and Cambodian borders.

'Bomb Pause Won't Start Peace Talks'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said today Hanoi's own response has shown that stopping United States air attacks on North Vietnam alone will not bring the Communists to the negotiating table.

He said Hanoi's rejection of his latest offer of peace talks—made last weekend aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise—had been "clear and complete." That should answer the question of every person in the U.S. who thinks a bombing halt alone will accomplish this end, he said.

"There are some hopeful people and there are some naive people and there are some political people" who advocate a one-sided bombing suspension, but such proposals just "confuse and weaken our position," he told a news conference.

Johnson said "we are pleased with the results we're getting" in the Vietnam war. He added his military commander anticipates no increase in the previously authorized U.S. troop strength.

Reporting on his current talks with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and his Vietnam commander, Gen. William C. Westmoreland—both back from South Vietnam from consultations—Johnson said:

"We are making progress. We are pleased with the results we're getting. We are inflicting greater losses than we are taking."

WANT QUICK ACTION

Johnson said the American people are impatient in war or in a football game, and want the action to build up quickly and the enemy to be defeated rapidly.

But it's not that kind of war the U.S. is fighting in Vietnam, John said.

"In 1954, we said we'd stand with those people out there to meet the common danger. The time came when we had to put up or shut up. We put up."

Johnson said U.S. aims in Vietnam have been clear from the beginning.

"I thought even all the preachers in the country had heard about it," he said, a reference to a recent sermon he sat through at Williamsburg, Va., in which the minister asked for a fuller explanation of why

ANGRY AT PM's REMARKS

Vote Set Next Wednesday; Retentionists Force Delay

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson's description of capital punishment as "mental barbarism" aroused retentionists and shattered an all-party agreement that was to have brought an abolitionist bill to a Commons vote Thursday night.

Mr. Pearson was to have closed the five-day debate but his remark brought a flock of retentionists to their feet either to protest his remarks or to review the aguments.

They were led by David Fulton (PC—Kamloops), the former justice minister, who said the prime minister had made "a maudlin appeal to emotion."

"Our case, and the moral justification of it, is equally good if not better than the prime minister's," Mr. Fulton said.

Nevertheless, a test vote on a surprise motion by Georges Lachance (L—Montreal Lafontaine) that would have killed the bill was easily defeated 125 to 76.

This was regarded as an indicator that the bill itself will carry when the key vote on its principle is taken.

RESUMES WEDNESDAY

The debate was adjourned at 10 p.m. and will not resume before next Wednesday, barring a change in the agenda of House business given by Government House Leader MacEachen.

Detailed study of a bill to establish a department of consumer and corporate affairs is scheduled today.

The final supply motion of the session goes before the House Monday and Tuesday, opening the way for a test of confidence in the government.

Under the capital punishment bill hanging for murder would be limited to killers of prison guards and police.

The highlights in its fifth day of debate were the 32-minute Pearson speech—a wholehearted rejection of capital punishment—and a passionate defence of the gallows by Ralph Cowan (L—York-Humber).

Mr. Pearson said retentionists had been unable to prove the deterrent value of the death penalty and had to fall back on emotional arguments.

Through execution of murderers, society fell into the trap of treating them as they had their victims. And no murder ever matched the horror of capital punishment.

BREAKTHROUGH IN OCEAN EXPLORATION

Canada Unveils 'Deep Plunge Satellite'

OTTAWA (CP) — A Defence Research Board scientist has developed a "reverse satellite" to explore inner space—the world's oceans.

Colleagues of Donald A. Grant, 40, of Pictou, N.S., today described his development as a great scientific breakthrough in oceanography.

Mr. Grant said of his three-ton oceanographic buoy: "It's the same as a satellite only the other way—into the ocean depths instead of into space."

He said the buoy, built by E. M. I. Cosser Ltd. of Dartmouth, N.S., will make possible replacement of weather ships at sea and faster and more thorough bottom-to-surface exploration of the world's oceans.

Information on the buoy, which has already plunged to a depth of 17,000 feet in trials, has just been taken off the secret list by the defence department.

The device apparently makes possible a more reliable submarine-detection system. The defence department declined comment on this aspect, however.

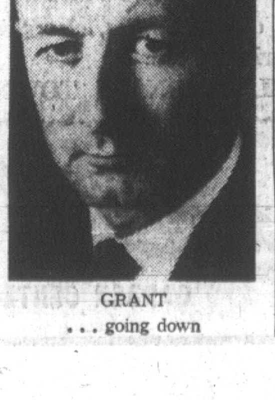
Mr. Grant heard Tuesday that it washed up a few days ago at the Portuguese fishing village of Peniche about 60 miles north of Lisbon.

The Portuguese navy put it under guard until it found out it was a buoy and not a bomb.

Cosser's address was printed on the buoy and the Portuguese got in touch with the Canadian embassy in Lisbon.

Mr. Grant left here today for Portugal to recover the instruments from the buoy.



GRANT
. . . going down

"We may be able to tell where it has been for the last year or more," he said in an interview.

The buoy comprises three main parts: A surface sphere, a power plant and instruments which can be lowered to any depth desired and a four claw, 1,000-pound anchor which grabs the ocean floor.

Mr. Grant said a camera can be attached to the anchor to photograph the ocean floor.

The great advantage of his buoy is that it can be moored permanently at sea and relay to aircraft or ships information not only on surface weather but on the speed and direction of under-surface ocean currents, temperature and pressure.

"We will be able to get under-surface weather information in the same way that our Alouette satellites collect information on the outer atmosphere and space," Mr. Grant said.

"There are clouds of water in the ocean as there are clouds in the sky. We have already discovered that fish congregate at the edges of these clouds where there are abrupt changes in temperature.

"This means the buoy can aid fishermen in locating fish."

OCEAN SECRETS will be unlocked with aid of three-ton buoy developed by Canadian Defence Research Board as test run in sea near Halifax success.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — The flax market lost ground in trading today on the Winnipeg grain exchange, but still drew most of the moderate activity which was centered around oilseeds.

Rapeseed prices were somewhat irregular with the November contracts, which go off the board soon, showing weakness.

Oats and barley trade was modest and associated with a domestic feed supply.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat all were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures advanced more than one cent on the board of trade today in fairly active dealings.

Wheat futures also gained one cent but it dissipated in a late wave of liquidation.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto, N.Y. Post Rises

Advances were posted again today on both the Toronto and New York stock exchanges.

AT TORONTO, Inco jumped 2 to 119¼, Pembina Pipe Line 1⅜ to 21⅞, Hudson's Bay Co. ¾ to a high of 22¼ and Royal Bank ⅜ to 15¼.

Asbestos Corp. moved up 1⅝ to 23⅞, Acklands 1 to 15⅝, Jefferson Lake ⅞ to 55⅞, Trans-Prairie Pipelines ⅝ to 8⅛ and Auto Electric ½ to 10.

Bank of Nova Scotia fell ½ to 13½, Seagrams and Imperial Oil ⅜ each to 39 and 66⅝ and Moore Corp. ¼ to 31½.

In base metals, Denison was up 1¾ to 79 and Roman Corp. 1¼ to 27¾. Patino was off ⅜ to 14¾ and Rio Algom ¼ to 33⅝.

Hudson's Bay Oil jumped 1¼ to a high of 40⅜ and Central-Del Rio ⅞ to 20½. Scurry-Rainbow fell 1¼ to 43¾.

AT NEW YORK the market made good its third straight daily advance and its second straight week of recovery.

Granby was up 3, Dome 2⅛, Inco 1¼ and CP 1⅛ among Canadians. Hudson Bay was down 1½, Distillers ½ and Alcan and Massey ⅛. Prices were mostly higher on the American exchange. Scurry lost ⅞ and Javelin ⅛. Fargo and Brazilian were up ⅛.

AT MONTREAL gainst and losses were about evenly matched in trading today.

International Nickel and Denison were the trading highlights. Inco jumped 2⅜ points to 119¼ on volume of 2,302 shares. Denison climbed 1½ points to 78½, rallying from sharp losses made earlier this week.

Imperial Oil dropped ½ to 66½, and Bank of Nova Scotia and Imperial Commerce ⅜ each to 13⅝ and 12.

AT LONDON heavy pressure on sterling and general confusion that followed the chancellor of the exchequer's refusal to comment on Thursday's reports of further loan negotiations, brought substantial selling of industrial shares on the stock market today.

There was little trading in gilt-edged stocks and prices were easier. Overseas banks raced ahead on currency fears. Royal Bank and Toronto-Dominion added 5s, or 6s.

Dollar stocks were firm. Inco was strong. Others to lead the way ahead were Hudson Bay and Noranda.

AT VANCOUVER gains and losses were about even on the mining section at noon today.

Brenda was up .10 from Thursday's close to $7 and Giant Mascot put on the same amount to $1.30. New Imperial gained .10 to $3.25.

Dynasty dropped .10 to $6.90 and Western Explorations was off .02 to .78.

In the industrials B.C. Sugar was up .50 to $43.50.

U.S. Balance Of Payments Deficit Slips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. balance of payments deficit slipped a bit further into the red during the third quarter of 1967. On the most-widely used accounting system — the liquitity basis — the deficit rose to $670 million from $550 million in the second quarter, both figures seasonally adjusted, according to the commerce department's preliminary figures.

Although the department said that this represented "a minor deterioration," the announcement was followed by these actions:

- The U.S. government said that its "voluntary" program for 1968 to reduce the flow of investment money abroad would be tightened.
- President Johnson named an industry-government task force, headed by Robert M. McKinney, publisher of the Santa Fe New Mexican, to come up with suggestions for increasing foreign travel here. The travel "gap" cost the U.S. 1.6 billion dollars last year. Suggestions that would curb U.S. travel abroad, or limit dollar expenditures abroad, have been rejected by the administration.
- Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler told a news conference that the widening payments deficit made the president's tax increase "indispensible" to protection of the dollar. Fowler's reasoning is that without a tax increase, inflation will take hold, thus making U.S. exports less competitive abroad.

The adverse balance for the first three-quarters of 1967 now stands at $1,750,000,000 — or well over the total of $1,357,000,000 for the entire year 1966.

For a start on a pot-luck day, I trust you will join me in crying shame on purse-proud Toronto, which recently ordered Montreal to return the benches and trash cans borrowed for Expo use, or else make good on them to the tune of $40,000.

Now, a Montreal-based scout tells me, that city's telephone employees' association has started a fund to buy garbage cans for Toronto, "since they need them so badly."

Meanwhile, in a Greater Victoria determinedly peaceable in spite of the constant jeers and jabs aimed at her by high-and-mighty Vancouver, we are being treated to an internal broil of the sort that could only happen here.

It began when Hugh Curtis, who for my money is the best reeve distressful Saanich ever elected, gave a flat denial to the charge that his municipality smells.

The result was a deluge of rebuttals from Saanich householders—some of whom might help achieve purer air by looking to their septic lines—who insisted that the odors assailing them bore no relation to Chanel.

As a matter of fact, there are a few areas where the reeve might not choose to linger at the wrong time and season, but the general condition has improved considerably in our peninsular paradise. I'm all for sewers and so is the reeve; but a total cure is going to take time and plenty money.

Don't, though, confuse that occasional night and early-morning stench of rotten eggs with our Saanich domestic problem. The other is air pollution wafted down from Crofton, and is—or should be—the provincial government's problem.

Out today is a brisk four-page paper published for a reading audience of high school students, parents, teachers, and anyone else who can latch on to a copy. The sheet is called "Mosaic," and its first-issue run of 7,500 will, I trust, be snatched up in short order.

School board regulations forbid the distributions of Mosaic in the schools, but publisher Allard van Veen tells me that the publication will be available just beyond schoolgrounds, also here and there about the town.

Mr. Van Veen, a Uvic freshman, made it plain when he stopped by on Thursday that Mosaic is in no sense a school paper. It's—entirely independent, stands for good and progressive education, and hopes to be non-political.

Student contributions financed its first run. The publisher hopes that sale of advertising space will help him and a high school staff with further issues.

The initial effort contains a criticism of high school counselling, an account of experiments in responsibility at Reynolds secondary, and word of a proposed B.C. Assembly of Students' opinion survey as to the rightness or wrongness of that well-publicized short story.

Five issues of Mosaic will, all going well, be brought out each school year.

Good luck, say I, and rough sailing!

If our sports car population appears to have grown over the weekend, be assured that it has indeed. For the first time in 10 years, Victoria Motor Sports Club will be playing host to the International Conference of Sports Car Clubs. Most if not all of the 140 delegates from the Pacific Northwest and Alaska will converge on the city in their trim little snarlers.

Conference clubs are dedicated to road racing over prepared tracks that would cause the average family-car driver to turn a pale green and hunt another route.

They consist mostly of esses (spell it "S's" if you prefer), hairpins and suicidal-seeming descents called deer-leaps.

Our local outfit jousts for championship hill-climb points twice each year on the road that twists to the summit of Mount Douglas—a route that offers some fairly convincing deer-leaps, hairpins and esses.

Automation Fears Called 'Red Herring'

Shingle union comments about automation were labelled "a blatant red herring" today by a spokesman for the management of McCarter Shingle and Shake Limited.

"I have never heard such absolute nonsense," the spokesman said. "The plant just started up in June and we had not even got existing machinery going to full production."

After a 30-union solidarity picket Thursday morning at the strike-bound mill, Shingle Weavers Union Local 2802 business agent Bruce Robertson said management had created much fear and suspicion among workers by not making clear its automation aims.

'MUCH MORE'

He also said the 17 employees on strike since Oct. 17 for a first contract want wage rates similar to others in the industry. The company has stated the union wants "much more."

The company spokesman said the union originally wanted $3.05 for primary splitters but this was increased to $3.25 an hour. For sawyers, it originally wanted 89 cents per square plus $1.05 an hour but raised this to 86 cents per square plus $1.50 an hour.

In addition, sawyers wanted a minimum wage guarantee of $33 a day compared with the industry guarantee of $28.50.

Earlier, the company said it had offered "the highest inventive rates in the industry."

FISH KNIVES, CASH STOLEN

Two filleting knives, a $78 cheque and $30 in cash were stolen overnight from Dennis Shellfish Company, 405 Yates St.

City detectives said a padlock on the ground floor door was forced.

Thieves also forced their way into the parked car of John F. Cabeldu, 730 Humboldt, and tore a $110 tape recorder from its dash mounting.

Curtis Makes Formal Entry Into Election

First election in October, 1964, after Reeve Stanley Murphy resigned, he was re-elected by acclamation two years ago.

Two persons have filed nomination papers for council — A. W. Mesher and Councillor William Noel.

Three persons are in the race for the single seat on the Greater Victoria School Board — Douglas Brown, Richard Reeve and Cecil Wyatt. No one has come forward for the single vacancy in Saanich School Board, which extends from Royal Oak northwards.

Deadline for nominations is Monday Nov. 27.

FUND DRIVE STARTS NEXT FRIDAY

Christmas and Dr. Lotta on Way

Dr. Lotta's on the move again.

Her appearance in Victoria to begin a cross-country drive to raise funds for the Unitarian Service Committee's work with children in Asian countries has become as regular an institution as Christmas.

This year is no exception.

Dr. Hitschmanova's campaign will get off to a good start Friday, November 24, when she shows colored slides and comments on "The World We Never See" at a public office party from 2 to 5 p.m., at the St. John Ambulance Headquarters, 941 Pandora Avenue.

It will be the 15th year the Times has sponsored the Christmas Apeal and the 23rd anniversary of the founding of Dr. Lotta's organization.

Last year the Times collected more than $13,000 for the "Save the Children" Fund. The money helped to make food, clothing, shelter, education and medical supplies available for youngsters who would otherwise have perished.

Blast Victim's Condition Termed 'Fair'

Four-Hour Session On Operating Table

A scientist sprayed with acid and glass in a laboratory explosion Thursday is reported still in fair condition.

Surgeons had Dr. Joseph Baker, 44, on the operating room table for four hours Thursday afternoon as they removed particles of glass which blasted him when his experiment blew up.

He also suffered burns from the acid involved in the soil experiment.

The blast in the second-floor laboratory at the federal Forest Research Laboratory, 506 West Burnside, blew out a safety glass door on the experimental apparatus, shattered windows and light fixtures.

Lab technician Eric Payne, 20, also suffered cuts and acid burns but of a less serious nature.

Only Dr. Baker probably has the answer to why the explosive perchloric acid went up, the laboratory's director, R. R. Lejeune said today. And it could be some time before he reports.

The acid, which is both corrosive and explosive, isused in minute quantities and is a common agent in analysis. Thursday's blast is the first serious accident in any of the chain of federal laborities in many years.

SHOWER FAILED

A safety shower in the laboratory for such emergencies failed to function Thursday and Mr. Lejeune said he does not know why.

Tests on it cannot be made until the laboratory has been put in order sufficiently to pass fire department inspection and therefore may be delayed until Monday.

The director said a rough estimate of damage from the explosion would be $2,000.

Dr. Baker is married and has a 10-month-old daughter. He came to the Victoria laboratory in 1965 from the federal department of agriculture at Prince George.

3 Years in Jail For Bank Holdup

'Merciful As I Can' —Ostler

Carl Raymond, 22-year-old bank robber, today was sentenced to three years in the British Columbia Penitentiary by Magistrate William Ostler.

"I am being as merciful as I can under the circumstances," Magistrate Ostler told the London, Ont., man who held up the Bank of Montreal at Fort and Richmond Oct. 13 and took $1,555 at the point of an unloaded shotgun.

Raymond at first denied the charge of armed robbery and then changed his plea to guilty.

Magistrate Ostler said he was impressed by the probation officer's report and was not without compassion for the accused.

'DESPERATE'

"You were faced with a desperate situation and committed a serious crime. It is to your credit that the gun was not loaded but the victims (the people in the bank) did not know that.

"The fact that the gun was not loaded puts the offence in a less serious light.

"I cannot suspend sentence. I must protect society but I am very concerned about your rehabilitation so I shall send you to where you can get guidance and training," Magistrate Ostler said.

He also "highly commended" the police on the quick capture of Raymond.

Prior to sentence Raymond said he had learned his lesson in the 35 days he had spent in jail since his capture a few hours after the robbery. He planned to start up his own business and his wife is willing to take him back, he said.

She was with him in Victoria but has since returned to Ontario.

Talks Due Soon On River Switch

A multi-million-dollar diversion of part of the Fraser River's tributary system may be undertaken soon.

Serious discussions are about to start on sharing costs for the scheme which would divert part of the Shuswap River's flow into Okanagan Lake, Water Resources Minister Ray Williston said today in an interview.

He said the diversion is needed because increasing population an expanding irrigated vineyard acreages for the wine industry are seriously lowering the lake's level during dry periods.

It could result in the level becoming too low for anyone to be able to use the numerous and expensive recreational facilities already installed around the lake," he said.

"The lake's greatest importance is recreational and this importance is increasing all the time."

An engineering study was undertaken by the province, with federal assistance under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act, a year ago to find a solution.

It proposed diverting the Shuswap, which flows west and north into the Thompson River which in turn joins the Fraser.

The study said there were two feasible ways of raising the Shuswap River's height the necessary 30 feet to send part of it across the watershed divide 20 miles southward into Okanagan Lake.

$16 MILLION

At a 50-year cost of $16 million, a half-mile-long earthfill dam could raise the river's level high enough to spill water by gravity feed into a canal-and-creek system that would feed Okanagan Lake.

For $14.7 million over 50 years, a smaller concrete dam, pumping station and pipeline system could be built to feed the lake.

In both bases, the dams would be near Enderby. The study added that the cost of the first alternative could be reduced if suitable earthfill material was found near the damsite.

330,000 PERSONS

Both schemes ultimately would provide enough water for Okanagan Lake to meet the domestic and industrial needs of about 330,000 persons in the lake area.

That's four times the present population.

Diversion also would permit increasing the present 60,000 acres of irrigated land by 123,000 acres.

However, Mr. Williston said that some residents of the area are agitating for the canal proposal on an expanded basis so that boaters could use it.

This would connect the huge Shuswap lakes and rivers system to Lake Okanagan and the Columbia River system in Washington State.

But it would increase both the capital and operating costs of the diversion "by many millions", he said.

Nobody Demands Super-Parents . . . Adoption Simple, Rewarding

By KATHARINE THOMAS

The desire to give a child "as good a home as I had" prompted Michael Minter and his wife Pauline to adopt a little boy from the Family and Children's Service.

Mr. Minter, an auto mechanic who came from England three years ago, is himself adopted.

"I wasn't denied opportunities and now I want to give them to another child," he says. "If I hadn't been adopted, there's no telling where I might have ended up."

The Minters already have a three-year-old girl, Kay Rebecca and Mrs. Minter is expecting another child.

They adopted Andrew Frederick, a year and a half ago, when he was six weeks old. "It's amazing, he's got my double crown and my double thumb," says Mrs. Minter.

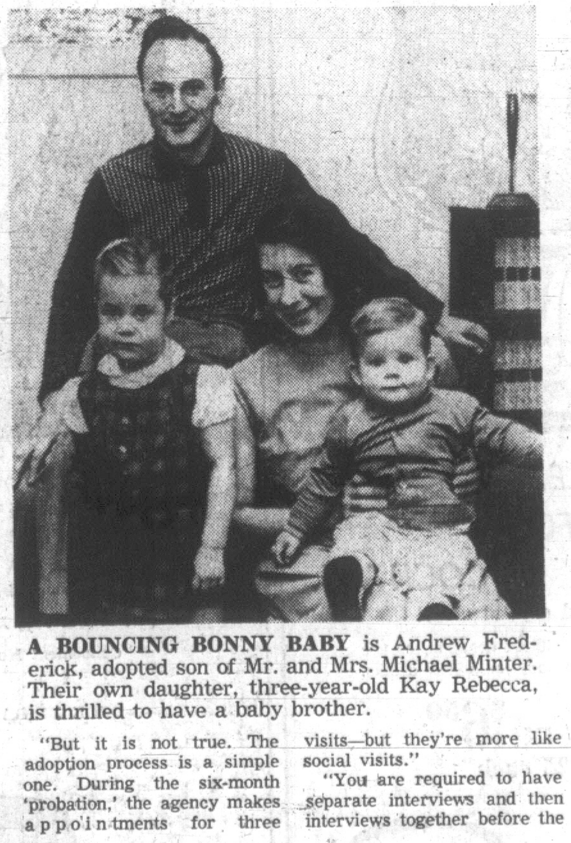
"It's marvellous how they match the child to the family," Mr. Minter added. "You don't think of them as adopted once they are your own children."

The Minters feel that many children, particularily boys—there is a greater demand for girls—are desperately in need of a good home.

"We wanted to help fill the need," Mr. Minter says.

They believe that many people are afraid of adoption because of all the "red tape" and the fear of intrusion into their private life.

"Many people feel that they are not good enough—that they have to be super-parents to be able to adopt," Mr. Minter says.



A BOUNCING BONNY BABY is Andrew Frederick, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Minter. Their own daughter, three-year-old Kay Rebecca, is thrilled to have a baby brother.

"But it is not true. The adoption process is a simple one. During the six-month 'probation,' the agency makes appointments for three visits—but they're more like social visits."

"You are required to have separate interviews and then interviews together before the child is placed," Mrs. Minter added. "But the agency just wants to make sure the arrangement will be satisfactory, that the child will be happy and that you will be happy with him.

"When you realize that someone's whole future is at stake, you see it's not much to ask. The agency has the terrific responsibility of finding good homes."

"All chidlren when young are bright," says Mr. Minter, "it's the home environment that makes the difference."

"It really requires something special; too many people get a romantic notion about adopting a racially different child, but they don't realize the responsibilities involved," says Mrs. Minter.

How did their own child react to Andrew?

"She was thrilled to death," says Mrs. Minter. "She knows where he came from, but she also knows he's ours now, and ours to keep."

The Minters are determined Andrew will know he is adopted.

"I want it out in the open," says Mr. Minter. "A child should feel he can ask any question and get an honest answer.

"It does make some difference if you're adopted. But there is always the stock answer—an adopted child knows his parents love and

'COME AND ASK QUESTIONS'

A public meeting for prospective adopting parents and interested citizens will be held by the Family and Children's Service Monday at 8 p.m. at Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook Street. A panel made up of people who have been adopted, adopting parents and social workers will answer questions.

Ask The Times

Q. Does holly grow in Michigan? L.M.

A. The Encyclopedia Brittanica says that holly grows in the U.S. from Massachusetts to Florida, west to Texas and north to Indiana, which would preclude Michigan. But florist Keith McEachern says that a type of holly does grow in Michigan but not the same type as our Christmas holly.

Q. What is the source of the quotation which starts out "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year, Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown . . .?" H.M.S.

A. A work, God Knows, by Minnie Louise Haskins.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Belmont Park Work Coming for Painters

A make-work try by members of Victoria local of the painters' union has paid off.

MP David Groos told the Times he had been successful in asking the department of defence construction to call for tenders on the painting of 251 houses in Belmont Park naval married quarters.

Two tenders for separate contracts to paint the interiors of the buildings will be called within two weeks, Mr. Groos said.

Business representative A. H. Gildemeester of Local 1163, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, had written Mr. Groos pointing out the need of employment for painters during the winter months and the fact that Belmont Park houses were due for painting this year.

Bomb Pause Won't Start Peace Talks Says Johnson

'Would Weaken Our Position'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said today Hanoi's own response has shown that stopping United States air attacks on North Vietnam alone will not bring the Communists to the negotiating table.

He said Hanoi's rejection of his latest offer of peace talks—made last weekend aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise—had been "clear and complete." That should answer the question of every person in the U.S. who thinks a bombing halt alone will accomplish this end, he said.

"There are some hopeful people and there are some naive people and there are some political people" who advocate a one-sided bombing suspension, but such proposals just "confuse and weaken our position," he told a news conference.

Johnson said "we are pleased with the results we're getting" in the Vietnam war. He added his military commander anticipates no increase in the previously authorized U.S. troop strength.

Reporting on his current talks with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and his Vietnam commander, Gen. William C. Westmoreland—both back from South Vietnam from consultations—Johnson said:

"We are making progress. We are pleased with the results we're getting. We are inflicting greater losses than we are taking."

WANT QUICK ACTION

Johnson said the American people are impatient in war or in a football game, and want the action to build up quickly and the enemy to be defeated rapidly.

But it's not that kind of war the U.S. is fighting in Vietnam, John said.

"In 1954, we said we'd stand with those people out there to meet the common danger. The time came when we had to put up or shut up. We put up."

Johnson said U.S. aims in Vietnam have been clear from the beginning.

"I thought even all the preachers in the country had heard about it," he said, a reference to a recent sermon he sat through at Williamsburg, Va., in which the minister asked for a fuller explanation of why the United States is in South Vietnam.

Johnson said the goal is to protect U.S. security and that is tied in with Southeast Asia, and "second, to resist Communist aggression."

He said if a bully assailed a child, people would do something about it.

So, Johnson said, the United States served notice with the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization that it was prepared to resist aggression and stand against someone "who seeks to gobble up little countries."

"We have tried several times to get the United Nations to play a part in bringing up peace

Three Years for Assault

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—George Joseph Voytko, 49, formerly of Lethbridge, Alta., has been sentenced to three years in Prince Albert Penitentiary on a charge of indecent assault on a 12-year-old girl. Voytko was originally charged with rape.

The court was told Voytko asked the 12-year-old girl if she would babysit for him at his home. Instead of taking her to his home, they went in a taxi to the Yorkton fairgrounds, where he asaulted the girl.

Writer Gets 30-Year Term

CAMIRI (AP)—A Bolivian military tribunal today convicted French Marxist author Regis Debray and Argentine Cira Roberto Bustos of leftist guerrilla crimes and sentenced each to 30 years in prison.

The five-member tribunal freed four Bolivians also charged with guerrilla activity against the state. Specific charges against the six were murder, robbery and subversion.

Defence lawyers for Debray and Bustos said they plan to appeal the sentences to the Supreme War Council in La Paz, the Bolivian capital.

Debray and Bustos went on trial along with the four Bolivians in this small southeast Bolivian oil town Sept. 27.

Although 12 prosecution witnesses testified against Debray and Bustos, there was no evidence presented which directly linked either of them with combat activity.

The two admitted they stood guard duty armed with M-1 rifles, which also were used on hunting expeditions.

Debray, 27, author of the guerrilla handbook Revolution Within Revolution, maintained from the start he was in Bolivia as a journalist for a Mexican magazine. He said he had asked the late Ernesto (Che) Guevara for permission to join the rebels as a combatant but was turned down.

Excerpts read earlier this week from Guevara's diary backed up this contention. Guevara had written that he felt Debray would have been more useful to the movement operat-

STRATEGIC HILL GRABBED BY U.S.

SAIGON (AP)—United States infantrymen, driving through a murderous blaze of North Vietnamese machine-gun and small arms fire, late today seized the top of a strategic hill overlooking Dak To, in South Vietnam's central highlands.

The U.S. command in Saigon said 17 Americans were killed and 24 wounded in the fight. There was no immediate word about North Vietnamese casualties.

Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett reported from the battle scene that soldiers of the United States 4th Infantry Division "occupied the topmost point of the hill around 5 p.m. after some of the bloodiest fighting" in the two weeks of heavy combat in the area close to the Laotian and Cambodian borders.

Federal Medicare Delay Firms Up

Times News Services

The scheme is due to come into effect July 1 next year and estimated to cost about $800 million on a 50-50 federal provincial split.

Mr. Sharp's call for belt-tightening has made medicare postponement likely although the official government stand is that medicare will go ahead as planned unless provinces ask for a delay.

Ottawa is hoping that all the provinces will request an adjournment and while almost all the provinces would like to see the plan delayed, they would prefer that Ottawa make the move.

ONLY PROVINCE

Premier Bennett was the only minister Thursday who specifically stated that he wants the federal money next July 1, and that British Columbia's current medical plan will be altered to conform with the federal criteria.

Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher, a Liberal, appeared to open the door for an agreement when he suggested a further postponement for one year.

Mr. Thatcher had the strongest hand among the premiers as his province already has medicare.

But he added that Saskatchewan could not afford to lose scheduled equalization payments and medicare at the same time and would need one or the other.

Mr. Sharp, who will speak today on the provincial representations on medicare, told reporters Thursday night: "I know of no intention by the federal government to change its legislation, but of course when provinces make representations to us we give them careful consideration because they are very much involved in financing a medicare program."

He spoke to Prime Minister Lester Pearson following the first sessions of the two-day meeting.

The position of most provinces is that if some avail themselves of medicare they also will have to or their people will be giving taxes for something they are not receiving.

Mr. Sharp has made it clear in his austerity statements that Ottawa will not borrow to pay for medicare but will finance it through increased taxes.

Ontario suggested that it opt out of the medicare program but use the money it was entitled to to tackle top priority programs such as housing.

The province maintained that medical insurance is already available to the people of Ontario at reasonable rates — the province has its own plan — and that it should be allowed to use its share of the money for other problems with greater

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor VI made an historic "hop" on the moon today, scientists say, becoming the first earth rocket to lift off the lunar surface.

The three-legged, picture-taking spacecraft, which soft-landed on the moon's Central Bay November 9, reached an altitude of about 10 feet on a 6½-second flight initiated by signals from the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

The U.S. mooncraft landed about eight feet from its original position. Scientists said the manoeuvre was designed to tell them more about the lunar surface.

"This will help the Apollo people know the strength of the surface since they'll have to fire rockets to return to earth," a laboratory spokesman explained. He referred to the Apollo program aimed at landing a man on the moon.

LOAN ON WAY

Pound Slides To Floor Price

LONDON (UPI)—One of the wildest days in London market history ended today with world-wide speculation on whether Britain's currency could survive its worst crisis since 1949 without devaluation.

At the end of a hectic day of trading on the foreign currency exchange, the pound closed at the psychological "floor" price of 2.7825.

Near the end of the day, Swiss bankers said Britain would obtain the $1 billion loan she sought in hard negotiating with the so-called "group of ten" richest nations meeting in Paris.

Sources said the Bank of England spent tens of millions in precious dollars and gold reserves to keep the pound from slipping beneath $2.7825.

SILENCE SCORED

Conservatives appealed to the Speaker of the House of Commons to break the continuing silence of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government on reports Britain was negotiating a one-billion-dollar loan to restore confidence in the pound. The effort failed.

A British minister pledged in Paris that the pound would not be devalued. It did not remove tremendous, day-long pressures against the pound.

BREAKTHROUGH IN OCEAN EXPLORATION

Canada Unveils 'Deep Plunge Satellite'

OTTAWA (CP) — A Defence Research Board scientist has developed a "reverse satellite" to explore inner space—the world's oceans.

Colleagues of Donald A. Grant, 40, of Pictou, N.S., today described his development as a great scientific breakthrough in oceanography.

Mr. Grant said of his three-ton oceanographic buoy: "It's the same as a satellite only the other way—into the ocean depths instead of into space."

He said the buoy, built by E. M. I. Cosser Ltd. of Dartmouth, N.S., will make possible replacement of weather ships at sea and faster and more thorough bottom-to-surface exploration of the world's oceans.

Information on the buoy, which has already plunged to a depth of 17,000 feet in trials, has just been taken off the secret list by the defence department.

The device apparently makes possible a more reliable submarine-detection system. The defence department declined comment on this aspect, however.

Mr. Grant heard Tuesday that it washed up a few days ago at the Portuguese fishing village of Peniche about 60 miles north of Lisbon.

The Portuguese navy put it under guard until it found out it was a buoy and not a bomb.

Cosser's address was printed on the buoy and the Portuguese got in touch with the Canadian embassy in Lisbon.

Mr. Grant left here today for Portugal to recover the instruments from the buoy.

"We may be able to tell where it has been for the last year or more," he said in an interview.

The buoy comprises three main parts: A surface sphere, a power plant and instruments which can be lowered to any depth desired and a four claw, 1,000-pound anchor which grabs the ocean floor.

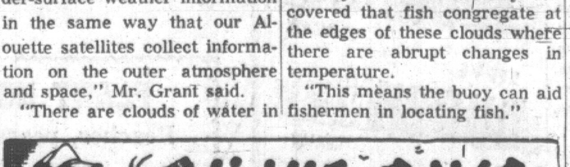
Mr. Grant said a camera can be attached to the anchor to photograph the ocean floor.

The great advantage of his buoy is that it can be moored permanently at sea and relay to aircraft or ships information not only on surface weather but on the speed and direction of under-surface ocean currents, temperature and pressure.

"We will be able to get under-surface weather information in the same way that our Alouette satellites collect information on the outer atmosphere and space," Mr. Grant said.

"There are clouds of water in the ocean as there are clouds in the sky. We have already discovered that fish congregate at the edges of these clouds where there are abrupt changes in temperature.

"This means the buoy can aid fishermen in locating fish."



On this medicare delay it's a case o' whut t' do till th' doctor comes.

ANGRY AT PM's REMARKS

Vote Set for Wednesday Retentionists Force Delay

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson's description of capital punishment as "mental barbarism" aroused retentionists and shattered an all-party agreement that was to have brought an abolitionist bill to a Commons vote Thursday night.

Mr. Pearson was to have closed the five-day debate but his remark brought a flock of retentionists to their feet either to protest his remarks or to review the aguments.

They were led by David Fulton (PC—Kamloops), the former justice minister, who said the prime minister had made "a maudlin appeal to emotion."

"Our case, and the moral justification of it, is equally good if not better than the prime minister's," Mr. Fulton said.

Nevertheless, a test vote on a surprise motion by Georges Lachance (L—Montreal Lafontaine) that would have killed the bill was easily defeated 125 to 76.

This was regarded as an indicator that the bill itself will carry when the key vote on its principle is taken.

RESUMES WEDNESDAY

The debate was adjourned at 10 p.m. and will not resume before next Wednesday, barring a change in the agenda of House business given by Government House Leader MacEachen.

Detailed study of a bill to establish a department of consumer and corporate affairs is scheduled today.

The final supply motion of the session goes before the House Monday and Tuesday, opening the way for a test of confidence in the government.

Under the capital punishment bill hanging for murder would be limited to killers of prison guards and police.

The highlights in its fifth day of debate were the 32-minute Pearson speech—a wholehearted rejection of capital punishment—and a passionate defence of the gallows by Ralph Cowan (L—York-Humber).

Mr. Pearson said retentionists had been unable to prove the deterrent value of the death penalty and had to fall back on emotional arguments.

Through execution of murderers, society fell into the trap of treating them as they had their victims. And no murder ever matched the horror of capital punishment.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — The flax market lost ground in trading today on the Winnipeg grain exchange, but still drew most of the moderate activity which was centered around oilseeds.

Rapeseed prices were somewhat irregular with the November contracts, which go off the board soon, showing weakness.

Dosco Mill Problem Unsettled

HALIFAX (CP) — Negotiations on the future of the steel mill at Sydney will resume here Monday, Premier Smith of Nova Scotia said Wednesday following a meeting with officers of the mill's owners, Dominion Steel and Coal Corp.

The meeting of the provincial cabinet ministers with T. J. Emmert, Dosco president, and C. H. Drury, president of Dosco Steel Ltd., began Tuesday.

Dosco and its parent company, Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd., announced Oct. 13 they plan to close the mill next April 30. Closure would affect more than 3,000 workers. The province wants to keep the mill operating.

Mr. Smith said after the meeting that "some progress was made," but no agreements were reached.

"It has not yet been possible to reach any final conclusion ... each time we meet we make some progress."

Toronto, N.Y. Post Rises

Advances were posted again today on both the Toronto and New York stock exchanges.

AT TORONTO Inco jumped 1¾ to 119 and Pembina Pipe Line 1⅝ to 22⅛.

Asbestos Corp. moved up 1¾ to 24, Thomson Newspapers 1 to 38 and Trans-Prairie Pipelines ¾ to 8¼.

General Products Manufacturing A fell 1½ to 98½ and Dosco and International Utilities ¾ each to 9 ad 38½.

In base metals, Denison advanced 1¼ to 78½ and Roman Corp. 1 to 27½. Rio Algom declined 3 to 33½.

AT NEW YORK the market made good its third straight daily advance and its second straight week of recovery.

AT MONTREAL gainst and losses were about evenly matched in trading today.

International Nickel and Denison were the trading highlights. Inco jumped 2⅜ points to 119¼ on volume of 2,302 shares. Denison climbed 1½ points to 78½, rallying from sharp losses made earlier this week.

Imperial Oil dropped ½ to 66½, and Bank of Nova Scotia and Imperial Commerce ⅜ each to 13⅝ and 12.

AT LONDON heavy pressure on sterling and general confusion that followed the chancellor of the exchequer's refusal to comment on Thursday's reports of further loan negotiations, brought substantial selling of industrial shares on the stock market today.

There was little trading in gilt-edged stocks and prices were easier. Overseas banks raced ahead on currency fears, Royal Bank and Toronto-Dominion added 5s. or 6s.

Dollar stocks were firm. Inco was strong. Others to lead the way ahead were Hudson Bay and Noranda.

AT VANCOUVER gains and losses were about even on the mining section at noon today.

Brenda was up .10 from Thursday's close to $7 and Giant Mascot put on the same amount to $1.30. New Imperial gained .10 to $3.25.

U.S. Balance Of Payments Deficit Slips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. balance of payments deficit slipped a bit further into the red during the third quarter of 1967. On the most-widely used accounting system — the liquitity basis — the deficit rose to $670 million from $550 million in the second quarter, both figures seasonally adjusted, according to the commerce department's preliminary figures.

Although the department said that this represented "a minor deterioration," the announcement was followed by these actions:

- The U.S. government said that its "voluntary" program for 1968 to reduce the flow of investment money abroad would be tightened.
- President Johnson named an industry-government task force, headed by Robert M. McKinney, publisher of the Santa Fe New Mexican, to come up with suggestions for increasing foreign travel here. The travel "gap" cost the U.S. 1.6 billion dollars last year. Suggestions that would curb U.S. travel abroad, or limit dollar expenditures abroad, have been rejected by the administration.
- Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler told a news conference that the widening payments deficit made the president's tax increase "indispensible" to protection of the dollar. Fowler's reasoning is that without a tax increase, inflation will take hold, thus making U.S. exports less competitive abroad.

The adverse balance for the first three-quarters of 1967 now stands at $1,750,000,000 — or well over the total of $1,357,000,000 for the entire year 1966.

QUAIFE SPEAKS OUT

'Why Should Mayoralty Go Unchallenged?'

DUNCAN—Jim Quaife has his detractors as a candidate for the mayor's chair.

They say he's a young man who wants to spend ratepayers' money like it was going out of fashion.

Maybe $30,000 for a Teen Town Hall? He is adult adviser to the youth organization.

Jim Quaife is 33, married and with the responsibility of parenthood—he and Carol have two young children.

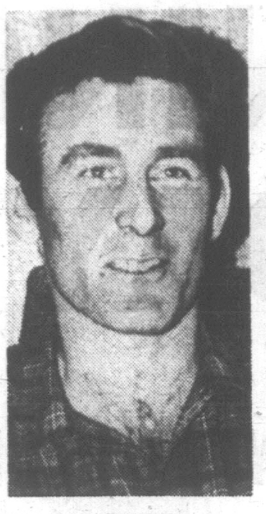
He knows the burden and responsibility of paying city taxes.

Why, without previous council experience, is he running for mayor rather than alderman?

"I think people are willing to elect someone willing to offer a progressive outlook to the community," he says.

"And I feel the office of mayor should not go unchallenged as it has the past 12 years. It's a good opportunity to bring my views and those of my opponent (Ald. Hamish Mutter) into the open and rouse political interest in the city."



QUAIFE
. . .'rouse some interest

Mr. Quaife said he believed people in public office a long time have a tendency to forget where their obligations lie.

"After a while they take it for granted they're on council but members must maintain a line of communication between city hall and the ratepayers."

About the spendthrift accusation, Mr. Quaife said there is no reason why recreation facilities cannot be developed on a regional basis,

"There's no reason why the city should have to bear a substantial increase in rates to supply these facilities.

"Our wonderful new hospital was built by the financial co-operation of four areas, Duncan, North Cowichan, Lake Cowichan and Koksilah."

He said the provincial government will have to pay a larger proportion of steadily increasing education costs.

"We can have a progressive approach in the city without great expenditures. A lot can be done with proper leadership," Mr. Quaife said.

"We have suffered from an apathetic attitude on the part of local government and the people."

Mr. Quaife promised to work for co-operation with North Cowichan and other areas.

He said this would mean the establishment of joint service boards for water, sewage, fire protection, recreation development and regional planning.

TEEN-AGED ACTRESS BIG HIT

DUNCAN — A teenaged actress, Sandra Bell, stole the show Thursday when Duncan Drama Club opened a three-night run with Enid Bagnold's "The Chalk Garden."

She portrays a capricious girl leading her grandmother by the nose in a brooding household where the governess is a woman who served time for murder.

The players get their teeth into the production after first act falterings and it makes an interesting offering to local playgoers.

The Bill Bennett production is being staged at Mount Prevost School.

Dramatic honors with Sandra Bell are shared by Margaret McKinnon and Joanna Deleeuw.

'UNACCEPTABLE'

Alternative Asked To Dredging Plan

LAKE COWICHAN — The water rights branch of the B.C. lands and forests department will be asked to produce an alternative flood control scheme for the Cowichan River.

The council unanimously opposed a $200,000 plan to dredge the river now being promoted by the water rights branch.

Coun. Bert Brown said it is unnecessary for the B.C. government to be thinking in terms of $200,000 for flood control work.

At a council meeting, he said:

"Damage to the village by flooding has been estimated at $8,000. I have studied the proposed measures thoroughly and I find the plan unacceptable from a financial angle."

"MUCH LESS"

Coun. Archie Greenwell said the affected areas in the village could be filled to bring up the level of the ground, "and we could do this for much less than $200,000."

Meanwhile, Duncan Chamber of Commerce learned the water rights branch and the wildlife branch of the recreation and conservation department will meet Nov. 20 to discuss the dredging proposal.

LAKE COWICHAN

School Board Chairman To Retire

LAKE COWICHAN — Archie Greenwell, chairman of Lake Cowichan school board since 1942 when he was first elected as a trustee, is retiring.

His retirement comes in the middle of his 13th term and will mean an additional vacancy in December.

Mr. Greenwell plans to continue as a member of Lake Cowichan village council.

His resignation is prompted by health considerations.

His deputy, Don Hammond, says he will make no announcement about possibly running again until Monday.

Mrs. Kathy Sharp and Bill Thompson will seek re-election.

In village council Chairman Mrs. Mildren Child is not yet declaring but Councillors Boyd All and Herb Halliday are running.

CANDIDATE LOWERS HIS SIGHTS

PORT ALBERNI—Accountant George Dunbar, who planned to run for mayor, has decded to run instead as an alderman.

He explained that when he announced 10 days ago his intentions of running for mayor there was no apparent opposition to the mayor and deputy mayor (Les Hammer and Fred Bishop).

"I felt since their campaigns are to be based on personality only, the electors should have some alternative.

"But (ex-mayor) Jordon's entry will provide this alternative, so there is no need for my name to stand," he said.

Cougars or Wild Dogs? Islanders Want Answer

GANGES — The statement by author Eric Roberts in Saga of Salt Spring Island that "the last cougar was shot here 10 years ago" is open to question.

Hardly a week goes by that a sheep rancher, hunter or woods stroller doesn't report seeing, hearing or smelling one of the big cats.

SWIM OVER

Mr. Akerman, whose family has been here for nearly 100 years, figures cougars swim over from Vancouver Island to feast on his sheep. Other Islanders contend they are not cougar at all, but big dogs that have gone wild.

First of all, what is a cougar anyway? Depending on which country you reside in, it is a puma, a panther, a mountain lion or a jaguar. In other words, it is everything but a Morris Minor.

From nose to tail it spans seven to 12 feet in its stocking feet and running flat out can chase Harry Jerome up Jim Ryun's back.

NEVER FORGOTTEN

Its nocturnal scream once heard is never forgotten. It is Screaming Lord Sutch, the English rock roller, with his G note caught in the wringer. It is Dizzy Gillespie blowing high C in a wind tunnel.

It is so excrutiatingly painful to the human nervous system it could scare long underwear off a clothes line.

The first time I heard a cougar scream I was caught in a moonlit, outdoor privy near Elgin, B.C. The noise raised hackles big as cough-drops right down to my ankles.

SHOT BY FARMER

My father, a natural-born skeptic, insisted it was only wind blowing through a hole in the tarpaper. A night later, a cougar was shot by a farmer up the road.

So much for background information qualifying me as a cougar expert. Now to deal with the case at hand.

This week a visiting professor, here on leave of absence from University of British Columbia to write several scholarly books, was cycling along a wooded path when he saw what appeared to be a cougar, or the largest dog he'd ever seen.

Later in the week, he noticed huge paw prints around his house and worried that cougar may have been stalking him while waiting for deer on a nearby game trail. He sent casts of the prints to a government expert in Victoria.

The report came back confirming that the prints were cat-like and "probably" a cougar. He phoned the RCMP who told him to check the findings with Max Akerman.

Max asked if the prints "showed claw marks" and the answer was affirmative.

"They're not cougar then," Mr. Akerman said.

Apparently a cougar withdraws its claws except while climbing trees.

CHEMAINUS — Mrs. Eva Tallman, 47, of Chemainus, is in only fair condition in hospital after a Thursday afternoon accident.

RCMP said she had just stepped off a bus on Willow Street and was making to cross the road behind it when struck by a car driven by Mrs. Karen Duncan, of Chemainus.

For a start on a pot-luck day, I trust you will join me in crying shame on purse-proud Toronto, which recently ordered Montreal to return the benches and trash cans borrowed for Expo use, or else make good on them to the tune of $40,000.

Now, a Montreal-based scout tells me, that city's telephone employees' association has started a fund to buy garbage cans for Toronto, "since they need them so badly."

Meanwhile, in a Greater Victoria determinedly peaceable in spite of the constant jeers and jabs aimed at her by high-and-mighty Vancouver, we are being treated to an internal broil of the sort that could only happen here.

It began when Hugh Curtis, who for my money is the best reeve distressful Saanich ever elected, gave a flat denial to the charge that his municipality smells.

The result was a deluge of rebuttals from Saanich householders—some of whom might help achieve purer air by looking to their septic lines—who insisted that the odors assailing them bore no relation to Chanel.

As a matter of fact, there are a few areas where the reeve might not choose to linger at the wrong time and season, but the general condition has improved considerably in our peninsular paradise. I'm all for sewers and so is the reeve; but a total cure is going to take time and plenty money.

Don't, though, confuse that occasional night and early-morning stench of rotten eggs with our Saanich domestic problem. The other is air pollution wafted down from Crofton, and is—or should be—the provincial government's problem.

Out today is a brisk four-page paper published for a reading audience of high school students, parents, teachers, and anyone else who can latch on to a copy. The sheet is called "Mosaic," and its first-issue run of 7,500 will, I trust, be snatched up in short order.

School board regulations forbid the distributions of Mosaic in the schools, but publisher Allard van Veen tells me that the publication will be available just beyond schoolgrounds, also here and there about the town.

Mr. Van Veen, a Uvic freshman, made it plain when he stopped by on Thursday that Mosaic is in no sense a school paper. It's entirely independent, stands for good and progressive education, and hopes to be non-political. It is given away free.

Student contributions financed its first run. The publisher hopes that sale of advertising space will help him and a high school staff with further issues.

The initial effort contains a criticism of high school counselling, an account of experiments in responsibility at Reynolds secondary, and word of a proposed B.C. Assembly of Students' opinion survey as to the rightness or wrongness of that well-publicized short story.

Five issues of Mosaic will, all going well, be brought out each school year.

Good luck, say I, and rough sailing!

If our sports car population appears to have grown over the weekend, be assured that it has indeed. For the first time in 10 years, Victoria Motor Sports Club will be playing host to the International Conference of Sports Car Clubs. Most if not all of the 140 delegates from the Pacific Northwest and Alaska will converge on the city in their trim little snarlers.

Conference clubs are dedicated to road racing over prepared tracks that would cause the average family-car driver to turn a pale green and hunt another route.

They consist mostly of esses (spell it "S's" if you prefer), hairpins and suicidal-seeming descents called deer-leaps.

Our local outfit jousts for championship hill-climb points twice each year on the road that twists to the summit of Mount Douglas—a route that offers some fairly convincing deer-leaps, hairpins and esses.

ROYAL CANADIAN LEGION SCHOLARSHIPS worth a total of $5,000 and designed to further the education of high schol and university students were presented Thursday at a special ceremony. Automation Fears Called 'Red Herring'

Shingle union comments about automation were labelled "a blatant red herring" today by a spokesman for the management of McCarter Shingle and Shake Limited.

"I have never heard such absolute nonsense," the spokesman said. "The plant just started up in June and we had not even got existing machinery going to full production."

After a 30-union solidarity picket Thursday morning at the strike-bound mill, Shingle Weavers Union Local 2802 business agent Bruce Robertson said management had created much fear and suspicion among workers by not making clear its automation aims.

'MUCH MORE'

He also said the 17 employees on strike since Oct. 17 for a first contract want wage rates similar to others in the industry. The company has stated the union wants "much more."

The company spokesman said the union originally wanted $3.05 for primary splitters but this was increased to $3.25 an hour. For sawyers, it originally wanted 89 cents per square plus $1.05 an hour but raised this to 86 cents per square plus $1.50 an hour.

In addition, sawyers wanted a minimum wage guarantee of $33 a day compared with the industry guarantee of $28.50.

Earlier, the company said it had offered "the highest incentive rates in the industry."

Curtis Makes Formal Entry Into Election

First elected in October, 1964, after Reeve Stanley Murphy resigned, he was re-elected by acclamation two years ago.

Two persons have filed nomination papers for council — A. W. Mesher and Councillor William Noel.

Three persons are in the race for the single seat on the Greater Victoria School Board — Douglas Brown, Richard Reeve and Cecil Wyatt. No one has come forward for the single vacancy in Saanich School Board, which extends from Royal Oak northwards.

Deadline for nominations is Monday Nov. 27.

FISH KNIVES, CASH STOLEN

Two filleting knives, a $78 cheque and $30 in cash were stolen overnight from Dennis Shellfish Company, 405 Yates St.

City detectives said a padlock on the ground floor door was forced.

Thieves also forced their way into the parked car of John F. Cabeldu, 730 Humboldt, and tore a $110 tape recorder from its dash mounting.

By KATHARINE THOMAS

The desire to give a child "as good a home as I had" prompted Michael Minter and his wife Pauline to adopt a little boy from the Family and Children's Service.

Mr. Minter, an auto mechanic who came from England three years ago, is himself adopted.

"I wasn't denied opportunities and now I want to give them to another child," he says. "If I hadn't been adopted, there's no telling where I might have ended up."

The Minters already have a three-year-old girl, Kay Rebecca and Mrs. Minter is expecting another child.

They adopted Andrew Frederick, a year and a half ago, when he was six weeks old. "It's amazing, he's got my double crown and my double thumb," says Mrs. Minter.

"It's marvellous how they match the child to the family," Mr. Minter added. "You don't think of them as adopted once they are your own children."

The Minters feel that many children, particularly boys—there is a greater demand for girls—are desperately in need of a good home.

"We wanted to help fill the need," Mr. Minter says.

They believe that many people are afraid of adoption because of all the "red tape" and the fear of intrusion into their private life.

"Many people feel that they are not good enough—that they have to be super-parents to be able to adopt," Mr. Minter says.

A BOUNCING BONNY BABY is Andrew Frederick, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Minter. Their own daughter, three-year-old Kay Rebecca, is thrilled to have a baby brother.

"But it is not true. The adoption process is a simple one. During the six-month 'probation,' the agency makes appointments for three visits—but they're more like social visits.

"You are required to have separate interviews and then interviews together before the child is placed," Mrs. Minter added. "But the agency just wants to make sure the arrangement will be satisfactory, that the child will be happy and that you will be happy with him.

"When you realize that someone's whole future is at stake, you see it's not much to ask. The agency has the terrific responsibility of finding good homes."

"All children when young are bright," says Mr. Minter, "it's the home environment that makes the difference."

But they do feel the demands on parents who adopt a child from a different racial background are great.

"It really requires something special; too many people get a romantic notion about adopting a racially different child, but they don't realize the responsibilities involved," says Mrs. Minter.

How did their own child react to Andrew?

"She was thrilled to death," says Mrs. Minter. "She knows where he came from, but she also knows he's ours now, and ours to keep."

The Minters are determined Andrew will know he is adopted.

"I want it out in the open," says Mr. Minter. "A child should feel he can ask any question and get an honest answer.

"It does make some difference if you're adopted. But there is always the stock answer—an adopted child knows his parents love and want him because they chose him."

'COME AND ASK QUESTIONS'

A public meeting for prospective adopting parents and interested citizens will be held by the Family and Children's Service Monday at 8 p.m. at Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook Street. A panel made up of people who have been adopted, adopting parents and social workers will answer questions.

FUND DRIVE STARTS NEXT FRIDAY

Christmas and Dr. Lotta on Way

Dr. Lotta's on the move again.

Her appearance in Victoria to begin a cross-country drive to raise funds for the Unitarian Service Committee's work with children in Asian countries has become as regular an institution as Christmas.

This year is no exception.

Dr. Hitschmanova's campaign will get off to a good start Friday, November 24, when she shows colored slides and comments on "The World We Never See" at a public coffee party from 2 to 5 p.m., at the St. John Ambulance Headquarters, 941 Pandora Avenue.

It will be the 15th year the Times has sponsored the Christmas Apeal and the 23rd anniversary of the founding of Dr. Lotta's organization.

Last year the Times collected more than $13,000 for the "Save the Children" Fund. The money helped to make food, clothing, shelter, education and medical supplies available for youngsters who would otherwise have perished.

Blast Victim's Condition Termed 'Fair'

Four-Hour Session On Operating Table

A scientist sprayed with acid and glass in a laboratory explosion Thursday is reported still in fair condition.

Surgeons had Dr. Joseph Baker, 44, on the operating room table for four hours Thursday afternoon, as they removed particles of glass which blasted him when his experiment blew up.

He also suffered burns from the acid involved in the soil experiment.

The blast in the second-floor laboratory at the federal Forest Research Laboratory, 506 West Burnside, blew out a safety glass door on the experimental apparatus, shattered windows and light fixtures.

Lab technician Eric Payne, 20, also suffered cuts and acid burns but of a less serious nature.

Only Dr. Baker probably has the answer to why the explosive perchloric acid went up, the laboratory's director, R. R. Lejeune said today. And it could be some time before he reports.

The acid, which is both corrosive and explosive, is used in minute quantities and is a common agent in analysis. Thursday's blast is the first serious accident in any of the chain of federal laborities in many years.

SHOWER FAILED

A safety shower in the laboratory for such emergencies failed to function Thursday and Mr. Lejeune said he does not know why.

Tests on it cannot be made until the laboratory has been put in order sufficiently to pass fire department inspection and therefore may be delayed until Monday.

The director said a rough estimate of damage from the explosion would be $2,000.

Dr. Baker is married and has a 10-month-old daughter. He came to the Victoria laboratory in 1965 from the federal department of agriculture at Prince George.

3 Years in Jail For Bank Holdup

'Merciful As I Can' —Ostler

Carl Raymond, 22-year-old bank robber, today was sentenced to three years in the British Columbia Penitentiary by Magistrate William Ostler.

"I am being as merciful as I can under the circumstances," Magistrate Ostler told the London, Ont., man who held up the Bank of Montreal at Fort and Richmond Oct. 13 and took $1,555 at the point of an unloaded shotgun.

Raymond at first denied the charge of armed robbery and then changed his plea to guilty.

Magistrate Ostler said he was impressed by the probation officer's report and was not without compassion for the accused.

'DESPERATE'

"You were faced with a desperate situation and committed a serious crime. It is to your credit that the gun was not loaded but the victims (the people in the bank) did not know that.

"The fact that the gun was not loaded puts the offence in a less serious light.

"I cannot suspend sentence. I must protect society but I am very concerned about your rehabilitation so I shall send you to where you can get guidance and training," Magistrate Ostler said.

He also "highly commended" the police on the quick capture of Raymond.

Prior to sentence Raymond said he had learned his lesson in the 35 days he had spent in jail since his capture a few hours after the robbery. He planned to start up his own business and his wife is willing to take him back, he said.

She was with him in Victoria but has since returned to Ontario.

Talks Due Soon On River Switch

A multi-million-dollar diversion of part of the Fraser River's tributary system may be undertaken soon.

Serious discussions are about to start on sharing costs for the scheme which would divert part of the Shuswap River's flow into Okanagan Lake, Water Resources Minister Ray Williston said today in an interview.

He said the diversion is needed because increasing population an expanding irrigated vineyard acreages for the wine industry are seriously lowering the lake's level during dry periods.

It could result in the level becoming too low for anyone to be able to use the numerous and expensive recreational facilities already installed around the lake," he said.

"The lake's greatest importance is recreational and this importance is increasing all the time."

An engineering study was undertaken by the province, with federal assistance under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act, a year ago to find a solution.

It proposed diverting the Shuswap, which flows west and north into the Thompson River which in turn joins the Fraser.

The study said there were two feasible ways of raising the Shuswap River's height the necessary 30 feet to send part of it across the watershed divide 20 miles southward into Okanagan Lake.

$16 MILLION

At a 50-year cost of $16 million, a half-mile-long earthfill dam could raise the river's level high enough to spill water by gravity feed into a canal-and-creek system that would feed Okanagan Lake.

For $14.7 million over 50 years, a smaller concrete dam, pumping station and pipeline system could be built to feed the lake.

In both bases, the dams would be near Enderby. The study added that the cost of the first alternative could be reduced if suitable earthfill material was found near the damsite.

330,000 PERSONS

Both schemes ultimately would provide enough water for Okanagan Lake to meet the domestic and industrial needs of about 330,000 persons in the lake area.

That's four times the present population.

Diversion also would permit increasing the present 60,000 acres of irrigated land by 123,000 acres.

However, Mr. Williston said that some residents of the area are agitating for the canal proposal on an expanded basis so that boaters could use it.

This would connect the huge Shuswap lakes and rivers system to Lake Okanagan and the Columbia River system in Washington State.

But it would increase both the capital and operating costs of the diversion "by many millions", he said.

Ask The Times

Q. Does holly grow in Michigan? L.M.

A. The Encyclopedia Britannica says that holly grows in the U.S. from Massachusetts to Florida, west to Texas and north to Indiana, which would preclude Michigan. But florist Keith McEachern says that a type of holly does grow in Michigan but not the same type as our Christmas holly.

Q. What is the source of the quotation which starts out "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year, Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown . . ."? H.M.S.

A. A work, God Knows, by Minnie Louise Haskins.

Belmont Park Work Coming for Painters

A make-work try by members of Victoria local of the painters' union has paid off.

MP David Groos told the Times he had been successful in asking the department of defence construction to call for tenders on the painting of 251 houses in Belmont Park naval married quarters.

Two tenders for separate contracts to paint the interiors of the buildings will be called within two weeks, Mr. Groos said.

Business representative A. H. Gildemeester of Local 1163, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, had written Mr. Groos pointing out the need of employment for painters during the winter months and the fact that Belmont Park houses were due for painting this year.

in Vietnam," Johnson said. Many senators think that is the way to do it, he said, adding that there were "42 resolutions in one day."

"We've already tried the United Nations before but we may try it again," he said. "I don't want to hurt its chances by giving any predictions."

WELCOMES DISSENT

Of criticism of the U.S. role in Vietnam, Johnson said:

"We welcome responsible dissent and some of the things that have happened in this country.

"I can't say that this dissent has contributed much to any of the victories we have had."

Johnson said he had discussed the troop problem Thursday night with Westmoreland. He then recalled that he had previously considered and approved what he called "recommendations of the joint chiefs of staff for the force level in Vietnam."

"Gen. Westmoreland," Johnson said, "tells me that he anticipates no increase in that level."

The buildup to 525,000 men is supposed to be accomplished by mid-1968, but Westmoreland has been reported seeking a speed-up to maximum strength before that time.

As of last Saturday, the American troop strength in Vietnam reached 470,000 men, only 2,000 short of the peak U.S. strength in the Korean War 14 years ago.

Congressional sources quoted Westmoreland Thursday as being optimistic about the war's progress and as believing a troop reduction may be possible within two years. But he indicated no early end of the fighting is in sight.

A provincial spokesman said they did not expect the argument to be accepted but felt it indicated Ontario's desire for priorities.

The federal plan has not been overwhelmingly favored by the majority of provinces from the moment it was proposed — Alberta and Manitoba, and British Columbia at the outset, were particularly critical of the compulsory feature.

Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin sent a wire to Prime Minister Pearson repeating his case that the federal government drop the requirement that provincial plans cover 90 to 95 per cent of the population, and contribute to voluntary plans providing coverage for only those in need.

It was not expected that anything definite on medicare will emerge before Monday.

The Foster Parents' Association of the Family and Children's Service will hold an all-day institute Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Ewing Building, Lansdowne Road.

Dr. Charles Gregory, director of Island Child Development and Research Centre, will speak on "Searching and Sharing."

ing on the outside.

Debray and Bustos were arrested April 20 in Muyupampa, a small town not far from here, as they were leaving the guerrilla zone. Arrested with them was George Andrew Roth, photographer of British and Chilean background, who was declared not guilty and released in the early days of the trial.

At the time of the arrests, it was believed about 60 guerrillas were operating in the southeastern section of the country. Bolivian military patrols had suffered major setbacks in two clashes with the guerrillas, losing a score of dead in less than two weeks.

MADE HEADWAY

Since then, the Bolivian amy has scored repeated successes in its efforts to track down the guerrillas, and military authorities now believe the movement virtually has been eliminated.

The trial has been marked by frequent delays, by the expulsion of four journalists for alleged partisan reporting and by dramatic appeals for Debray's release from numerous groups and individuals such as President de Gaulle of France.

Debray's father, a conservative aristocratic Parisian, came to Camiri shortly after his son was taken into custody and stayed until last month.

Regis asked his father to leave, saying the ordeal was not a family matter but his alone to resolve.

The court said the four Bolivians were freed because they had left active guerrilla service when captured in March.

The prosecution had asked 30 years in prison for Debray, 20 for Bustos. The Bolivians freed were Salustio Choque Choque, Ciro Algaranaz, Vicente Rocabado and Pastor Barrera Quintana.

Debray and Bustos, 35, had denied the specific charges although admitting sympathy for, and connections with, the guerrillas' leftist cause.

Guevara, leader of the guerrillas, was slain by Bolivian army troops early in October in a fire fight amid deep ravines north of the Rio Grande in southeast Bolivia. Guevara had been a leading figure in Fidel Castro's Cuban government.

Unions, Paper Talking

VANCOUVER (CP) — Talks resumed today between Pacific Press Ltd. and three of its four craft unions.

Ed Benson, general manager of the company that prints the Sun and Province newspapers, said representatives of Pacific Press and the unions met on schedule at 10 a.m.

He confirmed reports of a work "slowdown" by some employees of the morning Province early today, which resulted in a two-hour delay in bringing out the paper.

Bargaining between the International Typographical Union, mailers union and stereotypers union had broken off earlier Thursday with no arrangements for further talks.

The unions rejected a company offer of a 50-cent-an-hour pay increase over two years.

STRIKE NOTICE

The unions and the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild have all served mandatory 48-hour strike notice on the company. It expired Wednesday,, but no strike date has been announced.

Negotiations with the guild broke off Wednesday and no further talks have been announced.

Mr. Benson said allegations that the company is importing strikebreakers from the U.S. to take over union jobs in case negotiations fail are "utterly false and without foundation."

In a prepared statement, he said:

"One newspaper production expert from the United States, who visits Vancouver newspapers regularly, has been instructing senior management officials and supervisory employees in the operation of certain basic machines.

"Pacific Press Limited considers it has a major responsibility to the community to try to ensure that newspaper publication continues without interruption."

Mr. Benson said the unions have brought in advisers from other parts of Canada and from the U.S. to assist them.

He added:

"Pacific Press wants no part of a strike. Our working conditions, wages and fringe benefits are among the best in Canada. In line with that background, we are prepared to negotiate until a fair and realistic settlement is reached. But a blanket demand for a 35 per cent increase is neither fair nor realistic in today's conditions."

QUEBEC

Police Pair Shot

ST. DONAT, Que. (CP)—Two provincial police constables were wounded, one critically, in a hail of pistol fire early today when they entered a nearby motel on a routine check.

The constables decided to check La Cuilliere—The Soup Ladle—motel on Highway 30, near this Laurentian area community 65 miles north of Montreal, when they noticed lights were still on in the early morning hours.

Four men were inside when the police entered, an eyewitness said, and the shooting broke out seconds later.

Const. Jean Pierre St. Yves, 26, was in critical condition in hospital with wounds in the abdomen and spine. Const. Jacques Marceau, 25, suffered bullet wounds in the legs.

Police quickly organized a dragnet and apprehended four men, all from Montreal. Police said "large sums" of money were found on them.

The four men were being held on suspicion of attempted murder and "further investigation."

An eyewitness said the four gunmen ran out after the shooting and sped away in a car.

STRACHAN URGES EXPANDED COVERAGE

Bennett 'Has Finally Seen Light'

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan claimed Thursday that Premier Bennett has finally seen the light shed on medicare by the NDP years ago.

He was commenting on a report that Mr. Bennett, in Ottawa for a finance ministers conference, had indicated he is willing to make changes in the B.C. Medical Plan if necessary to qualify it for a 50 per cent federal contribution next July.

Mr. Bennett Wednesday night told an interviewer B.C. will insist on Ottawa participation as promised and will, if necessary, amend present legislation to make the BCMP the only medicare agency in the province and perhaps to eliminate premiums.

"I'm all in favor of that," said Mr. Strachan. "This is what we have been fighting for and the premier has now come around to our estimate of what is required.

"I said this (consolidation of medicare under one government agency) is what would happen when the legislation was changed last year and it's obvious that if there's to be only one carrier then everyone in B.C. will be covered."

But Mr. Strachan added that he will insist the provincial government uses federal subsidies to increase medicare service "to include ambulance services and prescription drugs.

"The extra federal money must not go into enlarging the provincial surplus — as happened to the extra federal money intended for hospital insurance."

The current provincial budget includes $14 million for the B.C. Medical Plan's premium subsidies and stabilization fund and this is expected to grow next year.

But a 50 per cent federal grant for nine months of the next fiscal year likely would aid the B.C. budget by a minimum of about $10 million.
